

These past students saw a new institution, wide-eyed and newly on its own, take hold of its situation in the midst of the tall buildings that form the city of Atlanta and declared to be its campus.

department of art

JOSEPH S. PERRIN
Department Head

Joseph Almyda

Sue Marshall Ingle

Richard T. Palmer

Virginia Sewell

To offer a program that is conducive to creative thought and action; and to lead students to professional performance levels.

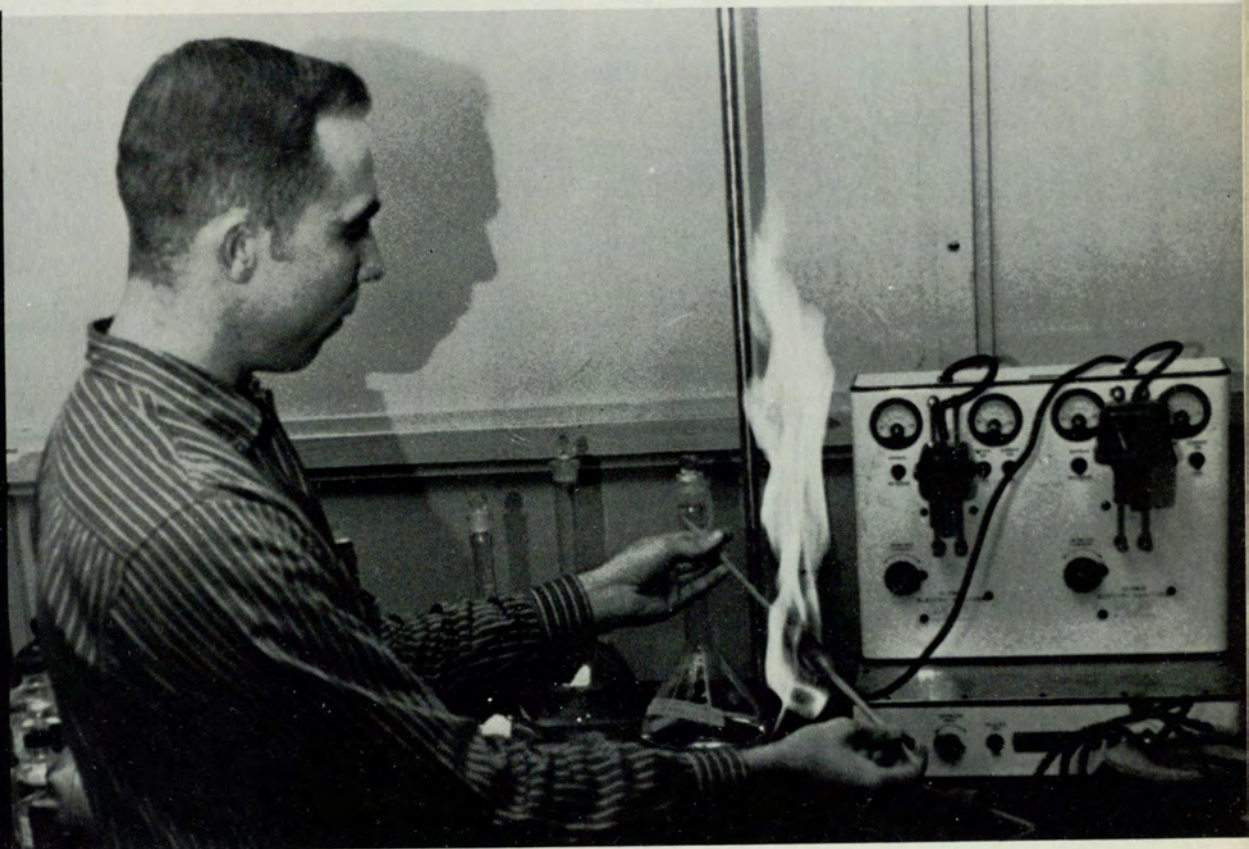

HERMAN F. KURTZ, Ph.D.
Department Head

department of chemistry

Marion A. Gaertner
Walter M. Ligon

J. E. Singley
G. P. Whittle

For knowledge of the subject for cultural and professional purposes.

James Arogeti
George Benston
Norman X. Dressel, Ph.D.

department of accounting

To solve business problems rationally, and to equip the student for a career in accounting.

CATHERINE MILES, Ph.D.
Department Chairman

Otha L. Gray
Fritz McCameron, Ph.D.
Alva L. Pennington

Robert P. Reese
Houston Smith
Leland C. Whetten, Ph.D.

registration-again and again

College pains begin with the line after line of registration. Arranging a schedule is a problem but finding an advisor can be worse. A little lost freshman has trouble finding the next line. Closed classes worry everyone.

You wonder which professor requires a term paper. Then after it is all over you still wonder —who will my classmates be?

Vim, Vigor, and Vitality . . . at the first.

Advisement is only one of the many steps.

You're now officially a freshman.

General Bowen gives the importance of ROTC.

Seniors receiving their 2nd Lt. commissions.

Capt. Gauntt instructs at the pre-drill meeting. Standing tall for inspection.

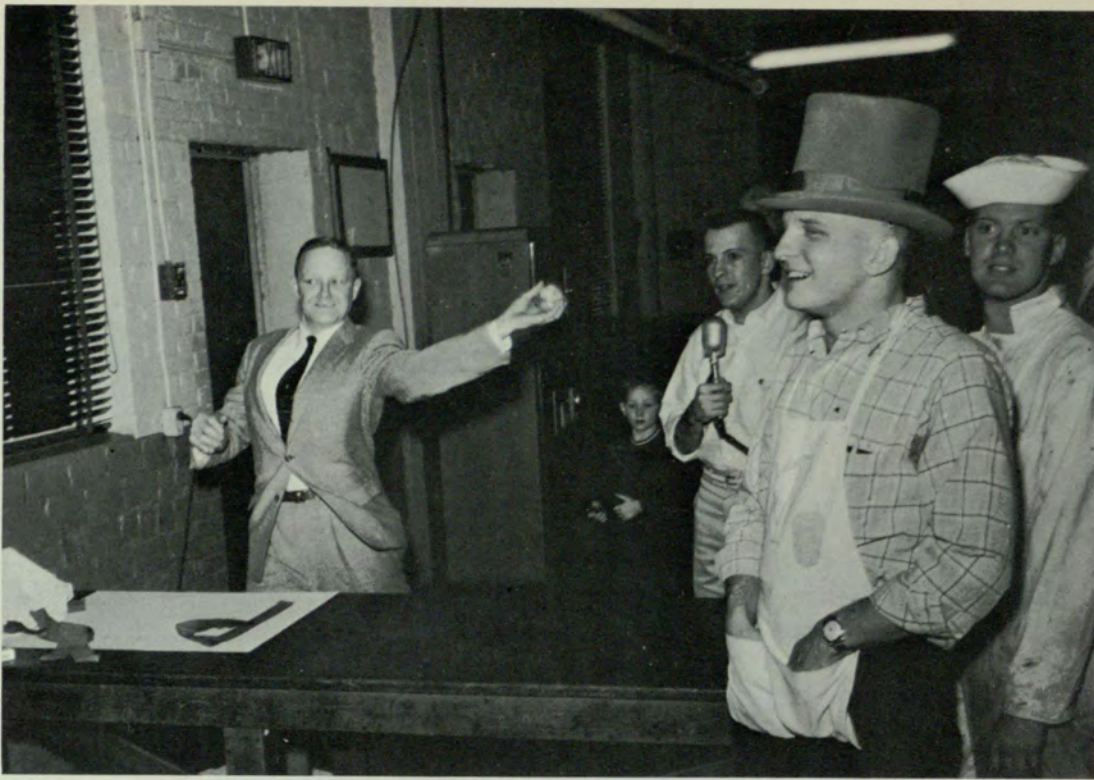

Cadet Col. Cowart checks appearance of cadets.

social greek

Doctor Black enjoyed the Mardi Gras concessions.

Frances, Jeritta and Carolyn led the singing.

Delta Zeta's talk at tea.