Tinnermon Is Day School President

Ed Tinnermon was elected president of the Day School Student Council in the election held May 6.

Tinnermon defeated Monty Montgomery for this office with an approximate 55 vote lead.

Lewis Ash was the unopposed candidate for the office of vice-president of the Council.

In the race for secretary Beverly DeLoach won over Myrna Truitt. Carole Duke is the new treasurer of Day School Student Council. She had no opposition for this office.

Linda Brown, president of Day School Student Council last year, was elected to the office of Chief Justice. Her opponent for this office was Nick Miller.

Tinnermon's entire platform on which he ran for office was published in the April 26 issue of the Signal.

Approximately 50 percent of the Day Student body voted in this election.

Parliamentary Method To Be Taught Here

"The Parliamentary Procedure of Conducting a Meeting" will be offered in a series of three meetings by the Circle K Club, a service organization at the College, said Doyle Bell, President.

The three sessions will be open to all students and others who are interested in learning how to conduct almost any kind of meeting. The meetings are scheduled for May 16, 18 and 19 (Monday, Wednesday and Thursday) at 1:00 p.m. in room 141-143. There will be seating accommodations for about seventy-five persons.

Mrs. Mamie Taylor, who is in the Public Relations Department of the Georgia Power Company, will deliver the series of lectures on Parliamentary Procedure. Mrs. Taylor is one of the outstanding people in this area on Parliamentary Procedure, stated Doyle Bell. She was recommended by the Center of Continuing Education at the University of Georgia.

There will be no charge for tuition and a textbook will not be needed. Mrs. Taylor will furnish all necessary material. This is one of several activities sponsored by the Circle K Club as a service to the College.

MAY QUEEN — Conni Loy is crowned 1960 May Queen by the 1959 Queen Joyce Pickett.

Two Sparks Scholarships Are Available To Students

Georgia State students and alumni may be interested in applying for one of the two scholarships to be granted from the earnings of the George McIntosh Sparks Scholarship Fund this coming June.

One scholarship will be granted for graduate work at Georgia State College or elsewhere, and one for undergraduate work at Georgia State. The exact monetary value of each scholarship will be determined by the amount of current earnings of the Fund. The value of each of last year's George M. Sparks scholarships was $150.00.

Any graduate of Georgia State College of Business Administration, as well as present undergraduates, may make application for these scholarships.

Need for financial assistance to continue in or reenter college, and scholastic standing are two of the principal criteria upon which applications will be considered. Students or former students who have worked, or are working, while going to college will have preference over all others.

Application forms may be secured from the Office of the Dean of Students, Georgia State College, or B. O. Quillian, Jr., Chairman George M. Sparks Scholarship Selection Committee, Room A-462, 33 Gilmer St., SE, Atlanta 3, Georgia.

Fully completed applications must be received by the office from which secured by May 16, 1960.

The Scholarship was founded in memory of Dr. George M. Sparks, former president of the college.

Candidates for All Night Council Offices Announced

Elections for the Night School Student Council officers will be held on May 18 and 19, in the Student Lounge from the hours of 5 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Ted Kennedy and J. D. Caswell are the candidates for the office of president of Night School Student Council.

The candidates for secretary of the Night School Student Council are Phillip Shuttlesworth and Elizabeth McCurley.

Seeking the office of treasurer of the Night School Student Council is Leonard Nelms.

Campaign materials may be put up beginning May 9, and must be removed by May 20. Any further information concerning election rules for Night School Student Council should be directed to Bob McClelland, chairman of the Elections Committee.

27 Students To Receive Certificates

Twenty-seven students at Georgia State College are scheduled to receive a one year certificate in Hospital Administration at the May 29 graduation program.

These students are: Clayton E. Alexander, Theodore Edward Barner, Wade Hampton Dexter, Frederick C. Felt, Sherwin Z. Goodblatt, Clifford E. Hamer, Robert Parnell Hanna, William Edward Hendricks, Willis Herman Jenkins, Clara Juanita Jones, Damon D. King, M. Hershey Leaman, Floyd Green Mitchell.

Honors Day Is Held May 11 At Georgia State College

Dr. Rowland Collins Speaks At Assembly for Students

Georgia State's annual Honor's Day was held at the College on May 11.

An assembly was held in the Student Lounge at 10:00 a.m. with a banquet that night for the honor students.

Dr. G. Rowland Collins, dean-emeritus and lecturer in the Graduate School of Business Administration at New York University, was the guest speaker at the morning assembly.

The speaker was introduced to the audience by President Noah Langdale, Jr.

Dr. Collins spoke to the students, faculty and administrators on the topic, "Reckoning with the Work of the World."

In his address Dr. Collins said that genuine knowledge can seldom be pigeonholed. He likened knowledge to a "many-storied building wherein each discipline occupies a floor and wherein there is poor elevator service between the floors. Even a cursory acquaintance with the other floors of the building may lead one to investigate corners and closets of his own floor which he never suspected were there."

Dr. Collins told his audience that the "core business problem" of this decade will not be new. He said that the problem will still be that of "generating and maintaining a reasonably rapid rate of economic growth in terms of a sanerized dollar that will not shrink."

To the students who were being honored Dr. Collins prophesized that "Down through the years, whether you succeed or fail, the members of the Georgia State faculty who have known you here as choice minds and souls will reserve a place in their hearts for you where you all shall succeed, where none shall fail. And there, at least, the Faculty will honor you, whether the world acclaims you or not."

After Dr. Collins' speech, Dean of Students William M. Suttles announced the winners of some of the honors being awarded to various students.

The Dean's Key was awarded to those students who had achieved the Dean's List with Distinction for three consecutive quarters.

J. C. Horton Burch, dean of the School of Arts and Sciences, awarded the Dean's Key to four Arts and Sciences students. They are: Priscilla L. Hammel, William C. Hicks, Katherine G. Huffaker, and Betty Sue Starnes.

George E. Manners, dean of the School of Business Administration, awarded the Dean's Key to eight students from the School of Business Administration. They are: Theodore E. Barner, Kathryn T. Current, Floyd W. Kline, Charles L. Murphy, Humbert O. Nelli, Constance M. Schafer, Edgar W. Shows, and Mary Frances Vaughan.

Charles L. Murphy was the recipient of the Delta Mu Delta Key for outstanding scholastic achievement; James H. Thomspon received the Phi Eta Sigma award for high academic standing; Katherine G. Huffaker received both the Alpha Lambda Delta award and the W. S. Kell award; Floyd W. Kline was awarded the Alpha Kappa Psi Medallion.

The Delta Sigma Pi Scholarship Key went to Paul Herbert.

The Senior Award was presented to eight seniors "who have been most cooperative and who have rendered invaluable service to the college." These seniors are: William L. Beasley, Frank V. Byrd, Don E. Germano, Gerald A. LeCroy, Perle Mossman, Thomas I. Sangster, Mel Stout and James C. Tracy.

At the banquet Wednesday night at Yohannan's Restaurant the other honors were presented to the students who earned them.

The other honors awarded and the winners were: The General Council Award, Mel Stout; Fraternity Scholarship Cup, Delta Sigma Pi; Sorority Scholarship Cup, Delta Lambda Sigma and Mu Rho Sigma; Panhellenic Award, Catherine Stretch.

Crimson Key Award, Betty

J. D. CASWELL

Candidate, Evening Student Council President

I am a candidate for President of the Evening Student Council because my past experience and performance indicate my desire to work for the benefit of the students and Georgia State College.

J. D. CASWELL

Fellow students, I have served on the student council many times and am very familiar with the functions of the council. If I am elected, I will do my best to fulfill the many needs and desires of the students and College.

My platform is:

1. Work to improve parking facilities and remove the breakers.

2. Work to improve the registration and counselling system to eliminate long hours of standing in line.

3. Work to increase the break between classes to 10 minutes.

4. Work to improve the class schedule of courses offered at night to help you graduate on time.

5. Work to change the college name to GEORGIA STATE UNIVERSITY.

6. Work to improve the athletic program.

7. Work to improve the relationship between council and students.

8. Work to get more newspaper coverage on evening school activities.

9. Work to install a suggestion box, and see that all suggestions get proper consideration.

Your president should be familiar with the organizations and activities other than Student Council. I have twice served as Commander (President) of Sigma Nu Fraternity; twice served as Vice President of Alpha Kappa Psi business fraternity; and have held several other offices in these organizations.

I served as co-chairman on the 1957-58 Homecoming Committee; General Chairman of the first Greek Week Activities; served on General Council; served on Interfraternity Council (IFC); Vice President of Sophomore Class (1957-58); elected to "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities," 1959-60.

With your support, these objectives can and will be accomplished. Thank you for the opportunity to briefly outline my platform and qualifications.

National Recognition

The School of Business Administration of Georgia State College has been elected to full membership in the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business, Dean George E. Manners announced April 29.

The Association is the national accrediting body in the field of business. The election was held in Chicago at the Association's annual meeting.

This full membership into the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business signifies nationwide accreditation and recognition for the College's school of business administration. The AACSB is the academically recognized leading association of business schools.

Georgia State was received into membership two and one half years after it first petitioned that group. Formerly, the college had been recognized by only the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

PLATFORM

TED KENNEDY

Candidate, Evening Student Council President

The academic reputation of Georgia State in this past decade has gained prominence to the point that our school is fast becoming known as the "Harvard of the South." This fact is well known by people close to education and by the students and faculty of Georgia State.

Last week Georgia State College reached a major milestone in its process of progress by being admitted to the elite group, the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business. Many facets of our college are growing by leaps and bounds. Has our student government kept pace with this growth?

I am a candidate for President of the Night School Student Council. My aspirations are to see our major representative body function to such a degree that it will not only be of tangible service to our students, but will also acquire recognition as an outstanding example of Student Government, just as our academic achievements are being acclaimed.

The program that will be put into effect if I am elected to President is composed of five points.

Student interests and expression in our student government is lacking. My first aim is to stimulate an interest. The method of selecting representatives to the council can be altered so that only students with a sincere desire to offer their services will be elected.

Representative positions should be competitive. When this is accomplished, we will have a conscientious body that will organize, promote, administer, articulate, and supervise night school extra-funds, and participation in various student activities.

I transferred to Georgia State from Florida State University in Winter Quarter, 1958. My activities at the two schools have included: Delta Sigma Pi, Business Fraternity; Sigma Delta Psi, Athletic Fraternity; Alpha Phi Omega, Service Fraternity; Sigma Nu, Social Fraternity; Varsity Track Team; and Student Council.

Our student council needs new life, new ideas, and new enthusiasm. Because our students are mature the potentiality of a truly great example of student politics lies waiting for someone to stimulate it. We all know that with the outstanding students that we have in night school that a great student government program can be developed.

My desires to see this accomplished are sincere and very enthusiastic. Let's start the new look now! Go down and vote on election night.

Election Facts

Now that the election for Day School Student Council officers is over, it is interesting to take a look at the campaign and elections as a whole.

The greatest disappointment of this year's election was the lack of candidates for the various offices. Had it not been for this one disappointing factor, this year's election probably would have been the best election in every way ever held at Georgia State.

In the election Friday, May 6, 44% of the day student body cast their votes. Although this seems like a small percentage of the student body who actively participated in the elections of their top representatives, it must be noted that this percentage is an improvement of almost 100% over that of last year's election, according to John King, vice-president of this year's Day School Student Government. Only about 25% of the student body last year voted in the spring election.

Another interesting fact which this election brought out was the fact that the overwhelming majority of the voters in this election were fraternity or sorority members. Few of the so called "independent" students cast their votes in this election.

The increase in number of students who went to the polls and voted Friday seems to indicate that the new constitution under which this year's Day School Student Council has operated is proving to be effective and desirable.

Top Student

On May 9 the Atlanta Rotary Club honored five Atlanta College students as being the outstanding student of his individual college.

These five colleges were Agnes Scott, Emory University, Georgia Tech, Oglethorpe and Georgia State.

Don E. Germano, a senior in the School of Arts and Sciences, was selected as Georgia State's outstanding student. Those students and faculty members who know Don realize that this recognition was well deserved.

To achieve the Dean's List once or twice in itself is a distinction. But when a student achieves the Dean's List every quarter that he is a student at Georgia State, this is quite an accomplishment.

A look at his extracurricular activities disproves the theory that Don has no time for anything but studying. He has been active in various organizations throughout his college career.

To Don Germano the Signal extends its sincere congratulations for being selected as Georgia State's "outstanding student."

Special Class

To be able to lead any organization and conduct orderly meetings it is a must that a president know parliamentary procedure. And yet there are a good many leaders who are only vaguely familiar with this.

On May 16, 18 and 19 a class on Parliamentary Procedure will be taught at the College.

This class is being sponsored by the Circle K Club at Georgia State.

Most of the officers for the various organizations at Georgia State have already been elected for the coming year. It would be beneficial for those presidents and vice-presidents especially to attend these three meetings.

For those students who would like to become leaders, this will be a good opportunity for them to learn how to conduct better and more efficient meetings.

It has been announced that there will be room for about 75 students to attend. The Signal urges interested students to not miss this opportunity which may not be offered again at the college for a long time, if ever.

This year's campaigning, according to the candidates themselves, was much more extensive than that of the past. In elections in the past the limit of $50.00 per candidate for campaigning was rarely, if ever, approached. However, the candidates of this election report that they spent an average of forty-five dollars in their campaign efforts.

Now that the night school student Council candidates have been declared, it shall be interesting to see how their campaigns and election will compare with that of Day School.

To the newly elected officers of Day School Student Council the Signal extends its congratulations. It is the hope of the Signal that the Student Councils, both day and night, will continue to go forward.

Languages

Are you interested in Latin or Greek? How would you like to have enough courses offered to apply toward work on your degree — acknowledging your high school credits just as you would in other languages?

Did you know that several people have already signed a petition requesting Georgia State to offer these subjects?

Both Latin and Greek, which could be taught by a classic teacher, would be most helpful and interesting to students in the fields of history, biology, language, law, medicine, and many others.

Georgia State presently has a curriculum offering French, German, Spanish, and Elementary Italian. French is being offered this quarter, for the first time, with one class of 52 student. Italian is available for Art students, only.

In the past, Russian has also been included in our catalog.

If you are interested in having Latin, Greek, or Russian made available, drop a note to Dean J. C. Horton Burch of the School of Arts and Sciences.

Honors

Once a year the college sets aside a day to honor those students who have made outstanding contributions to the college or have achieved high academic standing in the past year.

This day has become an annual event at Georgia State known as Honor's Day.

This year Honors Day was held Wednesday, May 11. Awards, scholarships and special recognition was given at this time to the students selected to be honored.

Congratulations to the students who were honored on this day. These are the students of whom Georgia State is especially proud to have as students.

Commends

In the last issue of the Signal a story on the front page told of thirteen Georgia State College students who have left part of the proceeds of their insurance policies as bequests to the College.

This action on the part of these students is to be commended. In doing this they are showing, not just saying, how much the College means to them.

Perhaps the feeling of the college concerning these legacies is best summed up in the words of President Langdale: "This type of gift to an institution is priceless, because it means that the giver, through his legacy, regards the institution as part of his own family, part of his own flesh and blood, and that he wishes to perpetuate his memory through a gift to his own benefactor."

Short Telegram Heralded School's Full Accreditation

One short telegram heralded the admittance of Georgia State College as full members of the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business on April 29. That announcement has been awaited for two and one-half years by the entire college.

Full accreditation by the AACSB means that Georgia State, its administration and faculty, and most of all, its graduates have the "approval, understanding and recognition" of the national association of business schools.

As Dean Burch said in a memo to the Arts and Sciences faculty members, it is an occasion of "Signal achievement," for those in the liberal arts field as well as business.

In the first of the assemblies announcing this recognition, Dean Burch added, that we are "two schools, but one college (and) we rise together."

Most students have no conception of how true that statement is. The students' profile, the faculty, the library, as well as the rest of the college's facilities were all carefully observed and studied by teams of leading educators who took proper notice of this institution which, as Professor V. V. Lavroff expressed it, "in the span of one generation, has grown from two rooms to its present position."

There are many people to thank for our new accreditation which Dean Manners has personally worked toward for so long. One assembly speaker attributes it to (1) enthusiastic administrators (2) loyal and visionary faculty, and (3) a student body whose willingness inspires the administration.

We can all accept the recognition that our college is one of the few, and the only Southern college whose day and evening classes are on an equal basis. It was the strongest of administrative foresight that fostered this approval, with the support of a well-qualified faculty and capable students in both divisions.

The assemblies which were called to bring the students into the celebration of membership were met with mature acknowledgment and approval. In turn, the Tuesday and Thursday, and Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and the day classes all gathered in the Student Lounge to learn of the college's membership in the national group and to hear several of our most prominent administrators applaud this recognition.

It is worth applauding. It is more than a "signal honor," proclaims, for all to know, that Georgia State has assumed our rightful place with America's leading colleges with schools of business; that now we have grown up, continue and be even increased with the passing of time.

Sincerely,
J. C. HORTON BUCH, Dean
School of Arts and Sciences

Registrar's Letter To Senior Students Graduating May 29

Unless you encounter some unexpected misfortune, you will be one of our May 29th graduates. I join with the many others in congratulating you for your noteworthy achievement.

We believe you should have the following information:

Graduation exercises will be held in the City Auditorium at 5:30 p.m. on May 29th. Graduates will assemble at 4:30 p.m. in Exhibition Hall of the Municipal Auditorium.

Caps and gowns will be available in the room next to the guidance office (marked by a sign) beginning at 3:00 p.m. on May 29th.

All financial obligations to the institution involving such as library and graduation fees must be cleared by May 16th.

All candidates for graduation who are taking a course, or courses, by correspondence must have final and official grades for such courses in the hands of the Registrar not later than Friday, May 13th.

You will receive direct from the office of the Dean of Students information concerning the social functions planned in connection with the season.

If for reasons beyond your control you find that it will be impossible to be present to receive your degree or diploma, please

Student Protests Library Closing During Assemblies

To the Editor:
As a student at Georgia State, I often find it necessary to use the school library. The most convenient time for me to do so is during the morning break. Again Tuesday, my attempts to utilize our excellent facility were thwarted. Because of an assembly, the library was locked, barring the entrance of any person who cared more about doing work than listening to an assembly.

I realize that for the good of the entire student body, the administration wishes all students to come to assemblies. However, I do not believe that curtailing use of the library during the break makes any appreciable difference in the number who attend. It is one thing to suspend cafeteria service at these times; it is quite another to prohibit use of the library. There are many other places for one to eat, either in or near the school; there are also many empty rooms in which to study. But there is only the library for research.

Very often the morning break provides the only opportunity to use the library. Many students at State are forced to work after school. Because of this, they are unable to remain at school after their classes. And getting here early in the morning before classes is difficult, if not impossible, also.

I believe that I speak for most of my fellow day students when I complain of the library being locked. I feel that it should be kept open at all times during our break. College students are not infants who must be forced to attend assemblies through curtailment of the facilities they've learned to enjoy as well as expect. Those who are genuinely interested in school affairs will go whenever possible, regardless. However, if the entire student body ever did come to an assembly, it is extremely doubtful that our student lounge would be able to accommodate it.

Georgia State, with few exceptions.
A School Spirited Student.

Political Campaign Posters Show Originality, Imagination

Last week the entire college was invaded with posters announcing one person or another's candidacy for an office of Day School Student Council.

There was a time at Georgia State when the posters contained such wordings as "Vote for Joe Doe for president of the Day School Student Council," etc.

But if you walked through the halls of Georgia State a single time last week, you realize that a tremendous change in poster-campaigning has been made.

All I have to say about these posters is that there are some people at Georgia State who have vivid imaginations.

My favorite campaign posters were those of Myrna Truitt, who was a candidate for secretary.

Her posters all carried a central theme or idea. Each of her posters had a picture or pictures of babies on them.

One poster had a picture of two babies making horrible looking faces with turned up noses. The sign read, "What does he mean, he's not voting for Myrna?"

Monty Montgomery also had an unusual theme or idea running throughout his poster campaigns.

His pictures were taken from movie scenes. Underneath these pictures he also wrote unusual sayings.

On one poster there was a picture of a man running helter-skelter through a train station with luggage in hand. The caption read "Which way to Georgia State? I gotta vote for Monty V."

And then there was another poster which caught the attention of my eye. It was the shape of a huge comic card which is the rage right now. The front of the card said, "Vote for Carole Duke because—" and then you open up the card and the inside reads, "Success won't go to her head." With this caption there was picture of a girl with large tennis shoes on her feet.

All the candidates had posters up in the various places around the College. Some of them simply had the standard wording with photographs of the candidates pasted on the posters.

All in all, this year's campaign for Day Student Council officers was a good one, and probably some of the posters will long be remembered by some of the students for their unique and catchy phrases and pictures.

Now that the officers for Day School have been elected another campaign has begun to elect officers for the Evening Student Council.

Now it will be interesting to watch and see if their campaign will equal that of Day School's.

This College Is Not Inferior; But Students Must Prove It

How long must the students of Georgia State be thought of as inferior?

I wonder how many times each of us has winced when we see the person's reaction when we say where we go to school — Georgia State. Let's face it! We lack PRESTIGE when compared to just the colleges in Atlanta.

We shall be thought of as inferior or as long as we take an indifferent attitude toward matters of extreme importance to college life. We shall be thought of as inferior as long as we are unaware of what our college is and fail to let it be known. We shall be thought of as inferior as long as we fail to take an active part in student organizations and activities.

Most students complain that Georgia State is underprivileged. They complain that we lack scholarships, an adequate library, athletic facilities, and a student union. They worry about what people think of Georgia State, a fully accredited college, and yet are apparently content with a name that suggests a cheap commercial "college."

Complaining among ourselves will get us nowhere. We must let our complaints be known and take action. Through an enterprising student government and school newspaper we could be heard, and our "suggestions," if worthy, would be carried out.

The Student Council and the Signal must be made effective tools. How? We must judge candidates for office by their qualifications, their intentions, and their caliber, not by their smile. Those who are able should write articles for the Signal, or at least, letters to the editor, letting its readers know how students are thinking and feeling. Often a college newspaper creates the spark that ignites the action by student government.

The college, the administration, and the faculty have made a dynamic leap forward. The students have remained comparatively stagnant and uninterested.

We have begun to claim our rightful place as the serious, hard-working, urban college of the future. Georgia State is no longer the sub-standard business school that once occupied a former parking garage. We have an excellent faculty; over 50 per cent hold the PhD. degrees. We have added a modern, four story, air conditioned building.

Georgia State is no longer the college where, anyone who possessed little more than the so-called "burning desire for an education" was admitted. We are now the chosen few who are thoroughly tested and interviewed to be sure that we are intelligent enough to profit from a college education. We possess the ability.

Georgia State has come a long way since its creation 46 years ago. The college has progressed, and the students must keep in step. We must even try getting out ahead occasionally.

How long must the students of Georgia State be considered inferior? Only as long as we sit back and let people think so.

Dr. Bridges Will Attend 1960 Seminar

Dr. Francis J. Bridges of the Department of Management has been accepted for the 1960 Harvard Summer Case Seminar, Dean George Manners said.

The case method is based on the idea that people "learn by doing". In the classroom the student is given an actual case from business to study. By analysis and discussion the student finds the problem, which has not been indicated, and a solution which he believes best, as in business there is no "right" or "wrong" solution.

The seminar is financed by the Ford Foundation.

Last year Dr. James E. Chapman, chairman of the Department of Management, attended the seminar.

Crimson Key Initiates 13 Into Society

Thirteen women students were initiated into Crimson Key Honor Society on Saturday, April 30, at the Atlanta Woman's Club. Those students were tapped for membership in Crimson Key in recognition of their outstanding scholarship, leadership, and service to the College.

Dean Trotter and Mrs. Whetstone were guests of Crimson Key for the initiation and luncheon.

Those initiated into Crimson Key Honor Society were: Joleen Atkinson, Mary Louise Buchanan, Legay Sue Burkett, Mary Ann Chaney, Kathryn T. Current, Edna Hitchins, Edna Cole Kilgore, Constance G. Luke, Patricia Ann Livsey, Virginia Miller, Margaret Richardson, Capitola D. Rowe, Annette Thompson.

Two others who have also been tapped for membership and will be initiated at a later date are Louise Agnew and Laurie Wilkes.

Officers for the 1960-61 year are to be installed May 14th. They are: Doris C. Cash, President (re-elected for 2nd term), Linda Brown, Vice President, Sandra Williams, Secretary (re-elected for 2nd term), Ruth Cooper, Treasurer.

21 Students Are Practice Teaching This Quarter

Did you know that Georgia State College has elementary and high school teachers—but not on the college teaching staff, of course.

Twenty-one seniors here are presently teaching at various schools in the Atlanta area. They are fulfilling professional requirements as students who plan to teach when they graduate.

These students usually complete their major and professional educational courses before they begin practice teaching.

This is usually done the last quarter of the senior year at Georgia, with few exceptions.

Dr. Jo Cooley, assistant professor in the Education Department, said that the department strives to select a supervising teacher with the student's personality in mind so as to minimize possible personality conflicts.

The student teachers go through a period of observation and a short period of teaching each day. By the end of the quarter, each of the student teachers will have assumed the full load of a regular teacher.

During the quarter in which the practice teaching is done, the student teacher is required a teaching methods course at Georgia

Annual Publications Banquet Is Scheduld For May 20

The Rampway-Signal Publications' Banquet will be held May 20 at the Dinkler Plaza Hotel at 8 o'clock with Harvey Walters as guest speaker.

Mr. Walters is secretary-manager of the Georgia Press Association.

This banquet is held annually for the members of the Signal staff and the Rampway staff. At this banquet the Rampway Queen will be announced for this year's Rampway publication.

To be announced also are the new editors and business managers for next year's Signal and Rampway publications. The annual Rampway dedication will be made at this time to the faculty member who has given his or her time unselfishly for the benefit of the College.

Miniature Key awards will be given in recognition for deserving staff members for their outstanding service on the publications during the year.

The expected attendance will be between 60 and 70 people. Miss Martha Free will be Mistress of Ceremonies for this occasion.

Dean Kenneth England, Don Penny, and Martha Free are members of the planning committee in charge of arrangements.

Invitations are being sent to the staff members of both student publications, to the presidents of day and evening school student councils, to President and Mrs. Noah Langdale, Jr., and several other faculty members.

Former Student Receives Pulitzer Award for Story

Jack Nelson, a former Georgia State student, has won the 1960 Pulitzer Prize for local reporting under pressure of deadline.

The award, which carries with it a $1000 cash grant, was awarded to The Atlanta Constitution reporter for his coverage of the conditions at the Milledgeville State Hospital in 1959.

Mr. Nelson attended evening classes at Georgia State from 1953 to 1957, working toward a degree in economics. He also took several journalism courses here. In an interview, Mr. Nelson said that he hopes to return to Georgia State soon to complete the last 25 quarter hours he lacks in his degree program.

Ehlers and Paranka Attend Annual Marketing Meet

Georgia State College was represented by two faculty members of its marketing department at the first annual Southeastern Marketing Conference, sponsored by the Atlanta Chapter of the American Marketing Association.

Conni Loy Is Crowned Queen At May Festival At College

Miss Conni Loy member of Delta Zeta Sorority, was crowned 1960 May Queen in Hurt Park April 28 at the annual Georgia State Spring Festival.

The Festival got under way as the arch bearers formed an archway for the members of the court to ascend to the platform. After the members of the Court reached their places, the arch bearers took their places adjacent to the court platform.

Bill Beasley, program narrator, announced the new Georgia State May Day Queen, Miss Conni Loy. Miss Joyce Pickett, 1959 May Queen, crowned the new May Queen.

Student welcome was extended by Miss Annette Thompson, chairman, May Day Committee and Miss Linda Brown, president of Day Student Body to the visitors. President Noah Langdale, Jr. gave the official welcome on behalf of Georgia State College and its faculty.

The Pershing Rifles marched and drilled for the audience.

The music for the festival included both instrumental and vocal. Mr. William Hill conducted the Georgia State College Band. Mr. William Price conducted the vocal department which included songs by the A Cappella Choir and the Girls Glee Club.

Dances were presented and performed by the classes of the Georgia State Physical Education Department. The direction and the choreography of the dances were under the guiding hands of Karen and Pittman Corry.

Marketing Class Tours An Atlanta Advertising Agency

The Advertising Campaigns (MK 438) class recently toured the Atlanta offices of D'Arcy Advertising Company, advertising agency.

The tour arrangements were made by Dr. Stephen Paranka, associate professor of marketing at Georgia State College, who teaches the class, and Gilly Smith, Jr., a student of the class who is employed by D'Arcy as assistant production manager.

The marketing students toured the conference room where projectors, tapes, and transcription records are kept; and the copy, art, production, and media departments.

Mr. Joseph L. Smith, account executive, acted as the tour guide.

Most of D'Arcy's clients or advertising accounts sell consumer products. Some of the accounts handled out of the Atlanta office include Budweiser, General Tire, Royal Crown Cola, and JFG Coffee.

Curry To Attend Seminar In Chicago In Late Summer

Dr. Ben F. Curry of the Department of Economics will take part in the summer seminar, "Recent Developments in Applied Economics" at the University of Chicago, August 1-26.

The purpose of the seminar is to present new ideas and recent thinking in the field of economics. The participants will hear lectures, and make reports and observations.

Other officers are: Estelle Malloy, second vice president; Louise Buchanan, recording secretary; Pat Byrum, corresponding secretary; Jacqui Becton, treasurer; Ann Chaney, sergeant-at-arms; Doris Shaw, scribe; Sandra Williams, personal chairman, and Cattie Rowe, chaplain.

These new officers will be installed at a luncheon to be held on June 4.

Three-month course leads to a commission as a Second Lieutenant. If you are graduating this June, you may be eligible for admission to the new Air Force Officer Training School. Successful completion of the three-month course wins you a commission, and a head-start on a bright, rewarding future in the Aerospace Age.

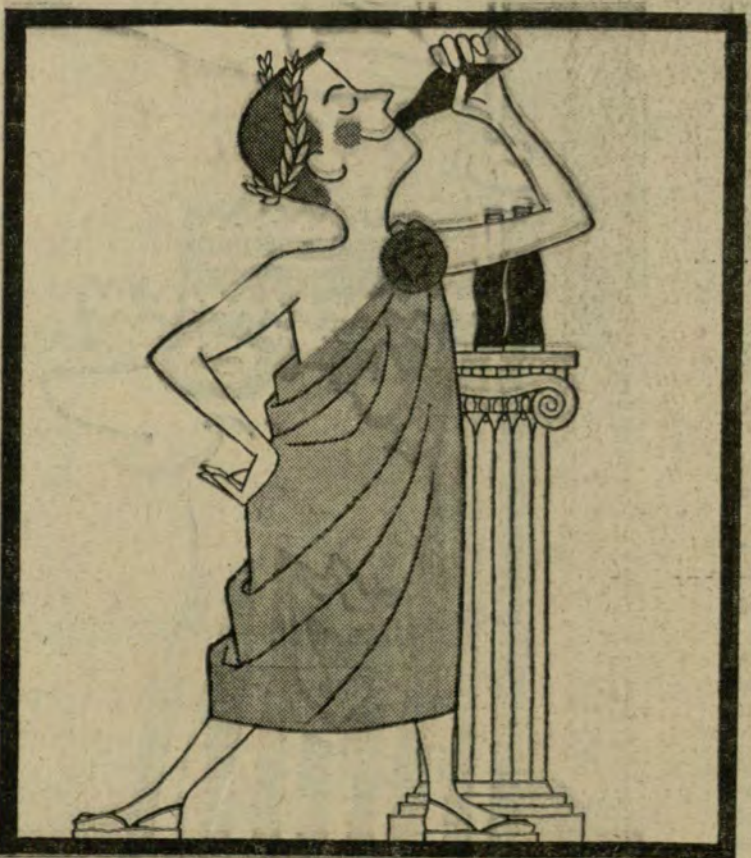

The School is open to men and women college graduates with certain technological and administrative skills. If you are selected for the School, you will receive Staff Sergeant pay while a trainee. Graduated officers may later apply for advanced training and graduate study at government expense. Male officers may also apply for flight training as pilots or navigators.

For the career-minded young officer, the Air Force way of life can be stimulating, exciting and full of meaning. He will be serving himself, his family and his nation. This is the Aerospace Age. It is a time when a career in Air Force blue has so much to offer the young man or woman who qualifies.

The Air Force is seeking only a select group of college graduates for admission into Officer Training School. However, we'd be happy to send detailed information to any senior who is interested. Just write: Officer Training School Information, Dept. SCL04, Box 7608, Washington 4, D.C.

There's a place for tomorrow's leaders on the Aerospace Team.

Players Spring Production Is Hart's 'Light Up the Sky'

"Light Up the Sky," a comedy about theatre people, will be presented by the Georgia State Players at 8:30 p.m. on May 20, 21, 23, and 24.

It revolves around a New York theatre group who are elated at the prospect of a successful opening and long run of a play written by a young unknown playwright.

However, disappointment follows opening night; they believe the show's a flop. As a result of this feeling, they turn against themselves, each blaming the other for the supposed failure.

Surprise follows—despite curious audience reception, the reviews are favorable, but the playwright decides to leave. He is badly needed; without him, no continued production.

The new playwright suffers both from the enthusiasm and the pessimism of all involved, and it effects him adversely. The resulting action that follows will certainly delight almost everyone in the audience of the Georgia State Players Little Theatre.

The play is directed by James E. Sligh, who has many well received successes at Georgia State already to his credit.

Members of the cast include Elaine Bledsoe, Dave Kocis, Page Johnston, Glenn Gray, Harriett Nunn, Robert Faust, Brad Braley, Wayne Goggans, Diane D'Aubert, Mike Frony, Clarence Grubbs.

Crimson Key Luncheon Is To Be May 14

Crimson Key will hold its annual Alumnae Luncheon on Saturday, May 14, at Georgia State.

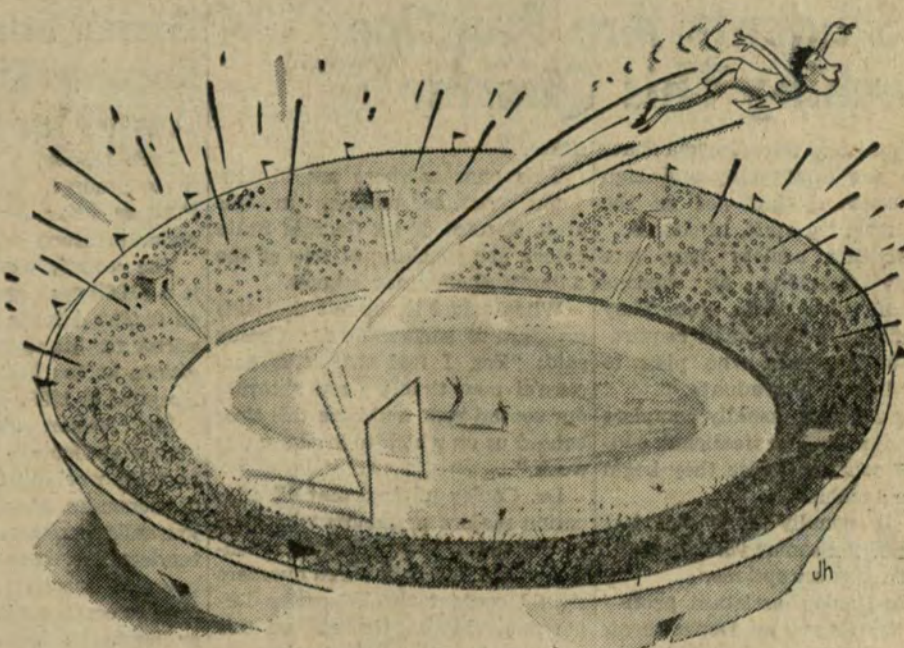

Each year Crimson Key honors its past members with a luncheon and entertainment.

Miss Joyce Barksdale is the Committee Chairman and Ruth Cooper and Betty Stephens are Committee Members.

Cadet Corner

By H. C. ALLEN
Public Information Officer

The performance of the Cadet Corps at the recent Retirement Review in honor of Master Sergeant Harry W. Winburn drew a very favorable response from Major General Frank S. Bowen.

The XIIth Corps Commander stated that he was very pleased by the showing just as he was earlier in the year at the Annual Informal Inspection. On that occasion, however, rain drowned out the parade. Despite the rain, it will be remembered, he awarded the Military Department an exceptionally high grade. One of the guests at the ceremony was Dean Blair who commented that he "had never seen the Cadet Corps look better."

The Annual Formal Federal Inspection was held on 5 May. Although the Battle Group made an outstanding appearance, the outcome of this important inspection is not known at this printing. Results will be announced soon however.

On 19 May the Battle Group will hold its Annual Awards Day. The ceremonies will be open to everyone at the School and it is hoped, particularly, that the families and friends of all Cadets to be decorated will be in attendance. Reviewing stands will be provided for all spectators.

A number of distinguished guests will be present to witness the proceedings and to make awards. Among them will be the President of the College Dr. Langdale, other prominent College Officials and guests from various patriotic and service organizations around Atlanta.

The success of the Spring Festival this year was due in part to the excellent job done by Pershing Rifles' drill squad, commanded by P-R Captain Joe Bryan.

The military escorts provided for the College officials also added a distinct note of color to the proceedings. Cadet Chuck Armer supervised the latter.

Summer camp for the MS IIIs will be held from 18 June to 29 July at Ft. Benning, Col. Culp has been selected to be Camp P. I. O. and Protocol Officer for the summer.

Captain Brumley and Captain Adams will be instructors on the Tactics Committee.

Rotary Chooses Germano As 'Outstanding Scholar'

Don Germano, a senior at Georgia State, was honored by the Atlanta Rotary Club on May 9 as the College's outstanding scholar. The Club presented him with a wrist watch.

Germano was one of five outstanding scholars in Atlanta who were honored by the Atlanta Rotary Club. Emory University, Agnes Scott, Oglethorpe and Georgia Tech each had one student honored by the group as being the outstanding student of his particular college.

Germano transferred to Georgia State from Georgia Tech after his Freshman year. He has been on the Dean's List either with Distinction or Merit every quarter since he has been at Georgia State.

A senior, Germano will graduate May 29 from Georgia State receiving a Bachelor of Arts Degree with Honor. He will graduate with an academic average of "A".

He is Battle Group Commander of the ROTC program at Georgia State, at the present time. He is president of Scabbard and Blade, a military fraternity; a member of Pershing Rifles, a military fraternity; secretary of Blue Key, honorary scholastic fraternity; a member of General Council; and a member of the Judicial Board of the Day School Student Council.

Last fall Germano was elected to "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities for 1959-60." Several months ago he had a poem published in an anthology of poetry by college students from all over the United States.

Last year Germano was awarded the Dean's Key and has been named a "Distinguished Military Student" at the College.

At Georgia State he is a history major and lists among his favorite courses those of political science and English.

After graduation from Georgia State, Germano plans to attend law school, probably Emory University.

LOOKING SHARP — Federal Inspecting Officer Col. Merriam, did not miss a thing at the inspection which was conducted at the college on May 5.

Reading Skill Course May Be Taught Summer Quarter

The "Improvement of Reading Skills and Habits" will be offered during the Summer Quarter if enough students show the desire and interest for it, stated Dr. Cameron Fincher, Director of Testing and Counseling at Georgia State College.

The course is Psychology 49, which is a non-credit course.

Dr. Fincher said that several students have inquired concerning the offering of this course in the Summer Quarter. If it is offered, only those students registering for the Summer Quarter will be eligible to take it.

This same course has been offered in the past to students. It proved to be quite popular and beneficial to many students.

The purpose of this course is to develop more efficient reading skills and habits through systematic training. Attention is given to techniques of concentration and comprehension, reading to select and use relevant information, reading to remember important facts, reading to interpret and evaluate written subject matter, and reading for personal development. Typical results of this course brings about a 50 per cent to 100 per cent gain in the reading rate.

This will be a non-credit course and will run from six to eight weeks, or however long the quarter will run. It will be offered either at 5:30 p.m. or 6:00 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursday evenings.

"The course will not be offered unless a group of those who are sincerely interested will see the course through," said Dr. Fincher. At least twenty students must be interested in having this course offered. If enough students are interested, see Mrs. Judy Martin, secretary in the Testing and Counseling office. Details on registration and tuition charge will be worked out later.

Two Members Of Business Faculty Return

Two faculty members of the school of Business Administration will return to Georgia State summer quarter from leaves of absence, Dean George Manners said.

Associate Professor Otha L. Gray of the Accounting Department has completed his residency for a doctorate in accounting at the University of Alabama.

Associate Professor Kenneth U. Flood of the Transportation Department will return to Georgia State after completing one year's work on a doctorate in the field of Transportation at the University of Harvard. Professor Flood is nationally known as the author of two books and many articles.

Dr. G. G. Thielman Is Guest Speaker At Public School

Dr. George G. Thielman, associate professor of political science at Georgia State College, served as guest speaker at the Spring Public School recently.

He spoke to 75 students at the school on the subject of Soviet Russian Communism. Dr. Thielman is a native of Russia.

Dr. Thielman told the group of his experience in Soviet Russia and what Communism has done to destroy the freedoms of the people there.

Dr. Thielman said that he was amazed by some of the intelligent questions which the young students asked him.

For example, some of the questions were: How is the border guarded in Russia?

In what condition are the roads and highways in Russia today?

Would you give your opinion of the Communist government?

Does each Russian village have guards on the border line?

Are the schools hard in Russia?

Dr. Thielman said that since his visit to the school he has received a letter from each of the students in the class.

Day Council Banquet Is To Be May 24

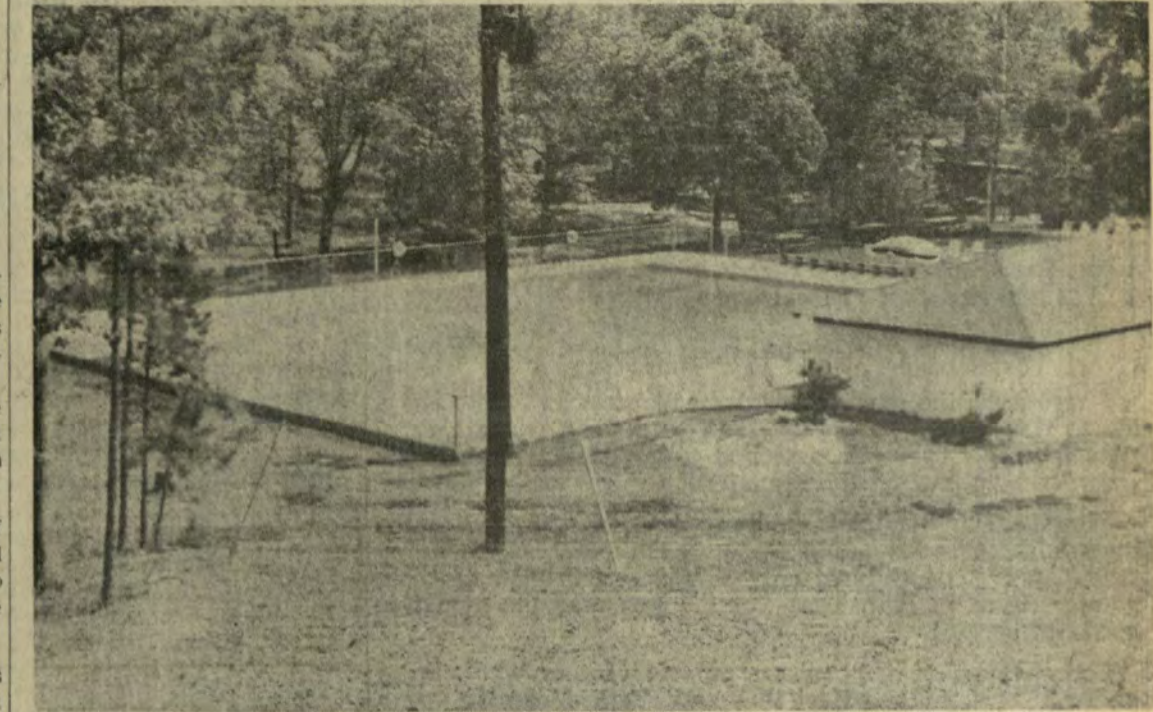

The annual Student Council Banquet will be held May 24 at Yohannan's Restaurant at Lenox Square, 6:30 p.m.

The banquet is held annually for those students who will receive an award for some distinguished service performed for the College. These students who are recognized will receive awards in the form of certificates and keys. These students are permitted to bring a date or a guest.

Dr. William M. Suttles, Dean of Students, will preside over the occasion. The Presidents of the Day and Evening Student Councils will make a few brief remarks. The guest speaker for the banquet will be President Noah Langdale, Jr.

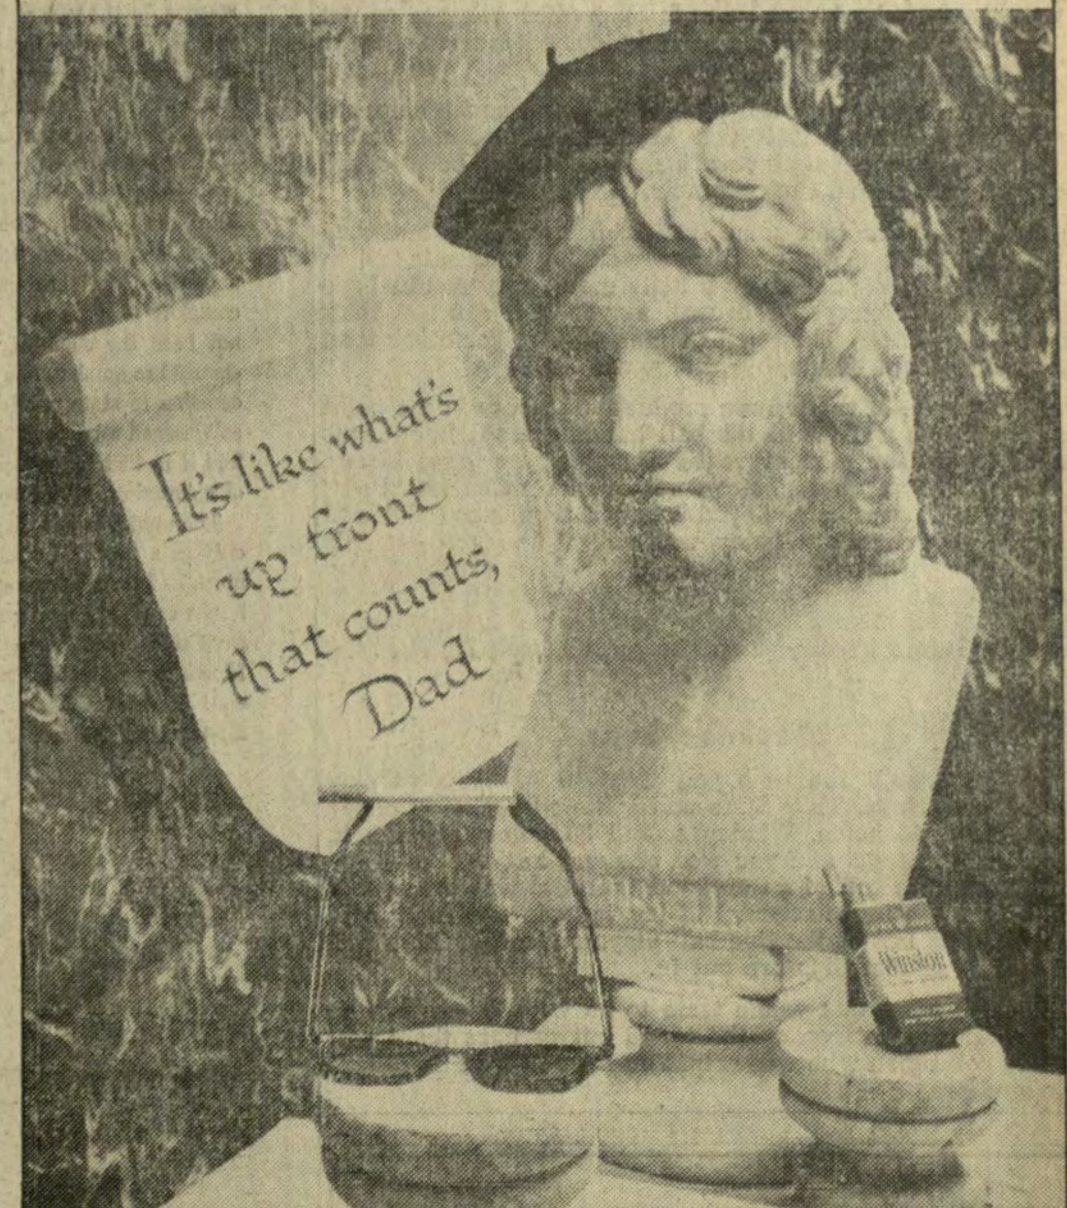

WELCOME — This sign greets visitors to Georgia State's Indian Creek Lodge located near Stone Mountain.

SOON — Although the swimming pool at Indian Creek Lodge is now deserted, it will soon be filled with students seeking refuge from the summer heat. In the summer the pool becomes a favorite recreation center for Georgia State students.

Alpha Lambda Delta Initiation Is On May 18

On Wednesday, May 18, 19 women will be initiated into Alpha Lambda Delta National Scholastic Society. Those elected to membership have an academic average of B-plus for their freshman year.

Mrs. George Douglas, who retires in June from the faculty at Georgia State College, will address the society.

A graduate of Goucher College and Columbia Universities, Mrs. Douglas taught at Wellesley before coming to Georgia State. Here as Professor of Social Sciences she has correlated the Nursing Education Program for Crawford Long, Piedmont, and Grady Hospitals.

A gifted speaker, Mrs. Douglas is the daughter of a longtime congressman from Alabama; and over a period of years she made many visits to the White House. The subject of her address will be "The Intellectual Challenge."

Preceding the initiation of the students, the honorary members will be introduced to the society. These are Mrs. Kathleen D. Crouch and Mrs. Prentiss Hosford.

Students to be initiated are: Janice Mary Bain, Paula Maxine Bird, Linda Gail Blaylock, Judy Anne Bryan, Mary Elizabeth Carroll, Mary Rodgers Carroll, Virginia Anne Castlen, Lucy Dorothy DeLoache, Alinda Jean Hunter.

Sarah Ellen Johnson, Barbara Gail Jones, Mary Frances Radcliffe, Constance M. Schafer, Patricia Ann Whiddon, Kathrine Othellie Whiting, Margaret June Williams, Barbara Anne Wright, Betty Sue Starnes.

SPORTS

By TOMMY CASH
Signal Sports Editor

To Stoney Burgess

You are Stoney Burgess, Athletic Director of Basketball and Baseball.

You have seen 14 years of these sports pass you by. In your final wrap-up of the 1960 baseball season, as well as the whole sports year, you look back over the past season's games and compare your players both of the past and the present.

In basketball you remember when Georgia State had a gym, and a good size building at that, and you also recall that you never had a losing record when you had that gym. The gym is gone and it is missed by all, but, maybe you will get another one about 1963.

Another question that also crosses your mind is what happened to the student interest that used to be present. Georgia State, you recall, used to have such outstanding student participation that not only did the school have one basketball team but two. The varsity was comprised of sophomores, juniors and seniors, and the B-Team was the replenishing force for the front line players. Now student interest has dropped so low that to get 15 men out for basketball is nothing short of inspiring.

Girls Basketball, Too

Those were the days when sports features had their glory. There was even a girls' basketball team then and the turnouts for the worst games played exceeded the total yearly crowd now attending the same outings.

Way back in the back of your head you remember the girls basketball team and some of its members. Now top students, even they have only a faint recollection of those games played in 1957. That was the last year the gym was used.

Perhaps you remember one or two players who played under Miss B. I. Jane Hart that year. Perle Mossman was a guard, the first guard on the second string, and Nancy Barrington was a two year All-Star in high school, who came to play on Georgia State's Pantherettes. Nancy was a guard also. The other player who is currently finishing up her college career, and the last of the three still remaining in the school was Carol Freeman. Carol was the second guard on the second string.

But there is no longer a basketball team for girls and if something is not done soon to promote the game through alumni contributions or scholarship funds there might not be another basketball or baseball team fielded in the coming year.

Fine Players

Perhaps when you think of basketball, Stoney, you recall some of your finest players. These are now players of the past, and who knows enough to predict whether or not this year's team might next year be considered the players of the past.

Looking back over those past years you cannot help but overlook the fact that if you had always had the clutch player at the clutch time your team would have been looked upon far better than they are now.

Sure, you have had some terrific ball players, but they have sometimes given up in the waning moments, when if they had been pushed by a little more, they would have pulled out a victory. Of course, maybe you can see their side of the matter. They had nothing to play for other than sheer enjoyment of playing the game.

Among some of those more productive players in the point department as well as in the ball handling department was LeRoy Thompson who averaged 33 points per game in one season. And you no doubt can not overlook Charles "Pick" Whaley, who was a one-eyed wonder who stood 6-9 and weighed 240 pounds. Whaley was one of the greatest. His rebounding always was one of the brightest parts of any ball game. He lost vision in his stint at the University of Kentucky and after a trip to several higher institutions of learning, before he came here, he gained back his shooting eye.

36 Points a Game

You also recall the time you went to Alabama to play Jacksonville State, Troy State and a State Teachers College in northern Alabama. Whaley scored 36 points a game in those three outings and you won one and lost two.

That was the end of an era, and that also was the end of the old five hour quarters. Whaley is gone now and with him goes the last of the fine ball players Georgia State will have until scholarships are put in.

You still have this year's team to go with. There are no 36 point-per-game men on the squad but perhaps there will be a 20 point man who will help. You have to wait until next year and see.

Golf

Golf Team Has Even Season With Two Games on Schedule

The Golf team under the direction of mentor Ben F. Curry has had an even season so far this year. Two more games remain on the schedule.

Holding an even record of three wins and three losses, the team takes on West Georgia today at the Continental Colony Club and on the following Monday will meet the University of Georgia at East Lake Country Club's course.

The club decided West Georgia in their first meeting, with the score reading Georgia State 22, West Georgia 5. Harley Chambers, Harry Kraft, Richard McTyre and Forrest Poole all figured in on the scoring with some fine shooting. This first meeting was held in Carrollton, which is West Georgia's home town.

Earlier this year the golf team played the University of Georgia in Athens and was overwhelmed by one of the finest teams, golf wise, in the University of Georgia's history. The return match should be a little closer since the Bulldogs will be playing away from their home links, and unfamiliarity with a course often results in lower scores for visiting teams.

Troy State College, Jacksonville (Alabama) State College and West Georgia College have all been posted as victories for the Ivy Street men.

The Panthers have tasted defeat at the hands of Georgia Tech, University of Georgia and Chattanooga University which are the three teams currently at the top of the list competition wise.

Georgia State's golf team has been quite a boost for the college's name in Spring sports. Dr. Curry confirms this statement by saying that no longer is Georgia State an unknown name in the college world.

Golf coach Curry says that now, after six short years of being on the Spring sports scene, he draws no embarrassment when he tries to schedule a game with another school where the coach on the other end of the phone says: "Georgia State, where is that?"

Student interest in the sport has increased 100 per cent and this interest in the sport is promoting better public relations because the other colleges are getting to know the name of Georgia State.

Others scheduled to receive the Bachelor of Music degree are: Jerry Lamar Black, Elizabeth Louella Elrod, Joyce Shupe Kull, Gordon Russell Moore, and Florence A. Noyes.

This year for the first time Georgia State will award Master of Administration Degrees to 19 students.

They are: James Watson Bachchus, R. Peyton Brown, Vivian Grace Conklin, Albert Carmical Eagan, Robert T. Euford, Jr., Lagree Perry Estes, Jr., John William Ewing, Jr., James R. Foster, Thomas Ad Harris, A. Raymond Hurt.

George W. Jacobs, Jr., Marion Earl Mathews, Georgia Otto Moore, Herbert E. Nicholls, Lowell L. Porter, Bennie Franklin Sowell, W. Forrest Veal, Warren Allen Walker, James Roger Westlake.

SIGNAL BEACON — This issue the Signal has chosen Miss Cynthia Mathias as the Signal Beacon. Cynthia is a member of Delta Zeta sorority and was one of a group of girls from Georgia State who greeted the members of the National Editorial Association when they came to Atlanta for their annual convention.

TILL WE MEET AGAIN

Today I conclude my sixth year of writing columns for the makers of Marlboro and Philip Morris cigarettes. It has been my custom during these six years to make no attempt to be funny in this final column. (I have achieved this objective many times during the year also, but never on purpose.) The reasons for the lack of levity in this final column are two: first, you are preparing for final exams and, short of holding you down and tickling you, there is no way in the world to make you laugh at this time; and, second, for many of us this is a leave-taking, and leave-takings, I think, ought not be flippant.

If I have brought you a moment or two of cheer during the past year, I am rewarded. If I have persuaded you to try Marlboro or Philip Morris cigarettes, you are rewarded.

Let me pause here to express my heartfelt gratitude to the makers of Marlboro and Philip Morris. They have given me complete freedom in the writing of these columns. There has not been the slightest hint of censorship. They have never changed so much as one comma in my copy. I wish to take this occasion to state publicly that I am forever grateful to these enlightened tobaccoists and I hereby serve notice that if they find it in their corporate heart to engage me for another year of columning, I shall require a substantial increase in salary.

The money is not what matters—not as money, that is, but only as a token. I want to be assured that they love me as much as I love Marlboro and Philip Morris. And what, indeed, is not to love? Marlboro is a cigarette which proves beyond cavil that flavor did not go out when filters came in. Philip Morris is a cigarette that is pure mildness from lip-end to tip-end. Both of these estimable smokes come in soft-pack or flip-top box. Neither is ever sold in bulk.

The summer lies ahead. For underclassmen summer will be a hiatus, a breather in which to restore yourselves for next year's resumption of busy college life. For seniors there will be no more college. You must not, however, despair and abandon yourself to idleness. There are other things to do in the world besides going to school—basket weaving, for example, or building boats in bottles, or picking up tinfoil, or reading "War and Peace." Many graduates fall into the erroneous belief that their lives are over when they leave college. This is not so. It is possible to make some sort of life for yourself with a bit of ingenuity... or, if that fails, dye your hair, change your name, and enroll at some other college.

Whatever the future holds for you, be assured that the makers of Marlboro and Philip Morris join me in wishing you the best of everything. We have taken great pleasure—the makers and I—in bringing you this column each week throughout the school year. We hope a little pleasure has accrued to you too.

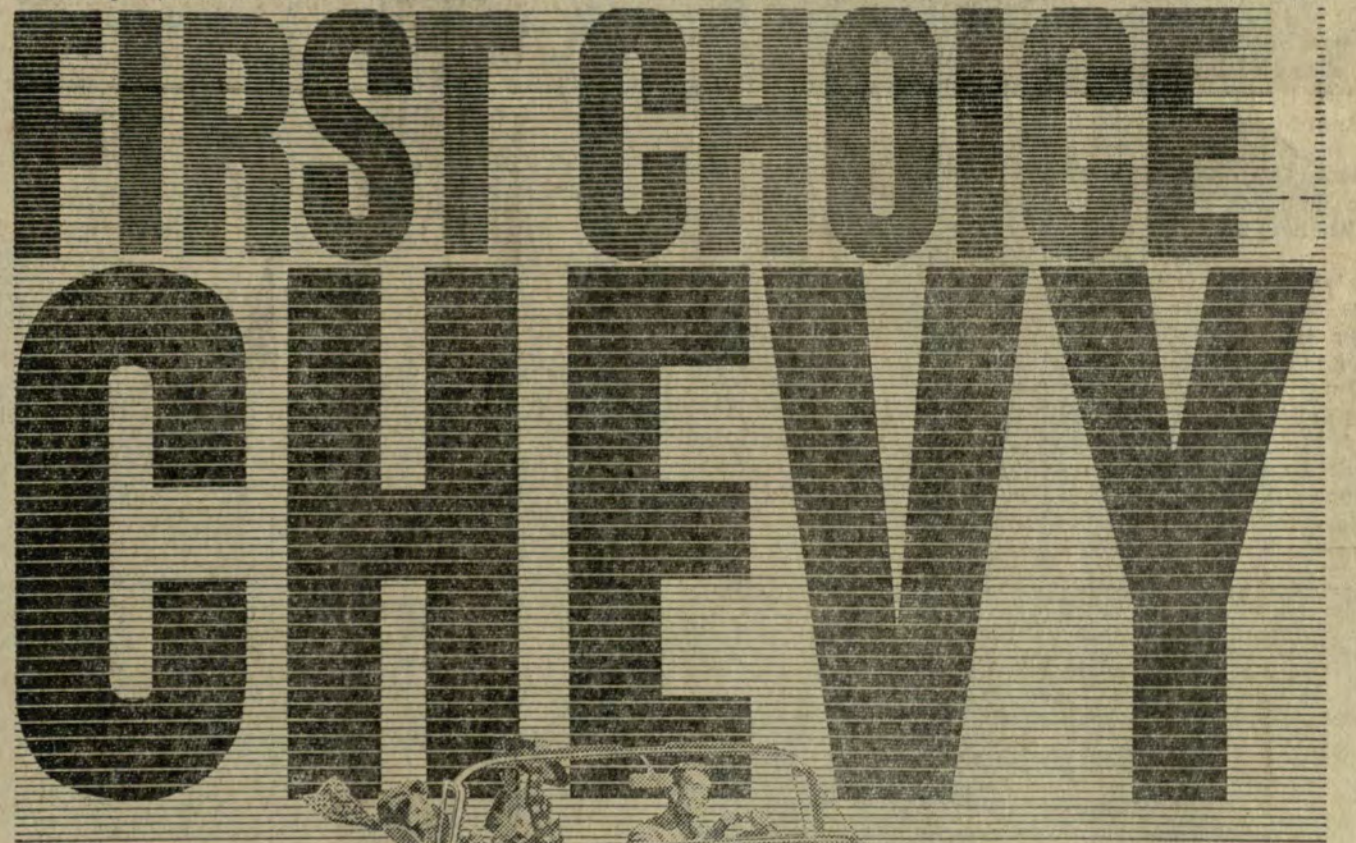

May good fortune attend your ventures. Stay happy. Stay healthy. Stay loose.

We, the makers of Marlboro and Philip Morris, can only echo kindly old Max's parting words. Stay happy. Stay healthy. Stay loose.
