

'round and 'round the mulberry bush— so early in the morning

ROUND the block you go. And round again. Ahhh! There's a space . . . no, by jing!! there's a hydrant; can't park there. Round some more . . . past red marks on the curb, past hundreds of parked cars,—left there much earlier . . .

Gosh! It's getting late. Your time is valuable, isn't it? Don't you figure you'd save money, not to mention wear and tear on your car, if you'd park at a good garage every day?

The time you'd save, the temper you'd keep, and the peace of mind you'd gain, add up to a lot more than you'll have to pay in the Ivy Street Garage.

Here's a place, handy to your office, just two blocks from Five Points, where your chariot will get a space to itself from which it will never be moved except by you. A grand big garage, the largest modern garage in the United States, where every kind of service is yours; at a price surprisingly low.
