EXTRAORDINARY ONE-DAY
SALE
LADIES' HATS AND 20 HATS 98¢

- and so she missed the bargain sale

SHE went downtown early enough, but the curb-parkers were there earlier. She wandered from street to street, and back again, always hopeful that she'd find a space.

But each time a red-painted curb, a hydrant, or a non-parking sign sent her along on her fruitless quest.

And when finally she did park, six or eight blocks from the store, and walked over . . . the bargains were gone.

Now she parks at the Ivy Street Garage instead,—just two blocks from Five Points, has her packages sent there, meets her friends in the Lounge when the day is over . . . and all is well, and merry. You'll like parking here.
