FOREWORD and EDICATION

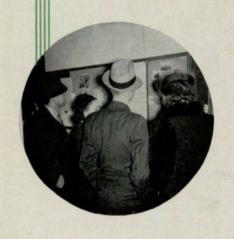

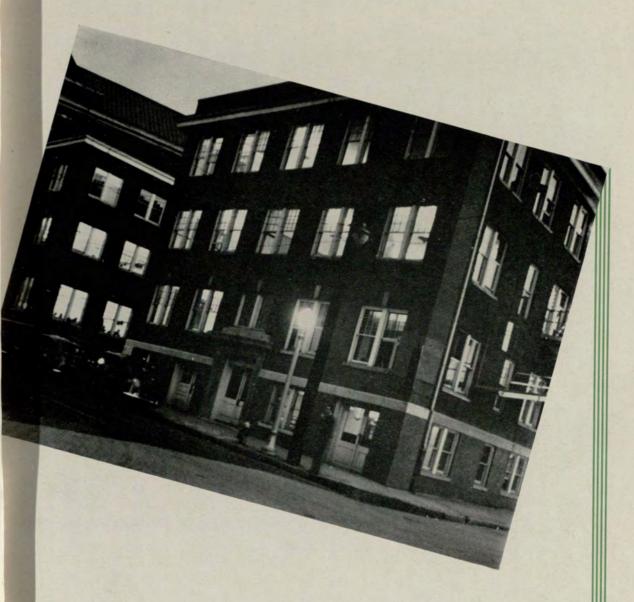

Since we are presenting a yearbook in an informal vein; striving to portray the friend-liness, helpfulness, and comradeship of our faculty, administration, and students at work and at play. We dedicate this issue of the Nocturne to that intangible quality which has held us together and that we want most to remember — the SPIRIT of the GEORGIA EVENING COLLEGE

Tilden Brooks and his able cohorts staged a Popularity Contest for the Evening College superlatives which created more interest and enthusiasm than has ever before been felt for this event. The results were announced at a most enjoyable dance which did credit to those responsible for its success

Council gave its usual splendid cooperation to Sam Ledbetter and Lewis Riden in pushing the Nocturne's activities with the classes, and to Helen Davidson and Carl Sandiford with the Evening Signal. Helen left school at the end of the winter term and Henrietta Green fell heir to the trials and winter term and Henrietta Green fell heir to the trials and tribulations of the Signal, but received the continued support of Student Council.

With the closing of the year the President, executive council, and representatives may well look back on the past months with pride, and lock forward to years of increasing growth and usefulness of our college, some of which is surely due to their efforts.

The STUDENT COUNCIL

September 1938 saw the beginning of the school year in our new building. Carl Pruett, as President of Student Council, had been working all summer on plans to make this year the most successful in the history of our college. Unfortunately, Carl had to leave Atlanta on business just after school started, but the work was left in the capable hands of Thoben Elrod who carried on as vice-president until he was elected President at the beginning of the winter quarter when it seemed that Carl's absence would be prolonged.

With the help of a most cooperative council Thoben was successful in accomplishing many things for the continued upbuilding of the college. Under the Chairmanship of Roscoe Walker the Homecoming Banquet Committee planned one of the best attended banquets we have ever had.

At the first of the winter quarter Pickett Hynes headed the committee which sponsored an all-school carnival to take care of the annual assessments for the classes. There was enough fun and enough money to prove her ability as a leader in this field.

The NOCTURNE

Work on the 1938-39 Nocturne began in the fall, and continued throughout the year until the final pages of copy went to the printer late in April, and the last copy was sold at the close of school.

The Editor and Staff learned all there was to know about type, cuts, and bindings; but it wasn't in ten easy lessons.

Lewis Riden struggled valiantly with the finances as Business Manager; and both became accomplished debaters in their many contacts with Student Council.

In carrying out his idea for an informal book the Editor had a valuable ally in Bill Norman, who took many pictures of organization groups to add to the interest of these pages. Bill and pictures became synonymous in the minds of all the school before the final proofs were sent to the engraver.

NORMAN, LEDBETTER, RIDEN

Assorting and arranging the many pictures and snapshots turned in by organizations and individuals kept the staff busy early and late as is shown by the snapshot on the right.

Tom Pierce also carried his camera wherever he went, as many snapshots in this book will testify. Between Tom and Bill the term candid cameramen took an added significance.

LEWIS A. RIDEN Business Manager

John Cash proved invaluable in making up the editorial matter, and was a wizard at identifying people and places to get the right names with the right faces.

In trying to calendar the activities of the organizations Helen Davidson contributed her efforts as newswriter and reporter in hours of writing and rewriting.

Here is the picture of what the Nocturne is, who made it that way, and the part each had to play in its composition. It is said that an annual is a memory book of the events and people that make up college life; the Nocturne staff can add to that the memory of editing the annual.

The Evening Signal brought all the news to all the students under varying handicaps during the year 1938-39. During the summer Harold Hemrick, last year's editor-elect, resigned and Helen Davidson was appointed as Editor. Working until all hours with a limited staff she had a six page paper ready for the students the opening night of school in September. Joe Rhyne brought in ads and more ads to make the paper successful, but announced that his job would not allow him to continue as business manager.

Carl Sandiford took over the reigns of the business end of the Signal following Joe's resignation, and the editorial staff began shaping up slowly with Lois Dozier, Boots Hoage, Ford Rives, and Bill Norman working diligently. Frances and Ed Pierce, Amy Dodd, Bill Guerin, and Jack Driskell soon felt the lure of printer's ink and contributed their services also.

Carl Sandiford was fortunate in keeping Joe Rhyne on his staff, and added Bill Bost, B. A. McKinley, Ernest Bolen, and Charles Jester to the roster. George Beckham acted as advertising manager and was a big help; while Julius Oelsner, as circulation manager, not only delivered the papers to the students, but also worked up a mailing list. Ralph Saye served as treasurer whenever there were any funds on hand.

The purpose of the Signal was, as always, to promote the best interests and activities of the students and administration, as well as to be an organ for the dissemination of news.

One of the few rewards of merit given the publication staffs is the opportunity to attend the meetings of the Georgia Collegiate Press Association, and this was enjoyed to the fullest by as many of the Signal staff as could get away from their work. The meetings were not only a lot of fun, but also proved to be quite instructive.

At the close of the Winter Quarter, Helen dropped out of school and Henrietta Green, president of the Georgia Collegiate Press Association, was elected to complete the year as editor. Henrietta succeeded in streamlining the Signal, and edited the three final issues for the year.

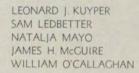

With new ideas developing, and new journalistic talent presenting itself, the Evening Signal will surely continue to grow in size, quality, and scope of usefulness to the students and the college.

The progress of Interfraternity Council for the year 1938-39 has been stormy. Its final success is due principally to the capable leadership of Pickett Hynes as president, and to the cooperation of the organizations.

The ultimate of a smaller, more compact body, with everyone allied to avoid conflicts between organizations and infringements of the constitution and by-laws of the council is a big step forward for the organizations of the Evening College.

To steer a clear, unbiased course through such troubled waters required tact and firmness, but Pickett proved that she was an able leader and accomplished much for the council.

The organizations themselves saw the necessity for action in reducing the size of the council and increasing its power. With this done, everything points to smooth sailing for the future.

INTRAMURAL

Qualification for membership in Intramural Key is based on scholastic ability, proved leadership, and cooperative spirit as evidenced by interest in activities. That these qualifications are adhered to is proved by the men who are members of this group, and by the work which it has done in the past, and is continuing to do.

Beginning the school year by sponsoring "Get-Acquainted Week" and continuing throughout the year by rendering innumerable services to students and administration alike, this organization earns the title it bears—Service Group.

Perhaps the most important new step taken by Intramural Key this year was the orientation program for new men students which it inaugurated and which served to more closely knit the new students into college life.

JAMES M. McGUIRE President

Early in the year the problem of parking space for cars was recognized to be acute, and Intramural Key stepped in to solve the problem by leasing parking lots and offering their facilities to the students at a nominal price.

In the spring an anniversary program for the college, gathering all the students together for the first time in years, was successfully planned and executed by these men.

Throughout the year, the college, through the facilities provided by Intramural Key, sent flowers to students who were ill or who had had bereavements in their families.

By working in close alliance with students and administration alike, it has been possible, through Intramural Key, for new ideas and new ideals of service to be incorporated into the Evening College.

clothing. This organization also sponsors the Red Cross and Community Chest drives in the school, as well as doing other charity work throughout the year.

The book exchange for students was sponsored this year by Crimson Key, and was a highly successful venture, saving money and effort for many students. A further contribution to the college was the society's donation of funds for the benefit of the library.

Each spring Crimson Key honors the senior women students with a breakfast as its part in the commencement program. This function was held at the Colonial Terrace Hotel May 28, and was an enjoyable and well attended event of graduation.

The Crimson Key award is made each year to the most outstanding student, man or woman, and the announcement of this award is always eagerly awaited by all students.

To close the activities for the year, this organization had a formal banquet at the Cox Carlton Hotel this spring for the purpose of more closely unifying the spirit of mutual help-fulness existing between the faculty and students. The plans as they now stand are to make this an annual event.

The CRIMSONKEY

Crimson Key, the women's service group, is organized along the lines and for the same purpose as Intramural Key. Its work and benefits have been legion, and its contribution to the welfare and growth of the Evening College is unquestioned.

As one feature of its part in the "Get-Acquainted" program in the fall was an open house which introduced students and visitors alike to the features and advantages of the new building.

Crimson Key sponsored orientation forums for the new women students throughout the year, acquainting them with the organizations and activities of the college that they might better choose the fields in which they were interested.

The welfare activities of Crimson Key this year were more elaborate than ever before.

Of particular importance and significance was the Christmas party for twelve underprivileged children. These children were entertained with a Christmas tree loaded with toys, fruit, and Culminating its efforts to get all the women students interested in some phase of extracurricular activity in the Evening College was Crimson Key's sponsorship of a new girls' club, Formartia, which is now functioning actively and whose membership is open to all girls who are interested in its activities.

Each year Crimson Key adds more to its program of service to the college, the students, and administration. Serving as go-between and unofficial hostess for numerous events, its activities are well known and appreciated by all who are familiar with the Evening College.

Pi Chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi has had a most successful year of professional and social activities. In carrying out its professional program Pi Chapter has had many prominent speakers at its regular meetings; and planned and executed numerous tours of industrial centers of the city.

Notable in the year's achievements was the organization of the Alpha Kappa Psi Building Corporation, with Robert C. Lowe, Jr. as president, to build a country club house for the fraternity.

The social affairs of the fraternity were varied and entertaining. Johnny Parker's country home was the site of several informal gatherings, while the more formal activities were fittingly ended with the annual dinnerdance at East Lake Country Club April 20.

In carrying out its purpose of promoting a better feeling of fellowship and brotherhood among its members, Delta Kappa met and entertained many new men students in its social program, while the annual fall tea-dance at the Atlanta Woman's Club was a gesture of friendliness to all students in the college.

The annual Christmas party at the Atlantan Hotel enlivened the holiday season for this group. A week-end party at Vogel State Park and numerous informal affairs were features of the winter quarter.

The spring dinner-dance at the Anslev Rathskeller was another of this fraternity's enjoyable entertainments. Plans are already under way for another house party at Cherokee Lodge since the trip last year over the week-end of the fourth of July was so successful.

Kappa Chapter has had a year filled with professional activities and festivities. The summer months of 1938 were occupied with softball, house parties, and informal social events at the lodge. The fall quarter of school was opened with a barbecue, and with the annual Hallowe'en barn dance.

Founder's Day, November 7, marked the first initiation of the year. Two other initiations during the school months inducted many new men into membership of Delta Sigma Pi. The winter quarter was enlivened by a Christmas party and a New Year's Eve dance, both events took place at the lodge. These were followed by a Bowery Dance and a Carnival; while the spring activities included a Mardi Gras Ball, Bingo Supper, and the Annual Sport Dance.

Deltasig Lodge proved a popular headquarters for members and friends of Delta Sigma Pi for many outdoor events during the year, such as steak frys, weiner roasts, and 'possum hunts.

The INTERNATIONAL FRATERNITY OF DELTA SIGMA PL

Smokers, dinner meetings, and tours were only part of the extensive professional work done by this fraternity. The work of the year was climaxed with the meeting of the Southern Provincial Convention of the fraternity held the week-end of April 29. On this occasion Kappa Chapter was host to delegates from all the southern chapters and alumni clubs.

Since its founding in 1926 the Venetian Society has been closely associated with the growth and development of the Evening College. In following its purpose of helping to create a better social, educational, and civic relationship among its members and students, the Venetian Society has helped in forming other organizations in the college, and in maintaining the friendly spirit which exists between all the organizations.

Drawing its membership from all men in school, regardless of their other fraternal affiliations, the Venetian Society fosters in every way possible this feeling of fellowship among its members and the students.

Following this tradition the society was host at their annual 'Get-Acquainted' dance in the Little Theater as a climax of the activities and festivities of the first week of school.

Three script dances at Druid Hills Golf Club during the year proved the slogan that "Venetians have been giving good dances for twelve years."

The group entertained members and friends at two skating parties, and at other informal affairs during the year. The annual Buttermilk

Ball at Peachtree Gardens, April 27, was the most anticipated and most enjoyed of the year's activities.

Each June the Venetian Society entertains at a house party at Cherokee Lodge for its members and their dates.

At graduation every year the Venetian Cup is presented to the Senior who has been most outstanding in scholarship, cooperation, leadership, and activity.

The activities of the Hilarian Club have been varied for the year 1938-39. The two script dances sponsored by the club were quite successful, while the annual cotton ball was one of the most enjoyable of the spring dances.

Living up to its primary purpose of a social organization, which draws its membership from all the girls in the college regardless of their other fraternal affiliations, this club gave many affairs throughout the fall and winter which gathered the members and their friends for evenings of fun and frivolity.

One of the outstanding events was an open house given by the club sponsor, Mrs. E. A. Abernethy, during the Christmas holidays. New members were initiated into the Hilarian Club following two rush seasons which were filled with numerous social activities. Suppers, teas, receptions, and the like, gave the girls an opportunity to become better acquainted.

As one of its annual activities the club awards a cup each year to the woman student, who, at the completion of her senior year, has a scholastic

Since its founding two years ago Kappa Theta, social sorority of the Evening College, has grown by leaps and bounds. Formed to stimulate social activities and to enjoy to the fullest the spirit of sisterhood and fellowship among its members, Kappa Theta has held to these ideals in its relationship among its own members and the school.

Directly after the opening of school in the fall, this sorority entertained at a tea for the new women students. This is but one of the activities sponsored by Kappa Theta to promote a closer friendship between its members and new students. Just before school opens each year, the girls always entertain a group of prospective students of the Evening College at an informal outing which not only serves to make them better acquainted with the new girls, but also stimulates their interest in the college.

Kappa Theta's social affairs, both formal and informal, for the year 1938-39 have been varied and entertaining. Of primary importance among these was the Founder's Day dinner which celebrated the second year of the sorority's activities, and which assembled the majority of the charter members. May 4, Kappa Theta entertained at a Maytime Ball at Peachtree Cardens as its contribution to the spring festivities.

Elizabeth Ramsden guided the destinies of this organization as president until April, at which time Nelle Osborn was elected to serve for the coming year. Under the leadership of Elizabeth, Kappa Theta has gained a large group of new members as a result of its rushing program for the year.

Among its plans for the summer, Kappa

Theta has featured a house party to be held in July at one of the mountain resorts.

Showing a spirit of cooperation with the programs of the administration, student council, and Inter-fraternity Council, Kappa Theta is increasing its membership and its ideals of service to the college.

Climaxing the work and plans of many months the building fund of the sorority reached such proportions that a site has been selected and plans are being drawn for the country lodge which has long been the goal of this sorority. Many script and benefit events were sponsored by Phi Chi Theta to swell the building fund, among which were a bridge party at Rich's Tea Room, and a most successful barbecue at Lakemoor.

The social service program of the sorority was extensive, and the close of the school year finds this group working actively with the Atlanta Community Chest as part of its welfare program.

The Advisory Board, alumni group of Delta Lambda Sigma, has grown in size and activity with the active chapter. In March the board honored the pledges and members with a preview party followed by a breakfast.

Numerous social affairs were given by the sorority during the year and included a progressive dinner on New Year's Eve; a birthday party January 5; a Mother's Day Tea; and steak frys, teas, and the like in connection with rushing.

The Glee Club, with Edmund Phillips as president, and under the direction of John Hoffman, has finished a year of unrivaled accomplishment. In living up to its avowed purpose of furnishing entertainment for school functions and of acting as an ambassador of good will by offering its services to other schools and civic organizations, the Glee Club has been kept busy.

As its part of the programs at the Homecoming Banquet and the Silver Jubilee Celebration the Glee Club sang so well, and was so thoroughly enjoyed by the hundreds in attendance that their performance threatened to stop the whole show.

Numerous radio broadcasts, luncheon programs for various civic organizations and like performances were also included in the year's activities.

The climax of the work done by the Glee Club was the presentation in May of the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, "Yeomen of the Guard." This year was the first time that such an undertaking has been attempted by the club, and no effort

THOBEN ELROD President

Under the leadership of Thoben Elrod, the Speakers' Club was very active this year. Their first meeting gathered about twenty-five students who were interested in public speaking. This group has grown during the year and has shown an increasing interest and enthusiasm.

Dinner meetings were held throughout the year, and were followed by open forums on such questions as the current political elections in November; should Georgia have a sales tax; should the United States have an alliance with Great Britain; should college athletes be paid; should the United States establish a Naval Base on the island of Guam; and many other questions of current and controversial interest.

The annual Speakers' Club Homecoming Banquet, January 19, gathered the largest number of active and former members of the club in its history. Mr. L. R. Siebert, Secretary of the Board of Regents was guest speaker for the occasion.

The "Mock Trial," held in the Little Theater, April 26, closed the activities of the club for the year.

As its summer outing the Speakers' Club has a stag house party at one of the mountain resorts each year.

The cup given to the member of the Speakers' Club who has been most outstanding in service and ability is a coveted award, as are places on the debate team, since the Speakers' Club encourages participation in inter-collegiate debating.

But a full moon was not essential for their pleasure, for Saturday afternoons and Sundays would find members of this club combining pleasure with the desire for healthful exercise. Many of their rides were followed by steak frys or other equally popular events.

At Hallowe'en the Spur Club sponsored the annual carnival in which all the Evening College organizations participated to their mutual financial benefit and enjoyment.

Professors V. V. Lavroff and George Manners, faculty sponsors of the group, added much to the activities of the Spur Club through their advice and instruction.

organization students alike, and were enjoyed for the friendly spirit of rivalry they instigated regardless of which fraternity was victor.

The added facilities of a gymnasium in the new building has contributed much to the enthusiasm displayed by the students, and one of the outstanding accomplishments of the year was the formation of girls' teams in the various sports.

With the added equipment that each succeeding quarter brings to the new gymnasium, and the increasing ability of the participants, the sports at the Evening College are becoming more diversified and vastly more entertaining.

N closing the Nocturne with the feature section which presents a panorama of our college year, we can only hope that this book will recall as many pleasant memories to you as it will to us. If, in the years to come, you derive any pleasure in turning its pages and re-living these days and nights at the Evening College, we will feel that our efforts have been well repaid.

THE EDITOR.

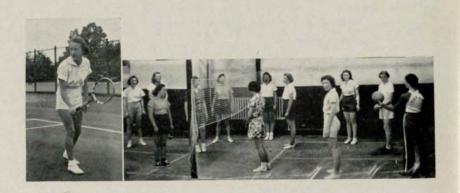

-Features

N the following pages will be found snapshots of events occurring during the past year which held much interest and significance for each of the students, faculty, and administration. First is shown an informal pose including Dr. Snelling, Dr. Britton, Dr. Sparks, and Chancellor Sanford. Early in the year the new Evening College building was adopted as a meeting place for the Board of Regents, and soon the gleaming mahogany table in the Music Room became the work table for Chancellor Sanford and the other members of the board. It was a privilege for the Evening College to have these men as its guests for luncheons, dinners, and their regular meetings.

Next is a picture of Edith Hughey, hard at work with some of the N. Y. A. students. Edith is a familiar figure to the majority of the students, and through her efforts and cooperation the N. Y. A. funds have helped many students obtain their tuition. These workers in the offices and laboratories have been most helpful to faculty and students alike.

And then is shown one of the most delightful features of our college—the spirit of friendship and comradeship which exists between teacher and student. The professors and administrators are first friends, and second mediators. Many lasting and treasured relationships have been established through this informal spirit.

On the division page there is a medley of snapshots which are typical of the diversion found by Evening College students. The Homecoming Banquet will long be outstanding in the memories of all who attended it. The opportunity to see old friends, to relax with the faculty in a gala mood, and to know the college and its traditions better was an anticipated pleasure which was realized to the fullest.

* The allschool carnival, fraternity games, bowling matches, informal outings, and classroom associations hold specific memories for each of us.

One of the more recent innovations in the Evening College is a directed physical education program. That this has been quite successful needs only a reference to the pictures at the bottom of the preceding page. With Coach Layton in charge there have been classes in calisthenics, sports, Intramural games, and other equally as beneficial and enjoyable activities.

No story of the college year would be complete without some mention of the camera maniacs who made private life a myth for most of the students. At the top of the page one of them got caught at his own game. Tom Pierce could be found anywhere at any time snapping the most impossible poses, and Bill Norman even took pictures of people taking pictures. They were only two of the many who invaded everyone's privacy for everyone's pleasure.

Just below the camera friend is shown an integral part of college life as exemplified by the distribution of the Evening Signal. The College publications have added much enjoyment and aid to the students. This year saw the revival of Flambo, the literary magazine, and a good job was done by the staff with the help of Dr. Routh and the Junior College members who worked with them.

And since work has crept into these lines it would be unfair to those who make the honorary societies to pretend that there is no studying done by anyone at all. Just look at the top of the page for proof! (Whoever saw Jack Driskell, Bill Norman, or Tom Reiley study?)

Winter Quarter brought the Junior Popularity dance, and with it the most popular superlative contest which has been held hereabouts in a long while. While Peggy Brooks and Thoben Elrod are at the top of the page, they are also tops as the 'people's choice.'

Carrying out their tradition the majority of the Evening College organizations are but waiting for June and examinations to start the yearly treks to the mountains, beach, or what have you, but they will go as a group. And as these thoughts are uppermost in everyone's minds snaps of last year's parties are given top place in the Nocturne. Everyone will have a big time and bring back more snapshots and pleasant memories for next year's annual.
