FOREWORD

Here is the 1955 Rampway. Between these covers is recorded the events of our school and the activities of its students during this past year. This annual should, among other things, bring pleasant memories in later years. It should return one to love, laughter and old friends for an occasional visit. It should portray the school, the activities and the students as realistically as possible—it should present life at the Atlanta Division as it was lived in '55.

The Atlanta Division is a metropolitan school with a metropolitan personality. It is a part of the brick, concrete and steel of this teeming city—it is a palpitating part of the heart of Atlanta, and the employees of Atlanta business firms make up the major segment of the student body.

On these pages is the 1955 story of the Atlanta Division we felt and have tried to picture for you.

You who will own this Rampway are a part of it, but we, who worked on it, are not only a part of the book, but the book is also a part of us. Into these pages have gone arguments, lost hours of sleep, work, a few laughs and a lot of sweat.

God grant each of you, who are a part of this annual, success and contentment.

1955 RAMPWAY DEDICATED TO DR. HENRY T. MALONE

Dr. Henry T. Malone, assistant to the Dean of General Studies, history professor and active student of the American Indian, is a busy man, but nevertheless, he finds time for charity, understanding and consideration of others. For these reasons we dedicate the 1955 Rampway to Dr. Malone the student's friend.

Dr. Malone is secretary of Decatur's Kiwanis Club.

Dr. and Mrs. Malone relax at school lodge.

SCHOOL HISTORY

The history of the Atlanta Division, University of Georgia is one of progress. This progress was marked by more classrooms, more and better teachers, larger libraries, an increasing number of courses taught and the latest achievement—a beautiful, modern, Georgia marble structure with 135,000 square feet of floor space plus air conditioning.

The Atlanta Division sprang from an humble beginning in 1913. In three small rooms of the Walton Building the school held classes for 47 students and was known as the Georgia Tech Evening School of Commerce. W. S. Kell was the first president of the institution.

The second address of the school was the Arcade building where four rooms were occupied and 364 students attended class. This occupancy lasted from 1917 to 1921 when the school moved to 18 Auburn Avenue and five classrooms. In 1916 the school underwent a drastic change when Mrs. Annie T. Wise became the first co-ed.

The school moved to $92\frac{1}{2}$ Forsyth Street in 1926, and from 1927 to 1931 it occupied six rooms at 106 Forsyth Street. By 1931 the enrollment had increased to 654 students.

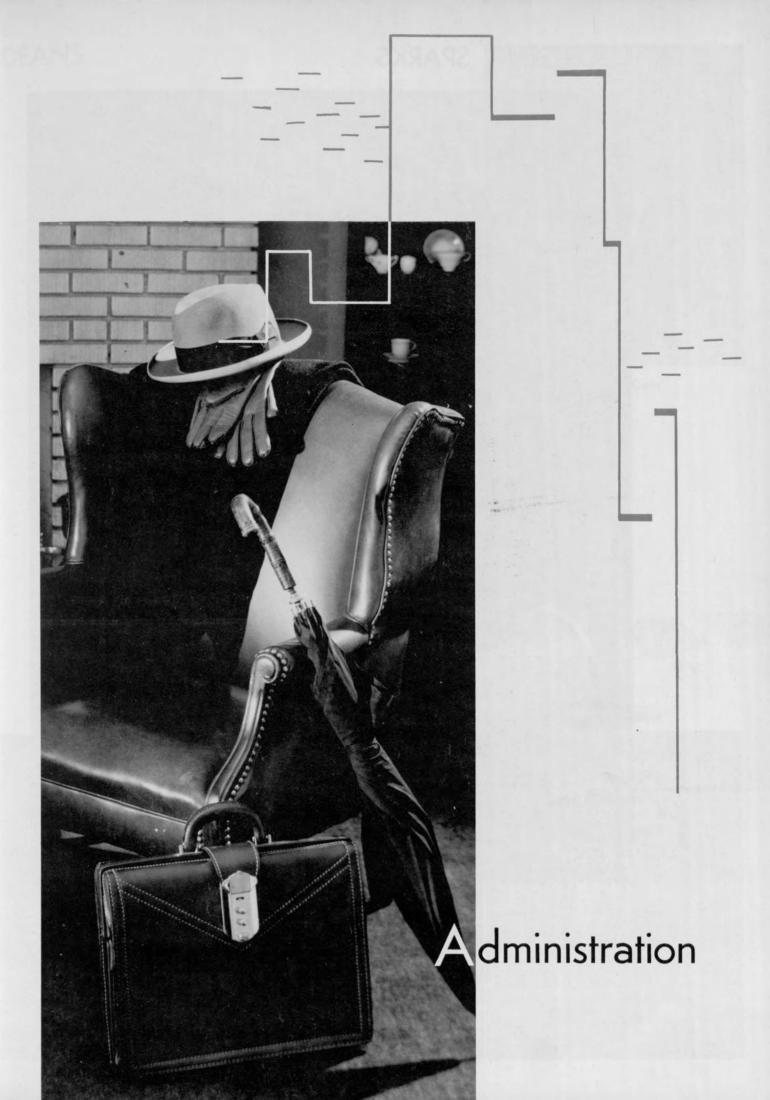

Dr. George M. Sparks became director of the school in 1928. The school's educational march was accelerated, and between 1931 and 1933 the number of courses taught expanded from 22 to 138, and the number of professors on the staff reached a total of 38.

In 1931 the school moved to 223 Walton Street where there were 19 classrooms. The junior college opened in 1935, and the enrollment jumped from 853 to a peak of 1,709 in 1938. But the school soon began pressing at the seams, and again a move was made to 162 Luckie Street, and at this address 50 classrooms accommodated more than 2,000 students.

The war-time enrollment slump halted progress for a few paces, but in the fall of 1945 a new era began. The Atlanta Division, under the powerful guiding hands of Dr. Sparks, opened its doors at 24 Ivy Street Garage. The grease had been cleaned up, and classrooms had been constructed from discarded war surplus materials. In 1947 the school was officially named the Atlanta Division, University of Georgia.

Today the enrollment numbers 5,900 and the school is composed of the Ivy Street location, which has more than 100 classrooms, plus the new modern marble structure, and 137 part-time and full-time instructors and professors.

The new building has more than 75 classrooms, all modern administrative offices, a large library, student and faculty lounges, a play deck, a main reception area, and an outstanding cafeteria with massive Greek style columns. This, briefly, is the Atlanta Division, University of Georgia, the sixth largest undergraduate school of business in the nation and the first in the South.

DR. GEORGE M. SPARKS

Dr. George M. Sparks came to this school in 1924 as a journalism teacher. In 1928 he became part-time director, and in 1932, when this school was made a separate unit from Georgia Tech, he was named director. Dr. Sparks has been associated with the Y.M.C.A. in some capacity since he was nine years old. He is past president of the Downtown Atlanta Kiwanis, an active church leader and member of the First Baptist Church of Atlanta.

The End

This is the year of the popularity of the new ultra-modern, low-slung sport car. While this yearbook was being planned Dein Bien Phu fell, General De Gasperi was taken prisoner by the communist forces, and Marvin Griffin succeeded Herman Talmadge as the Governor of Georgia.

Senior

Near

While these events were taking place, industry was moving to Georgia; a greater search for knowledge, and a better standard of living were being sought by the Southerner. The Southerner, in this year, seems more pioneering and venturesome, which brings back thoughts of the past when the wilderness was being traversed, the desert was being conquered, and railroads were being built.

This is the year Senator McCarthy, of Wisconsin, received senatorial censure for his tactics used in seeking out communism, and this is the year the old Atlanta Theater was torn down.

In this period Chi Rho Sigma went national, Alpha Psi Omega and Phi Eta Sigma were installed, and the Accounting Club was reactivated at the Atlanta Division.

John Clayton, former student and Editor of the Signal, returned to the school as a teacher. Warren C. Maddox was made Assistant to the Dean of Students. Dr. McCammeron, a Texan, became an accounting teacher at the Atlanta Division, and Dr. and Mrs. Robert Walts welcomed their first child, a boy, November 28.

Graduation

In June, 1954 more than 225 happy seniors stepped on the stage in the gymnasium to receive their diplomas. The occasion was one of relief, for many of the students had worked full-time while earning the degree. In many cases the students had spen considerably longer than four years working for the coveted sheepskin. Some were veterans, some were housewives, and some were just plain happy to have made it. Each year the university turns out more and more Accounting, Marketing and other business majors to take their prospective places in the Georgia and national commerce community . . . an even greater number will take part in such an occasion in June, 1955.

Herb Stem and Dewey Turner, Atlanta Division, business students confer on notes while attending 59th Congress of American Industry in New York City.

Herb Stem, National Winner

Herb Stem, president of Pi chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi fraternity, was selected as national winner in 1954 to represent this business and professional fraternity at N.A.M.'s 59th Congress of American Industry, which was held at the Waldorf-Astoria December 1, 2, and 3. Herb, who will graduate in June, competed with candidates from eightyfive other Alpha Kappa Psi chapters for the honor of attending the congress.

Pictured on this page also is Dewey Turner, who was selected as state alternate in Georgia competition. Dewey was sponsored as a special delegate to the convention by Pi chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi, the Rampway, Signal, and Atlanta Division, University of Georgia.

Doctor Young is shown in a typical podium pose. Doctor 'Young's ready wit and extemporaneous manner have won him wide acclaim both locally and nationally.

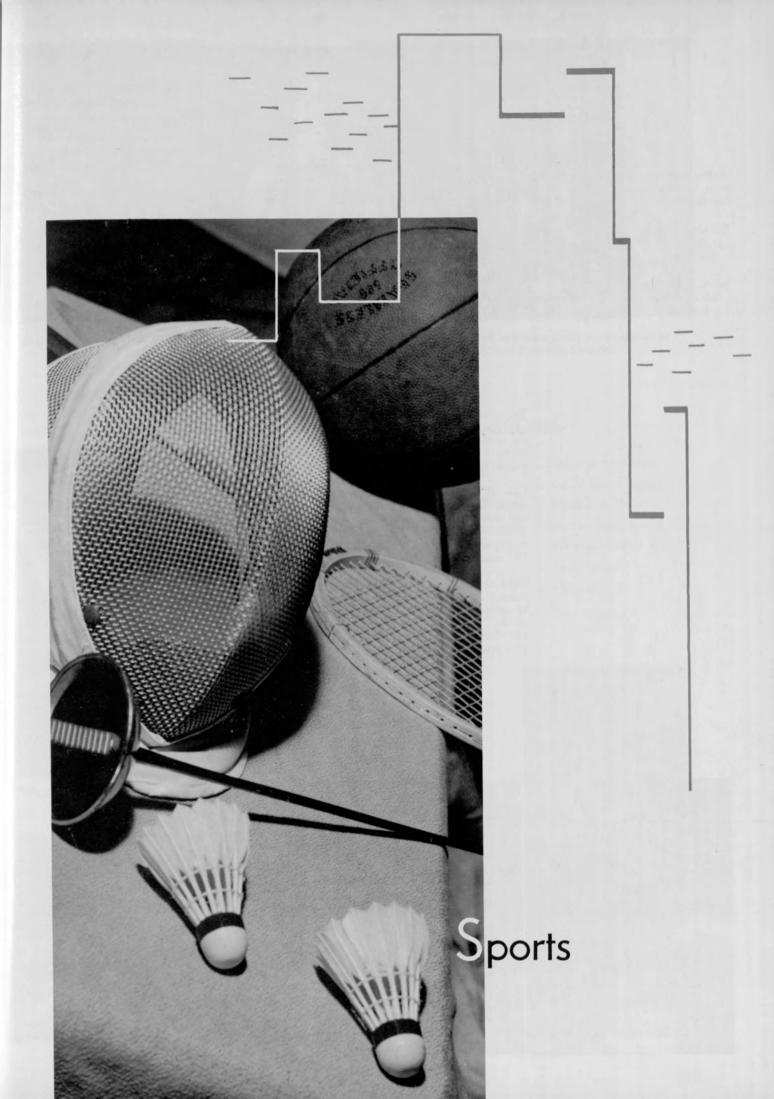

Doctor Young Named "Most In Demand Speaker"

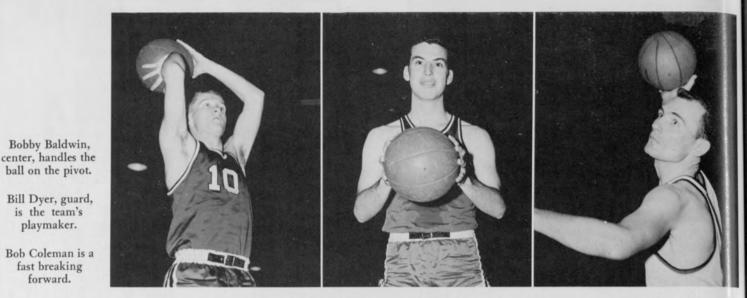

Dr. R. C. S. Young, Director of Placement of the Atlanta Division, University of Georgia, was named by the United States Chamber of Commerce in 1954 as one of the nation's ten convention speakers most in demand. Among others mentioned were Senator Barry M. Goldwater and Dr. Norman Vincent Peale.

Dr. "Scotty" Young is particularly noted for his sincere and easy manner of speaking. His sense of humor, and his mild Scotch brogue are considered two of his major speaking assets.

Boys Basketball

Basketball is the Atlanta Division's major sport, and it is the one that is the most popular among the student body. When the time came for the first practice session, approximately forty students came to try out for the team. Twelve were eventually picked for the varsity team, the Ramblers.

Four of the five starters for last year's quintet returned for action. They were Bill Dyer, "Boogie" Cawthon, Don Smith, and Bobby Baldwin. These four boys make up the nucleus of this year's Rambler team, as they are the only veterans of varsity action. W. T. Wilson and Charlie Stewart, who played "B" team basketball last season, also returned.

Eight more of the candidates were given a berth on the "B" team. Most of these boys are freshmen and will undoubtedly be mainstays of the varsity teams to follow. While they are on the "B" team, Coach Burgess will find their best abilities and develop them, as well as correct faults. Also, they will gain experience, which is very important.

Girls Basketball

The Girls' basketball team had been a stranger in our school for many years, but this year they were reorganized and have shown themselves as the forerunners of a permanent organization. Under the capable leadership of Miss Jane Hart, who coaches the team, the girls have returned to the basketball limelight. The girls on the team are representative of most of the high schools in Atlanta and the experience they gained there will be of great value. Included in the schedule are several local teams which serve to teach the girls court-readiness in preparation for their games with other colleges. The team is well rounded in that it has a driving offense and a dependable defense.

R. O. T. C. Basketball

Basketball is a comparatively new idea in the military program. An activity was needed that would give the members of the military unit a chance to meet the fellow who drilled beside him. Basketball seemed to be the answer. The first program was a big success. Turnout for the games was much better than had been anticipated and because of the fine response future programs are now being planned. The competition was on company basis. All students were given an opportunity to play and each team played several games. The quality of the competition was good and several prospects for the Ramblers, Atlanta Division Varsity Basketball team, were spotted.

Girls Rifle Team

The Girls' Rifle Team is the second largest competitive sport open to Atlanta Division co-eds, yet it is only in its first year of operation. The growth of this organization has been remarkable, and it is superceded only by the spirit of the girls who participate. The majority of these aspiring Annie Oakleys had never fired a rifle before they visited the school range. The girls are constantly improving and SFC LaFleur, the team coach, is justly proud of their achievements. Cooperation and spirit are so good that a Rifle Club has been organized with membership open to anyone who is interested and willing to practice. The team has only a few matches, but this year is considered a good year for expansion and building of skills.

Gym Activities

The Girls' Physical Education classes constitute a large part of the activities in the Atlanta Division gymnasium. All freshmen and sophomore girls take this highly diversified course. Activities in these classes include tennis, volley ball, badminton, and fencing. Fencing and badminton are the most popular of the activities. The fencing classes are learning an old and nearly forgotten art and at the same time they are developing poise and coordination. Badminton, besides being good exercise, teaches the girls agility and co-ordination. Softball and tennis come with the advent of warm weather and both are a great favorite with the girls.

"If you hold the racket this way," says Miss Hart, "you can change your position more readily."

Bobby Lou Jarret drives a hard forehand as teammate Marie Shulte stands ready for a return.

Gym Activities

The boys gym classes are the trigger for the release of great amounts of unused energy. In these classes, basketball, badminton, volley ball and body-building are taught. When the Spring comes with its warm weather, tennis and swimming are included in the curriculum. The history, development, and rules of each of these sports are taught the boys. Sportsmanship and fair play plus personal hygiene are also emphasized. Coach Taylor, who instructs these classes, is a firm believer in individual development. The student who needs personal instruction can always be sure of assistance. The knowledge of these gym activities remains long after the student leaves college, and they are always useful in the maintenance of good physical health.

"Now how do I get down," queries Thomas Moler.

Cheerleaders

The cheerleaders are the school's staunchest supporters. Their spirit and enthusiasm help make the Atlanta Division's athletic events as colorful and successful as they are. These high-spirited girls are as pretty a group of cheerleaders as the school has ever boasted. The cheerleaders, an entirely independent organization, have raised funds necessary to take several trips with the Ramblers basketeers. The job of posting the forthcoming games has been assumed by these girls and they make every effort to keep game attendance at a maximum.

"We got the coach, we got the team," yell Cackie Davis and Mary Ann Brantley.

Martial rhythm, beating drums, and high stepping majorettes are an important part of a parade. Among the finest majorettes in the city are these which parade before the Atlanta Division Band. All eyes turn when these beauties come high-stepping down Peachtree Street with their chrome batons gleaming in the sun. Besides being attractive, these girls are very talented. They have a routine that keeps you holding your breath waiting for the baton to fall to the street, but it seldom does. Dressed in their black uniforms with gleaming white boots, this newly organized group of twirlers presents itself as another star in the Atlanta Division's representative groups.

among the students themselves, but during the spring of the year, a schedule will be made for the active competition of the team.

Ping fong is an indoor sport that is in great demand by Atlanta Division students. The ping pong table and its equipment is in use constantly between periods and at the morning break. To date, there has only been intramural competition, but matches on a school-wide scale will start as soon as the new building is in operation and more space is available for setting up tables.

The nucleus of the Atlanta Division's Golf Team starts out to play 18 holes. Left to right, they are, Roger Jones, Herb Stem, and Sam Colvin.

Intramural Sports

The most active sports program at the Atlanta Division is intramural athletic competition. This program includes basketball, softball, touch football, bowling and ping pong. Seven organizations participate in the activities. Both day and night school are represented through these several organizations. The fraternities and honor groups that join are represented on an intramural athletic committee which plans the schedules and locates places for the teams to play. The program is on a point system. The organization which has the most points at the end of each school year is awarded the coveted Intramural Athletic Trophy.

The competition for the trophy is keen, and an intramural game always offers much excitement. During the football season one will usually find the teams supported by a group of cheerleaders, made up of girl friends and sister sorority girls, who wave banners and cheer in their loudest voices. An intramural football game always draws a happy crowd of onlookers, for rooters know that plenty of action awaits each starting whistle. The same holds true for basketball and softball.

The trophy for the 1953-54 season was awarded to Sigma Kappa Chi early this fall.

The R.O.T.C. Unit at the Atlanta Division, University of Georgia, was formed on 30 March, 1951, as a Transportation Corps Unit. There were 321 students in R.O.T.C. with the opening of the Fall quarter of 1951. The opening of the Fall quarter of 1954 was the inauguration of the General Military Science Curriculum in the Atlanta Division, University of Georgia. The General Military Science course of instruction covers four broad and distinct areas of military knowledge and skill in addition to the School of the Soldier and Exercise of Command which is included throughout the four years of training. Since this is the first year for the General Military Science in the Atlanta Division, University of Georgia, Transportation subjects will be taught to the fourth year cadets (MSIV) for this year only.

Top Rating

For the past four years the Military Department has received a superior rating. Many elements contributed to such a standing, but leadership has been of primary importance. Well-trained officers, conscientious cadet trainees and eager students were other contributing factors to the acquisition of this honor. An excellent R.O.T.C. Band, two active military fraternities, a crac shot rifle team and an energetic basketball team are other points in favor of the department rating. Colonel Stafford, formerly of the Atlanta Division, and Lt. Colonel Pratt have earned the right to be proid of the Military Department.

A Story Told

This page concludes the 1955 story of the Military Department, but the ending of this story is the beginning of another—a story of progress. New courses will be instituted in order to keep pace with the progressive imes, many of the present students will enter the Regular Army and new student recruits will fill the vacancies.

For a real view of the military students in action, the viaduct over Sparks Field is a grandstand spot. From the viaduct one can get a clear look at the snappy synchronization of the superior marching of the cadets—as the sterophonic beat of the drum pounds below, and the butts of the rifles clack against the concrete pavement.

We Thank You . . .

It would be easy for the members of the 1955 Rampway staff to take credit for this annual, but such action would neither be proper nor honest. It is our privilege and pleasure to state that we were fortunate in having many friends and much help in the construction of this book. We have pictured on this page many of the people who were kind enough to give us a hand.

It would be impossible for us to mention the names or print the pictures of all of those who gave us assistance, but we are deeply appreciative of all help. We have accepted your kindness with a feeling of gratefulness and humility.

Though the entire city of Atlanta is the campus for students of the Atlanta Division, Hurt Park is the school's miniature campus. All in all, Hurt Park is a mighty serene spot in the midst of the hustling metropolis of Atlanta.

New Ideas

In this, the ninth year of the combined day-night yearbook at the Atlanta Division, we hope that we have instituted some new ideas and injected some fresh blood into the veins of the 1955 Rampway.

This year we have attempted to capture something intangible—the school personality. In order to achieve our basic aim, we omitted the panel pictures of the junior, sophomore and freshman classes and played up school activities, both scholastically and extra-curricular. We have done this because we felt it might be the most logical way for us to tell our school story.

We're sold on the Atlanta Division, University of Georgia, and we have spared no effort to increase its prestige and thereby increase the prestige of every student who has attended, who now attends, or who will attend our school.

This yearbook is our sincere contribution toward making this the leading school of business in the entire nation.

Training Ground

A large percent of all colleges and universities in the United States now offer courses in journalism and an even larger percent have some form of school publication. This is the real battleground, the real field of experience for the neophyte newspaper enthusiast. This is a truly effec-tive training ground for ad men, columnists and future editors of both small and large newspapers.

Newspaper fine points, theory and ethics can be taught in the class-room. All basic fundamentals and a certain amount of discipline can be taught by the professor, but the school publication polishes and helps put the finishing touches on a would-be Robert Ruark or Ed Sullivan. Most of all, the school paper makes it greatest contribution in teaching discipline.

The General Council of organizations has experienced great growth during the past year. 1954 has seen the addition of several newly formed groups to the Council's roll and also the change of status from local to national for several Greek letter groups.

The job of the Council, which consists mainly of coordinating activities and settling grievances between organizations, has increased with its recent growth. The formation of an Inter-fraternity Council at the beginning of 1955 presages relief for the General Council of problems concerning social groups only and also foretells great advancement in this field of organizational endeavor at the Atlanta Division.

Night

The Night Student Council is composed of over one hundred class representatives who meet in the gymnasium monthly to discuss the various problems affecting night students.

The night council made a worthy contribution to the March of Dimes by collecting more than six hundred dollars from the night classes. The council also furnished many of the committee chairmen and members for the highly successful Homecoming Banquet.

Both the night and day councils have essentially the same goals, but the size of the two student divisions make it neces-sary to have separate representative groups.

Awards Cup

The Marketing Club is one of the school organizations that helps promote interest and active participation in a particular segment of the field of business. Each month the club has a dinner meeting with an outstanding speaker from the field of business—usually from some area of marketing.

During the past year, the day and night club combined in order to increase membership and effectiveness. Interest has risen steadily, and the end of 1955 should find the Marketing Club a permanent part of the Atlanta Division extra-curricular life.

The club awards a cup each year to the leading graduating senior who majored in the field of marketing.

The members of this Student Chapter of S.A.M. are eligible to attend the Georgia Chapter's monthly dinner meetings, which are usually held at a downtown hotel.

Although of primary interest to those students who are majoring in management, all qualified male and female students of at least sophomore standing in the School of Business Administration are eligible for membership.

The activities of Delta Alpha Delta sorority consists of weekly meetings, monthly teas, and several parties each quarter. At Thanksgiving and Christmas the group sponsors some charitable project. During the Christ-mas season Delta Alpha Delta has a dance for the members and their dates. Their annual formal, which is held in the spring, is open to all other school organizations. The sorority usually has a house party during the spring holidays, which for the past two years has been held at Daytona Beach, Florida.

Delta Alpha Delta sorority was organized at the Atlanta Division in 1936. Although the main purpose of the sorority is to promote close friendly relations among its members, participation in other school or-ganizations and scholarships are also encouraged. As a result of this, they have won the scholarship cup for several years.

Delta Delta Chapter

On January 15, 1955, Chi Rho Sigma, the oldest local social sorority on the campus, became Delta Zeta, the first national social sorority at the Atlanta Division. For the weekend festivities of January 15, Mrs. R. T. Costello, Mrs. Robert Whitfield, and Miss Irene Boughton came down from National Headquar-ters to install the Delta Delta Chapter of Delta Zeta. The in-stallation service concluded with a formal banquet at the Woman's Club.

Delta Delta Chapter now holds annual seasonal dances and occasional informal parties, and participates in Ta Tessera, Mardi Gras, and other school-wide activities. It began in 1955 on the right foot by winning the Annual Skit Day Award on January 27.

Gamma Delta Theta

Organized In The Fall

Gamma Delta Theta is one of two new sororities which were organized at the Atlanta Division during the fall quarter of '54. The seventeen charter members were installed and received their pins at ceremonies held January 21, 1955. To carry out their purpose—the promotion of friendship, high scholarship, nobility of ideals, and strength of character—Gamma Delta Theta has averaged at least one well planned social function each month, is developing an extensive scholarship program, and is organizing a Mother's Club. In contrast to the informal rushing of this school year, they plan to open the fall quarter of '55 with a big rush season.

Kappa Theta

Major Activities

There are three outstanding Kappa Theta functions during the school year. The first project is the sponsoring of a welfare girl from the Methodist Children's Home in Decatur. She is entertained at a Christmas party in December. The chapter buys her Santa Claus and her Easter outfit. In January of each year, the sorority joins with the Alumni Chapter in celebrating the Founder's Day Banquet, which is commemorated on the 24th day of the month to honor the founders. The last big function of the year is the May Time Ball held on May 15. New officers for the coming year are presented in the lead out. This affair is formal and open to all who wish to attend.

In 1955 three of Kappa Theta's members were elected to Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities.

A Beginning

At the beginning of the 1954 fall quarter, ten or twelve girls assembled for a short meeting. The objective of the meeting was to form a new social sorority. Later meetings were not so short, but they were productive and from what seemed confusion and fruitless plodding, Kappa Gamma Chi emerged. Since the initial installation of the sorority, it has become a member of General Council and an active part of the Atlanta Division.

On almost any spring day one can see a bevy of beauties parading through the tulip lined walkways of Hurt Park. Many of these young ladies are the co-eds of the Atlanta Division. In many colleges and universities, the football team and the co-eds are prime attractions. This school has no football team, but this university ranks second to none in beauties. On this page and the twelve preceding ones are pictured a few of the young ladies who adorn and complement our classrooms, laboratories, coffee shops, clubs and sororities. Many of these students are active members of the Atlanta and Georgia business scene. Some work in offices during the day and attend classes at night, and some work part-time in different departments of the university.
