INTRODUCTION

While the world was watching its new satellites and wondering if we could go to the Moon, Georgia State was watching its dynamic new President and wondering if the college would become a full-fledged four-year college in all fields.

Man didn't travel to the Moon this year, despite the start in this direction by the Russian Sputniks and our Explorer and Vanguard satellites, but Georgia State did get the AB, BS and MBA Degrees. These new programs offer something to everybody: new majors to Arts and Sciences students, and new electives and graduate work to Business Administration students.

This year saw the retirement of Dr. George M. Sparks, the Master Builder, who built a small night school into one of the State's largest colleges. To continue his work came the man from Valdosta, Noah Langdale. Georgia State had a tremendous Homecoming this year and the basketball team played well, even without a gym.

Many things happened this year. The South was horrified by the show of bayonets in Little Rock, and everyone was shocked by the doings of Teamster boss Dave Beck. Worried frowns crossed many brows when the inevitable came, a dip in the business cycle. Congress began to push anti-recession measures.

Rise and Shine nudged Lassie for the honor of being the most talked about dog in America. His fabulous owner, Mrs. Burton, alias Janet R. Gray, fleeing in her pink air-conditioned Lincoln, got more headlines than did the tragic gas explosion in Villa Rica, Ga. The thing that bothered Georgians most this year was frigid weather in January and February. Atlantians were distressed when the Atlanta Newspapers, for the first time, didn't publish a paper for a couple of days.

Unity was stressed at the NATO meeting, and the wiping out of the white man was advocated at the Red-tainted Afro-Asian Conference. Ike played golf and scared the nation with another illness. A great statesman, Walter George, died in Vienna, Ga.

In the field of sports the Atlanta Crackers won the pennant and its parent club, the Milwaukee Braves, won the World Series. The moving of the Giants and Dodgers to California caused nearly as much stir as did the Asian flu. The Georgia Bulldogs ended the drought with Tech in football when Sapp found the gap. The U.S. tennis team lost the Davis cup again this year.

This year didn't get Stone Mountain developed, although State politics were hot, but it knocked many Americans out of complacency and started Georgia State on the road to even more greatness.

DEDICATION

To the School of Arts and Sciences-The first A. B. and B. S. degrees-June 1958.

The greatest thing happened this year: Georgia State was given the right to award a Bachelor of Arts Degree, a Bachelor of Science Degree; and a Master of Business Administration Degree.

Georgia State has fought long and hard for many years for these much needed degrees. In fighting for these degrees we have stressed the need for a four-yearcollege of Arts and Sciences in Atlanta, the hub of the rapidly growing Southeast. There are nearly a million people, almost a third of the population of the State of Gcorgia, in Greater Atlanta. Up until now there was no state college that Georgia students could go to for Arts and Science majors without leaving home.

Because of jobs and families, many intelligent and talented people living in Greater Atlanta cannot go away to college. Georgia State's night school fits the bill for them, if it offers what they need. Many people cannot afford to go away from home to college. Georgia State's day school fits the bill for them, if it offers what they need, for it only costs $$ 52$ per quarter. Ambitious men and women from Tybee Light to Rabun Gap who need to work part or full time in order to go to college find that either the day or the night school fits the bill for them, if they offer what they need.

It has long been said that Georgia State should be the best Business Administration college in the South. It certainly cannot be the greatest if, unlike many others, it doesn't offer graduate work. Colleges who don't specialize in Business Administration often have graduate work in the field. Georgia State, if it offers graduate work, fits the bill for Business Administration students.

Today these if's are no more. Now Georgia State does offer the courses that these people need and, as President Langdale said, these degrees pave the way for Georgia State to be a "truly metropolitan educational center." Now thousands of Georgians, who would have found it impossible before, can get a degree in Arts and Sciences, and many others will be able to continue their education in Business on the graduate level.

Those who were majoring in Business Administration because that was the only degree program open to them can switch to another field more suitable to their tastes. Students who dropped out of college after two years when courses in their major ran out can return and get their degrees. People throughout the State who could formerly find no way to get a AB or BS degree can now do so. Business Administration students can get a degree from a well balanced college.

Today Georgia State, as a four-ycar Arts and Sciences college, fits the needs of an ever expanding Georgia. As a graduate college in Business Administration, it is on its way to becoming one of the nation's great colleges of Business Administration.

Georgia State is a great asset to the State of Georgia in this age that requires more and more education of people every year. This demand for college trained people is causing Georgia's colleges to become overcrowded and the state can certainly use the facilities at Georgia State to relieve this situation. And, of course, we must not overlook the importance of education to the security of our country.

Now Georgia State offers majors in English; History; Political Science; Psychology; Chemistrỳ; Physics. Biology; Mathematics; Accounting; Business Education; Economics, Finance, and Statistics; Insurance, Real Estate and Law; Management; Marketing; Public Administration; Transportation; and Public Utilities. It offers graduate work in Accounting, Management, Marketing, Insurance, and Economics-Finance. Minors in 13 fields are now offered to Arts and Science majors.

The AB Degree program was initiated in January, 1958, and the BS Degree program will be offered beginning next fall. The MBA Degree program will also be offered beginning next fall. The addition of these new degrees required no major changes at Georgia State: The School of Arts and Sciences already had 90 faculty members, 39 of whom have Ph.D. Degrees. The School of Business Administration has 31 faculty members who have Ph.D. Degrees. The college already had necessary space and facilities.

The Atlanta Journal said, "It's wonderful, isn't it, how Georgia State College of Business Administration at last is being pressed into full service as an institution of higher learning?" They also said that, "The School that grew like Topsy had to serve a too-long apprenticeship."

Yes, it is wonderful! Future generations of deserving young people, as well as Georgia State students and alumni today, will support this statement and thank their lucky stars for: the men on the Board of Regents in 1957; our former President, Dr. George M. Sparks; our hard working faculty; and our miracle-working new President, Noah Langdale. These are some of the peo ple who made it possible for many Georgians to get a college education in the field of their choice.

Not to be slighted when the thanks are going out are the ard of Regents. They, of course, were the people in whom authority to grant us the new degrees rested. Several of Regents did outstanding jobs in working for Georgia te's new degrees. However, all the Regents deserve the nks of the students of Georgia State College for their mentous decision to allow Georgia State to become a -fledged university.

Indian Creek Lodge

Georgia State has two campuses-one in the midst of the bustling City of Atlanta, and another out in the quiet countryside surrounding Stone Mountain.
Indian Creek Lodge, our suburban campus, offers the city-weary student such recreation facilities as; a spacious swimming pool, bowling alleys, game rooms, and picnic areas with grills. All Georgia State students, alumni, and faculty members are welcome at the Lodge year round.
Many student groups have parties at the Lodge. They are able, by applying at the Dean of Students' office to reserve the Lodge for their group's party. Through the years Georgia State students have made good use of the Lodge's many advantages as a party spot.

While relaxing in the cool shade of a wispering oak or basking in the sun by the pool, the student forget about that low grade he made yesterday, or the big test tomorrow. Georgia State really enjoys its "country home.'

When the winds of winter are clutching the Gilmer Street building, many of the College's students may be snug in the Lodge, enjoying ten frames of bowling. Then, when the summer sun makes the asphalt simmer Georgia State students may be found splashing in the cool Lodge pool. To them, "there's no place like the Lodge."

Coach Burgess and his Panthers view court action with concern.

The 1957-1958 basketball season for the Georgia State Panthers was one which featured all-around hustle, determination, and spirit. Playing under the handicap of no gym call their own, the valient warriors of Coach "Stoney' Burgess made a fine showing in their limited schedule. The team displayed sportsmanship which has cast a fine reflection on the college these athletes represent. Although this was not one of the basketballer's better seasons, they returned a fine record for the 1957-1958 season.

The Georgia State Panhellenic Council was organized in 1956 for the purposes of formulating uniform rush rules, providing closer relations among the sororities on campus, and to decide matters of policy concerning those sororities.

The national sororities at Georgia State-Alpha Omicron Pi, Alpha Phi, Delta Zeta, and the new Delta Phi Epsilon-are members of the Council. Associate memberships are granted to Georgia State's local sororities-Delta Lambda Sigma, Mu Rho Sigma , and Kappa Theta.

Delta Zeta was founded at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio in 1902. Today the sorority has 121 active chapters, making it the second largest of the national sororities, and has an active membership of over 36,000 .
The Delta Delta chapter of Delta Zeta led in the organization of the Panhellenic Council at Georgia State.
The annual social calendar of the chapter features a Christmas dance, the Silver Tree Ball, and a Spring Dinner Dance, plus numerous parties, State Day, and Mothers' club events.

This year Delta Zeta won first place in the Song Fest, and second place in the Skit Night during Georgia State's first Greek Week. The sorority also entered the field of athletics when it challenged IFC champions, Pi Alpha, to a basketball game. The two trophies offered by the Veterans' Club for the greatest numerical and percentage-wise attendance at the college basketball games were both won by Delta Zeta.

Gamma Mu chapter of Alpha Phi, international women's fraternity, celebrated its second anniversary on the Georgia State campus April 14, 1958. Alpha Phi was originally established at Georgia State as a local sorority, Delta Alpha Delta, in 1936.

Alpha Phi has numerous social events during the year, including a spring houseparty at Daytona Beach, formal dances, and fraternity swaps such as the annual Christmas caroling party. A Slave Auction, and the winning of the first place trophy on Skit Night during Greek Week further high-lighted Alpha Phi's calendar this year.

The sorority also sponsored a Heart Dance, at which a Queen of Hearts and a Court Jester were named, in order to support their national philan-thropy-the Heart Fund.

Alpha Phi, one of the founders of the National Panhellenic Council, is 85 years old, and has chapters throughout the United States and Canada with over 27,000 members.

Kappa Theta sorority for night school women was founded on January 24, 1937, and from this chartering date, has grown steadily.

Proof of Kappa Theta vitality and humanitarian principles is witnessed by their annual projects of sponsoring a welfare girl from the Methodist Children's Home in Decatur. At Christmas the chapter entertains the little girl with a party, and then during Easter, they outfit her with an Easter bonnet and matching ensemble.
In January, the sorority joins with the Alumni chapter in celebrating the annual Founder's Day at a banquet. In May, the Kappa Theta's wrap up the school year with their May Time Ball, at which time the new officers for the coming year are presented in the leadout.

Delta Lambda Sigma

Delta Lambda Sigma was organized at Georgia State in 1934 as a sorority for women students in the night division. The activities of this sorority include social functions, fund drives, charity projects and active participation in all college programs.

Being sweetheart of a fraternity means being hostess, secretary, counselor to the lovelorn, ettiquette advisor, public relations assistant, and operator of a date bureau.

Most important it means representing each fraternity man's ideal "sweetheart." Between the fraternity and the sweetheart there exists a strong chain of love, pride and admiration. In this lies the honor and obligation.
