Georgia State Schedules 'George M. Sparks Day'

College Honors Prexy May 23; Retires July 1

Georgia State will honor its retiring president, Dr. George M. Sparks, on Thursday, May 23.

Dr. Sparks retires as President of Georgia State on July 1.

A special faculty-student committee, headed by Dean of Students William M. Suttles, is formulating plans for the day, which will be known as "George M. Sparks Day."

An assembly program will be held in the student lounge at 10 a.m. at which time student leaders will honor Dr. Sparks. At 2 o'clock that afternoon, a special parade will be staged by the ROTC department.

The highlight of "George M. Sparks Day," however, will be an appreciation banquet at 7 p.m. in the student lounge and cafeteria. At that time, alumni, students, faculty and friends of the College will honor the 67-year-old educator.

MAY QUEEN JUDGING—Twenty-three girls, who competed for May Queen, were judged on Apr. 9 in the Little Theatre. From this total, seven finalists were chosen. One of the seven finalists will be May Queen.

Tryouts were held in the "Little Theater" on the nights of April 11 and 12. Mrs. Hilda Dyches of the speech and drama department was very enthusiastic over the good turnout, but she says that there is always room for more who are interested in helping with the productions.

The play is to be a musical "extravaganza." There will be several musical production numbers. Between production numbers will be individual numbers by outstanding students in music and drama.

The "Follies" will run for three nights, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, in either the second or third weeks of May.

Appearing in the "Follies" will be Herman Baker, Don Bone, Andrea Gowing, Beverly Burgess, Carolyn Briggs, Janice Tuggle, June Carr, Dan Reeves, Bob Lancaster, Sylvia Kendall, Wayne Goggans, Bud Berges, Ralph Rodgers, Jon Downs, Connie Clark, and Patricia Potts.

A seasonal drop of 570 students from the winter quarter was reported by Blair. There was also a decrease of 482 students from the previous spring quarter.

A breakdown of registration totals shows that 1,796 students are registered in Monday, Wednesday and Friday evening classes, 1,667 in Tuesday and Thursday classes and 990 in the day school.

As usual, the business school, with 3,385 students, has the largest enrollment. A total of 1,068 students are enrolled in the School of Arts and Sciences.

6 Students Apply for Evening ROTC

Applications from six students for the proposed evening ROTC program have been received in Dean Suttles' office. One of the applications is from a woman student interested in the WAC.

Two Faculty Booklets Are Distributed

Two booklets entitled "Faculty Handbook" and "Official Statutes and Bylaws of the Georgia State College of Business Administration" have been published and distributed among the faculty.

The "Faculty Handbook" contains general policies, information, instructions and directives. The "Official Statutes and Bylaws" contains the bylaws of the Schools of Arts and Sciences and Business Administration. Both booklets are complete as of March 1957.

In the "Faculty Handbook" there are instructions pertaining to class rolls, handling of funds collected in the classrooms, faculty participation in student activities, absences of teachers, changes in grades, final examinations, and others.

The handbook also contains instructions for the handling of withdrawals. The handbook points out that, "Some faculty members have mistakenly given the grade of WF to all students who withdrew after the third week in the quarter, even though the students were passing."

The "Official Statutes and Bylaws" covers a great many fields connected with the running of the college. This booklet specifies the duties of each member of administration. It also states the duties of departmental heads and committees.

The bylaws of each of the College's two schools, Arts and Sciences and Business Administration, are also stated in this booklet. The functions of the faculty of each of the schools is given.

DR. SPARKS has headed the College since 1928, when it was first known as the Georgia Tech Evening School of Commerce. He has served as president of Georgia State since the College separated from the University of Georgia in 1955.

He has seen the College grow from 525 students occupying six rooms to its present enrollment of almost 5,000 students occupying the six-story building on Ivy Street and the modern, four-story, air-conditioned building on Gilmer Street.

He is a graduate of Mercer and holds a master's degree and a doctor of letters from that college. Dr. Sparks has also been active in organizations outside the college and is the president of the YMCA.

CHARLIE BROWN, State Senator from Fulton County, introduced in the last session of the General Assembly a resolution commending Dr. Sparks. The resolution reads: "Be it resolved that the General Assembly of Georgia congratulates Dr. Sparks upon his long and fruitful career in our State, and express to him its appreciation for his accomplishments for the schools, students, and in the field of general welfare in our great State."

Dr. Black Co-Author Of Insurance Text

Dr. Kenneth Black of the Georgia State faculty, together with Dr. S. S. Huebner, has published a book "Property Insurance" as a text for senior students in insurance.

Nineteen 10:40 a.m. classes are not represented in the Day School Student Council although the Council has already held two meetings this quarter.

A check of the registrar's records of the 10:40 a.m. classes showed that there are 44 classes at that time. This means that ap-

No Successor To Dr. Sparks Told by Regents

The Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia, at its regular monthly meeting last week, said nothing about a successor to Dr. George M. Sparks.

Dr. Sparks will retire as President of Georgia State on July 1. Recently the Board of Regents contacted Dr. Rufus Harris, president of Tulane University, as a possible successor to Dr. Sparks.

He reportedly would consider an offer to come here only if expansion were made in the educational program. At present, Georgia State offers only the Bachelor of Business Administration degree.

The Signal made continued but fruitless efforts to contact Dr. Harris this week to determine if he is still a candidate for the position.

TECH'S GRANT FIELD NEVER HAD IT SO GOOD Georgia State's Beverly Hodgson is Engineer Twirler Tech Majorette

Appearance Before 40,000 Grid Fans 'Funny Feeling'

"It's a funny feeling that you will never have at any other place," says Beverly Hodgson of her appearance before 40,000 football fans last fall.

Miss Hodgson, a Georgia State majorette, twirled at Georgia Tech's 1956 regular season games. A 1956 graduate of Atlanta's Murphy high school, she started twirling when she was in the eighth grade.

Georgia Tech had two majorettes for their 1956 season, Miss Hodgson and Paula Stevenson, a Tech student. Miss Hodgson wore a gold outfit when twirling for the Yellow Jackets.

She found twirling at Tech's Grant Field a "wonderful experience and opportunity. Everyone has been nice to me out there," she said.

She was a majorette at Murphy for three years. Ben Sisk, Director of the Murphy and Tech bands, gave her the opportunity to become a Georgia Tech majorette, even though she was a student at Georgia State.

MISS HODGSON, who came to Georgia State because of its convenience and course offerings, is majoring in secondary education. She is a third-quarter freshman. Her after-college-hours are filled with her job and Delta Zeta, a day school social sorority.

She works for Rutan Music Company, Monday through Saturday. She teaches twirling at Rutan's to 150 high school and grammar school girls. Some of these girls are already majorettes.

It was through Rutan's and Bill Allen, a twirling champion, that she and two other girls were able to tour the country last summer. On this tour they visited the University of Oklahoma, several colleges in Texas and Wesley College in Macon.

She is active in college activities. She is president of her Delta Zeta pledge class and an alternate member of the Student Council. Delta Zeta recently entered her in the 1957 May Queen contest and she was named one of the seven finalists last week.

Despite all of her other activities Miss Hodgson, who never dropped a baton at Grady Stadium or Grant Field, says that, "You never get over the thrill of being out there (Grant Field)."

American Determined Optimist, Brougner Tells Assembly Group

"The American is a determined optimist," General William E. Brougner said here last week.

General Brougner, who is now retired from the Army, spoke at Georgia State's regular assembly program last Thursday. General Brougner told of his experiences as a prisoner of war during World War II. He was on Bataan when it was captured by the Japanese.

He is now a vice-president of the Atlanta Crackers baseball team in public relations. He chose to retire to Atlanta because, as said in the introduction of the General, he has been everywhere twice and found Atlanta to be the garden spot. He now lives at 3850 Wieuca Road, N.E.

The General spoke to his audience of the things that he had learned from his three and a half years behind barbed wire. He said that the Korean war with its brain washing had given the preparation for being a prisoner of war a new importance.

He said that American boys today needed "a faith" to sustain them as a POW. They need a religious and a family faith, he continued. He also spoke of the need for each boy to have an interest.

HE ASKED his audience to imagine a boy locked in his bedroom for an indefinite period of time with only some paper and a pencil or, as in General Deam's case in Korea, without even paper and pencil.

He found the lack of something to do a big problem to prisoners of war. He said that he wrote poetry to pass away the time while he was a prisoner. The General, who wrote poetry in college, said that while unusual for a General to write poetry, that General George Patton also wrote poetry.

He told of seeing his comrades die from starvation and disease. He said, however, that Americans always find something funny in every situation, even such a situation as existed in the Japanese prisoner of war camps. He joked about inadvisability of putting a bunch of Generals together as was done when he was a prisoner. He also read some of his poetry.

Time, Regents, Time

1958 . . .
The date draws nearer to the moment when Georgia State College will, for the first time, be forced to account for itself as a separate unit of the University System of Georgia to the Southern Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges.

Georgia State is still existing under the accreditation requirements met by the old Atlanta Division of the University of Georgia.

Come 1957, Georgia State will have to stand on its own feet. At that time the College will be adjudged as Georgia State and not as a division of the University of Georgia.

Accreditation is not by any means something to be taken for granted, by Georgia State or any other college.

To take accreditation from a college is to sever the very roots of the "tree of knowledge." Without accreditation Georgia State would wither away, would no longer produce the fruits of education.

At the Southern Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges convention last winter, an educator there remarked that Georgia State was neither "fish nor fowl." Georgia State is not a junior college, nor does it have the higher liberal arts and science program that would make the business administration degree acceptable for accreditation by the American Association of Business Colleges.

Georgia State probably stands alone in the field of education in the United States in that it has only the BBA degree and two years of arts and sciences.

Atlanta probably stands alone in the ranks of larger cities in the United States in that this city is probably the only metropolitan area of almost one million people that does not have a state-supported liberal arts college in or nearby its boundaries.

In its regular monthly meeting last week, the Board of Regents again failed to settle Georgia State's future. No mention was made public concerning a successor to Dr. George M. Sparks, furthermore, nothing was said about additional degrees.

In many instances, delay is not harmful. However, Georgia State stands at the crossroads of progress and any delay concerning Georgia State is not only harmful, but may result in irreparable damage.

For instance, Georgia State cannot be expected to retain its present, more than adequate, faculty under conditions which now exist. This opinion is shared by members of a special survey committee, who conducted an unofficial inspection of Georgia State last fall.

In its report, this committee said that "the excellently equipped faculty cannot be retained very much longer under restrictions of a two-year program."

The Signal has heard of at least a dozen members of the faculty who have offers from other colleges and universities.

It has taken years of diligent, persistent effort on the part of the College administration to secure the services of the present faculty. If the faculty starts leaving now, these years of effort will be erased.

And the shame of it all is that these members of the faculty owe it to themselves and their families to seek better positions. It is not their fault that Georgia State does not have more than one degree. This responsibility rests on the shoulders of the members of the Board of Regents.

The soaring increase in the college-age population and the rapidly increasing number of high school students who go on to college are two more reasons why Georgia State needs a four-year liberal arts program.

Consider the report of a recent survey made by the Association of American Colleges. This survey reveals that by 1970 college enrollments are expected to reach 6,000,000, almost double the present number. The alarming part of this survey is that our colleges would have room under existing conditions for only 4,500,000 at that time. Furthermore, the number of high school students who go on to college has jumped from 15% in 1940 to 40% in 1956.

What about the University System of Georgia? Is there not a need for a liberal arts college in the metropolitan area of Atlanta? What about 1960 and 1970? To wait until the number of students applying for admission is greater than the number that can be admitted is folly.

The Signal appeals to the Board of Regents to foresee the future. Start now to formulate a policy of expansion of the curriculum offerings of Georgia State.

The Student Speaks

Should Successor to Dr. Sparks Be Chosen From Outside Georgia or Within System?

VIRGINIA CAMPBELL, sophomore: "I believe the new president of Georgia State should come from within the state. He would be more familiar with the Georgia school systems and would be able to act more efficiently for the good of the College."

LAWRENCE F. HANNINGTON, sophomore: "I feel that the

and it would be twice as difficult if the person had to begin from scratch."

RICHARD CROOK, freshman: "I believe that a man from Georgia would be a better choice for a replacement for Dr. Sparks than someone from out of state. The main reason why I say this is because the students would be more willing to accept him than someone from out of the state. Of course, they should pick the best qualified man."

CAROL HUDSON, freshman: "I think that if the individual who will take the position of president is capable and suited for the job that he is to take over, then it makes no difference whether he is from Georgia or from another state. I feel that it is important for him to understand students and to gain satisfaction from knowing that he is aiding Atlanta to make a truly in-town college."

JERRY ROSENBERG, sophomore: "If the state of Georgia cannot find an individual, a native Georgian, with the training and next president of Georgia State College should be chosen for his ability to help the position of the school, regardless of whether he comes from the faculty we have or another university."

NANCY J. EVANS, freshman: "In my opinion, the next president of Georgia State College should be someone who is acquainted with our Georgia system of schools and the Georgia way of life. It is a difficult job to enter a school and take up the work of president, leadership characteristics that are required of a college president, then something is wrong somewhere. A replacement for Dr. Sparks will not be an easy matter to decide upon, but for the sake of potentially great and already blossoming educational institution, one must be found. If all goes well, in future years Georgians will speak with pride of Georgia State College and its fought-for and well-earned educational standards and its outstanding Georgia educators."

ROSENBERG EVANS

Hair Tonic, Footprints, and Regents Main Problems Here

How long will it be before Georgia State's freshly painted walls are dedecorated with their usual bands of hair tonic and footprints?

A glance at the walls here would convince a visitor that Georgia State students were a blob of grease with big dirty feet. Training in most Georgia homes must not include the teaching of the fact that feet belong on the floor and not on the walls.

There is no reason why hair tonic, even the greasy kind, can't be used on the hair, but must it be rubbed off on the walls. If, however, Georgia State students just must use the walls for foot and head rests, why can't they use these television advertised greaseless hair tonics and follow the Japanese custom of removing the shoes when indoors.

If you are a grease blob with big dirty feet take heed, keep yourself off the walls. Your backbone, not the walls, was made to support you when standing.

THE GILMER st. building will not long remain a showplace in Georgia education if Georgia State students persist in treating the walls and other parts of the college in such a childish manner. Although this treatment of the walls is disgraceful, it is not the college's main problem. The gentlemen who make up the Board of Regents are the college's biggest problem.

It did not take the Regents long to find a man who they thought would be suitable to become Georgia State's next president. If they had to go out of state to find suitable candidates, they are apparently choosing from the best men outside Georgia, judging from their first choice, Dr. Harris of Tulane.

It's a pity that the Regents have not kept up their early speed in searching for a new president for the college. Not another sound has been heard out of them about the presidency.

IS THE PICKING of a president for Georgia State to be a repeat of the long, still unsettled, search for a new president of Georgia Tech?

More than the president situation is troubling Georgia State, however. The Board of Regents has performed a great disservice to the people of Georgia in their delay in giving Georgia State a degree program in arts and sciences.

Lest We Forget . . . Role of Part Time Profs Important

Lest we forget . . .

The most over-looked people in our College are the part-time professors. Now this should not be so.

The part-time professors are, for the most part, active businessmen who take the time and effort to come here either during the morning or evening and devote their time and abilities to the education of the young (and old) people who have a desire for knowledge.

HILL Now, I realize that the accreditation people require proportionately more full-time than part-time professors. However all of us should remember that our College was pushed along the rocky road of progress by many of these part-time professors.

When our College did not have the prestige or the money to hire full-time professors, these part-time professors heeded the call for help and came to the College to teach, and at one time carried the major part of the teaching load, especially at night.

Who can sympathize with the anquished moans periodically printed in the state's press about how crowded, Tech and Georgia are and how unless more money is given to them that they will have to turn some students away?

To anyone who knows about the situation at Georgia State these pleas are ridiculous. Even before the recent decline in enrollment, Georgia State could have handled more students. Georgia State has facilities, buildings, labs, etc. and professors enough to make it a cheap, in comparison with building new buildings at the University, to supply an education in arts and sciences for Georgia's growing college age population.

At their last meeting the Board of Regents did not even mention Georgia State. Does the Board of Regents think that ignoring Georgia State and its problems will cause the college and its problems to disappear?

IN THE early 1930s, Dr. George M. Sparks dreamed up the idea of a credit union for students. Of course, money was desperately needed to get the credit union started. Many of these same part-time professors put up money to help the credit union get established.

This action was only one of the many services the part-time faculty performed for the College. One of the more prominent services these part-time professors performed was that of obtaining jobs for the students who had to work in order to continue their education.

But the most important job these part-time professors accomplished is that of teaching. Without their knowledge of the business world, many students would have graduated or left our College without any idea of what the business world was like.

So, in appreciation for the diligent, commendable service they have performed, and are still performing, hats off to the part-time faculty.

SIGNAL EDITORIALS

Candidates Challenged

Attention.
The Signal hereby issues a challenge to all candidates who will be seeking offices in next month's student government elections.

The Signal challenges these candidates to submit a written platform to the Signal office which will be used for publication. This platform should include the planks upon which the students will seek elections.

The Signal has a specific reason behind this challenge. The Signal wishes to obligate the candidates to such an extent that they will be forced to do their part if elected.

In the past, student government has been functioning through the efforts of a few candidates who have been elected to office who did not share the responsibility.

The College is doing its part in seeing that all candidates meet scholastic qualifications. But, that is not enough.

It is up to the students themselves to see that the candidates elected are those who will represent them to the fullest extent.

But, let us clear up one thing.
The present fault in student government does not lie entirely within the government. The students who voted them in office without consideration of the importance of the job must assume some of the responsibility.

Eliminate those candidates who run on platforms of happy countenances and friendly smiles. Support those candidates who will not rest as long as there is a job to be done.

How can this be done, you may ask?
The answer is simple enough. Investigate all persons running for office. Are they doers or thinkers? Has their past record indicated that they are qualified to assume such an important job?

What Happened

Georgia State's gymnasium was closed more than two months ago. Today, it is still closed. And the cracked beam which caused the closing of the gym is still cracked.

The gym was acquired second hand from the army around ten years ago. Granted, it isn't much, but unfortunately it's all Georgia State has to offer to its students and guests.

Why hasn't the gym been repaired?
Evidently, the answer lies in the much-used but still appropriate phrase "red tape." Some people say that closing the gym was a blessing since the building and its facilities were in dire need of repair.

A blessing or not, Georgia State needs its gym. At present physical education classes are being held outside the College. The student lounge is being used for things formerly held in the gym.

The Signal at least hopes that the gym is repaired by the fall quarter. It's needed before then.

Student Headed for AF Cadets, Has 8 Years of Military Service

Four years in Air Force and two years in Japan and Korea did not dim the service career ambitions of Bob Duckworth.

In less than four weeks, Bob will be leaving Georgia State for the U.S. Air Force Aviation cadet school in San Antonio, Texas.

Yankee-born Duckworth graduated from Winchester (Mass.) high school and then moved to Georgia. Soon afterwards, in October 1949, he joined the Air Force. Duckworth served in Japan, Korea and Philippines during 1951-

53. He has a total of eight years military service.

Realizing the value of higher education, Bob decided to interrupt, temporarily, his chosen career and to attend Georgia State to further his education.

DURING HIS FIRST year here, he, with several other veterans started the Veterans' Club. He served as treasurer in 1955-56 and was elected president by acclamation in the fall of 1956. During his term as president, the membership of the Vets Club has tripled.

As president, Duckworth, in cooperation with the Atlanta Fire Department, initiated Georgia State Christmas Toys for Tots.

Duckworth saw the necessity of students taking a more active part in the student government and has been a member of the Student Council almost continuously since he entered college.

DUCKWORTH SERVED as president of the Marketing club in 1955-56 and secretary of Pi Sigma Epsilon, national sales fraternity, during the 1956-57 school year. He is also a member of the Newman club.

In 1955 he entered the advance R.O.T.C. program. He rose rapidly from cadet sergeant first class to cadet major and tactical officer of the First Battalion. After his first year he was appointed a distinguished military student (D.M.S.) with the offer of regular army commission instead of the usual reserve commission that is ordinarily offered a R.O.T.C. graduate.

Bob also served on the Constitutional committee of the General Council, which was responsible for the newly revised constitution. Duckworth also served as a reporter for the Georgia State Signal.

Not content with college activities, Duckworth appeared in several St. Thomas More-sponsored plays, among them "Harvey" and "You Can't Take it with You".

He also holds membership cards in the Knights of Columbus, Council 660, and the American Legion, Post one.

LIBRARY HAS MULTI-DUTIES
Jeanie Hetzner Assists Paul Cooper.

Library—A Place for Studying, Visiting, Loafing and Sleeping

The library at Georgia State is a familiar place to most students. Within its book-lined walls at almost any hour of the day or night can be found students doing term papers, homework, visiting, just plain loafing or even sleeping.

Most students are introduced to the library by way of a course called English 112, in which they receive a guided tour and all sorts of useful information about writing term papers.

However, many people must slip by English 112 because, according to Wilson Noyes, head librarian, one of the library's biggest problems is people who have no idea of what they're looking for, and even less idea of how to find it. He further stresses that the people at the desk are there for the purpose of helping the student find what he needs; however, this does not mean the librarians will write term papers or history book reports.

MANY PEOPLE ALSO try to check out reference books and magazines. Noyes emphasizes the books that can be checked out are located in the stacks and at the reserve desk. The stacks are found by going through the exit doors at the rear of the library.

The reserve books are also a problem. A professor will put so many books on reserve for his class and set a time limit on the books. When the student comes to check out a required book, he often finds some member of his class has the book and is likely to have it the rest of the quarter.

It is interesting to note that the very people who keep reserve books out the whole quarter are the ones who gripe about the huge fine they have to pay when they

In the month of February, over 98,000 books were checked out. This makes an average of about 350 books per day in circulation.

The library at this time is trying to become accredited. In order to accomplish this, circulation, the books going out and coming in, must be raised. If the students wish to help, they can check out more books.

CADET CORNER

By Cadet Captain Paul Bush
Cadet Regiment PIO

In this issue I shall give a brief past of two of the outstanding members in the senior military class, Mickey Sloane and James "Bud" Powell.

Charles Mickey Sloane, a Murphy High graduate in 1953, started at Georgia State in September, 1953. Since entering Georgia State, Mickey has been very active in many social and honor fraternities.

He became a member of Sigma Kappa Chi and served as vice-president in 1955-56. He was junior class vice-president in 1955-56 and is now serving as president of Sword and Shield Military Fraternity, president of Sigma Kappa Chi, and president of the Inter-Fraternity Council.

He is a member of Scabbard and Blade National Society, the Society for the Advancement of Management, and the General Council. He was selected for Who's Who in 1957. He is the regimental commander with the rank of cadet colonel and a distinguished military student.

Sloane will graduate in August, 1957, and will go on active duty in November, being stationed at Fort Eustis, Va., in the Transportation Corps.

JAMES "BUD" POWELL graduated from Decatur High in 1953. He received a football scholarship to the University of Georgia and played football for two years.

In June, 1955, due to an injury, he transferred to Georgia State. "Bud" is a distinguished military student with the rank of cadet major, serving as the executive officer of the Second Battalion.

He was in the honor company at summer camp in 1956. He is a member of the Sword and Shield Military Fraternity. "Bud" expects to graduate in June, 1958, with a major in Management.

An inspection team from Third Army Headquarters will conclude an inspection of Georgia State's military department today. This is an annual inspection. The inspection team includes two officers, Col. George Brown and Lt. Col. Robert Goldsmith.

The Military Department has 240 men enrolled for Spring Quarter. Thirty-nine men are in advanced standing and 201 make up the lower-division group.

Realm Of Confusion

Dark is the Dawn
For a banished heart
When love has flown
Forever to part.

Deep is the pain
Of unbalanced love—
Nothing so vain

Bitter the way
From such shattered dreams—
Never were hopes
More hopeless it seems.

On Life

There are some times that we regret
That we were ever born and yet
There are some times that life is swell
And rarer still sometimes it's hell.

But add the glories, then subtract
The miseries that so detract
To make it less than paradise—
Still all in all it's rather nice.

Dangerous Curves

I've laughed at Death—he's no stranger,
And often felt his presence keen,
But until now, not known such danger—
Please, wifey dear, don't look so mean.

Bedtime

It's nearing time
For her to call.
Yes, there she is,
Right on the ball.
She always calls
When it is time
To put away
My prose and rhyme.

My typing sheet -
And fix the cover
Nice and neat."

That does the trick.
Now for the light.
Here I come." (click)

Leave Me Not To Roam The Fields of Earth Alone

Leave me not to roam the fields
Of earth alone.
Without you the chance for sweet
Success is gone.
Leave me not the mighty mount
Of life to face.
Without you I'll get no farther
Than the base.
Leave me not to fight life's stormy
Way for I
Could never win without you, no

Leave me not—mere triumphs

For triumphs are not sweet when Victors are alone.
Leave me not but stand by me

And every battle faced, I cannot

What's Behind the Green Door? Library Room Poses This Query

By Richard Hammock
Signal Reporter

"What's behind the 'Green Door'?" is a question asked in a recently popular song. Well, the question, as far as the "Green Door" referred to in the song, is still unanswered.

However, Georgia State has a "Green Door" and what's behind it? The "Green Door" is the door leading to a room in the library. Many students never notice the door. Others, who notice it, may not be curious about it. Even some faculty members are not aware of the room behind the "Green Door."

In this room, called the Mason room, are some of Georgia State's more valuable books. Books that are old, that are rare, that are first editions, and the books in the James Walter Mason Collection.

The books are expensive and fragile from age. For these reasons the library requires that they be kept in a more closely supervised area.

The James Walter Mason Collection is the largest group of books kept in this room. This collection was bought in 1952 from the Atlanta attorney for whom it was named. Mason specified as a condition in selling his Collection that it be kept intact as a group.

The Mason Collection has a total of 2200 books, pamphlets, and periodicals. It includes books on Southern and Georgia history and literature. Georgia county histories are recorded in many of the volumes.

The Collection also has biographies of many historical Southerners, Sam Houston and Joel Chandler Harris. But its biographies, like its history and literature, are not limited to the South. The Collection has rare American works about other areas.

All the books in the Mason Collection are cataloged under the Dewey Decimal System, and cards for each book or periodical are kept in the card catalog in the Library. The word Mason is typed above the call number on each card.

Also included in the Mason room are books on sex and marriage. These books were written by doctors, psychiatrists and others who have a sincere desire to help young, engaged couples and husbands and wives have a more compatible marriage.

Interested students should take a look behind the "Green Door." Any of the books behind the door may be checked out by students except the Mason books. The latter may be used by students only in the Library.

SIGNAL SPORTS

Ah! It is spring and a young man's fancy turns to though of ... athletics, of course. This is the time of year to take advantage of all of nature's gifts.

The first sunny-day sees men and women of all ages heading for the nearest tennis court, golf link, or baseball diamond. This has been especially true at Georgia State. The turn out for spring sports was tremendous. Our tennis and golf teams have already begun play.

The baseball team is shaping up well. The I.F.C. softball season has also started off in a big way.

Georgia State has a good spring athletic program, but not a complete one. If it is to be a well rounded program, the track should be added to it.

YOU ARE all familiar with track. That is the sport where men in short pants and tee shirts run round in circles, jump over bars, and throw lead balls all at the same time.

Seriously, I believe that the addition of a track team would be an asset to the school's sports program. Track and field events are very popular in the South.

The Birmingham and Florida Relays are only two of the many meets entered by other schools in our state.

There are many advantages to having a track team at Georgia State. First, it allows for greater participation than any other sport. A good track team has 20 or more men on its squad.

Secondly, track meets would bring GSC in contact with many schools from this area, as well as schools from other parts.

A track meet can be held against one other team or as many as six teams at once. This would mean a much wider recognition of Georgia State than might be possible to get in any other way.

Greater student participation and better publicity for our school would be a sure way of building badly needed school spirit. A well planned track program would be a step in the right direction.

Of course, there is one major problem. Could we get enough students interested in track to form a team? I believe it can be done.

Judging first by the interest stimulated in the school's other activities, it would seem that a team could be organized with little trouble.

One other factor that influenced this discussion, was the quality of the high school track men in the state of Georgia. Our high school and prep schools have turned out many outstanding track men.

Many of these young men have become college standouts. Others did not have the opportunity to continue their athletic ability. Offering track at GSC might be a good drawing card for our school.

At the present time, we have many track prospects at school. Who knows, maybe one of the characters, who are constantly running from the cafeteria to the fourth floor in order to make a class is another Dave Sime or Bob Mathias.

Track would bring good publicity to our school. America's greatest Olympic stars have been discovered on the cinder tracks of her colleges and universities.

The one disadvantage to having a track team is the lack of facilities at Georgia State. This could be overcome. None of our other sports have any facilities of their own and yet they are very active.

We can have a track team, I believe, if enough interest can be aroused within the student body. I for one would like to see the Panther made to run.

Pi Alpha, SAN, SKChi Win in IFC Softball

BY JERRY TILLEM
Signal Sports Writer

Pi Alpha, Sigma Kappa Chi, and Sigma Alpha Nu were victorious in the first week of play in the Inter-Fraternity Council softball league.

Pi Alpha went on a 15-hit rampage in downing Tau Epsilon Phi 8-5, while Sigma Alpha Nu nosed out Pi Kappa Phi, 9-7, behind the five-hit pitching of Bob Taylor and Bill Stewart. In the other game, Sigma Kappa Chi won by forfeit over Sigma Phi Epsilon.

This Sunday's schedule pits Sigma Alpha Nu against Tau Epsilon Phi, Pi Kappa Phi against Pi Alpha, and Alpha Epsilon Pi against Sigma Kappa Chi. Action begins at 2 p.m. at Piedmont Park.

SAN GAINED first blood in its game when Taylor unloaded a home run with the bases empty in the top of the first inning. The victors added two more runs in the second stanza, but Pi Kappa Phi fought back with five runs in the bottom of the second to take the lead.

A six-run outburst in the third assured SAN of a victory in the league's opener. Stewart sewed up the game when he struck out two men in a row with the bases loaded in the third inning.

This game was marred by 18 bases on balls, 11 by Taylor and Stewart, and seven by the losing hurler, Tallent.

IN THE OTHER game, TEPHI grabbed a quick lead in the top of the first by virtue of a grand slam home run by Charlie Firestone. This lead was short lived, however, as Pi Alpha knotted the score in their half of the first and went on to win easily.

Pi Alpha's biggest inning was the third, when they sent 10 men across the plate. Walt Bieger's three-base hit was the big blow of the inning.

The winning pitcher was Bill Britton, while George Orner absorbed the loss.

Ertel, Chambers Win Griffin Flight Titles

Ivan Ertel and Harley Chambers, two members of Georgia State's golf team, won flight championships at the Griffin Invitational golf tournament last week end.

Two other members of the team, Don Sims and Willie Meares, also participated in the tournament. Sims finished tenth in the "A" division championships by posting a 27-hole total of 121. Meares lost in the fourth flight consolation, 3-2.

The tournament consisted of 27 holes of medal and match play. All flight championships were decided by match play.

Ertel fired a 27-hole 116 over the par 72 layout while defeating two opponents on his march to the third flight title. He won his first match by default, downed Jack Holland, 4-3 in his second match and annexed the title by defeating Ben Christie, 2-up.

Chambers, playing in the fourth flight, won his opening match, 3-2. He defeated J. E. Thomason 2-1 in his second match and won the championship with a 1-up victory over Frank Tigner. Chambers shot a 123.

Alpha Kappa Psi Holds 4 Functions

Dancing and bingo were features of the first two affairs and Dean of Students William M. Suttles was the feature speaker at the professional meeting. Dr. Henry Pepper, Professor of Hospital Administration here, also spoke at the professional meeting.

Burgess Sends Baseballers Through Paces

Georgia State's baseball team, still a year away from actual game competition, is going through its daily paces at Piedmont Park under the directorship of Coach Herbert Burgess.

Due to a late start, the Panthers will play a limited schedule which will probably include four games. Burgess says this team will actually be building for the 1958 season when Georgia State will play a full schedule.

Sixteen students are presently trying out for positions on the team, however, Burgess reports that other candidates are needed.

More persons are trying out for the pitching staff than any other position. At present, Lamar Seal, Charley Dobbs, Lamar Hammirck, Dexter Gatehouse, and Charles Whaley are fighting for starting positions.

BOB MCCOY and Bobby Craven are the only catchers on the squad. McCoy has played several seasons of amateur ball around the Atlanta area and turned down a professional offer in order to attend college.

Larry Barnes, another boy with amateur experience, is battling for the starting first base assignment. Around the infield, Homer Hannah at second, Gordon Chisholm and Bob Grimes at shortstop and Jim Stone at third are the most consistent performers.

Panther Tennis, Golf Teams Win First Match, Roll Over Oglethorpe

Win Breaks Four Game Losing Skein

On the strength of a good showing in the singles matches, Georgia State Panther netmen broke a five match losing streak last week at the expense of a good Oglethorpe team.

The Staters won four of six singles, and two out of three doubles.

The Panthers were hampered by the absence of their number one man, Al Griffith, due to injuries. One of the more improved players on the team, Roger Jones, took Griffith's spot but lost by a 6-3, 2-6, 6-1 score.

George McGee suffered the only other loss in the singles, losing 2-4, 3-6, 6-3 to his opponent, Pat McClon, playing out of the number five position, continued his winning ways, easily defeating his opponent 6-4, 6-3.

Jones and McClon combined to play perhaps the most exciting doubles match of the day. In a display of power and precision shots, the pair defeated their Oglethorpe opposition 6-1, 7-5.

GEORGIA STATE easily took the number three doubles match, 6-3, 6-0, with Parker and Strickland doing the honors.

Coach Francis Bridges was very pleased with the team's overall showing.

Bridges stated that "we will not win too many more this season, due to inexperience. We return all but two men from this year's squad, and will be ready for a much better year next year."

The tennis team will encounter Oglethorpe again on May 3. Erskine moves in on May 6 and the Panthers will close out their current season against Howard College of Birmingham a few weeks later.

The Georgia State tennis team suffered its fourth and fifth setbacks of the year two weeks ago at the hands of Mercer and Emory universities respectively. Mercer topped the Panthers on Friday by a 6-3 count, and Emory followed the next day with a 7-2 lashing.

The Friday match was a return match with the Mercer "Bears," who had previously defeated the Panthers in the season's opener by a 9-0 score. The results of the match indicated the improvement of the Staters, but the visitors were just a little too much for the first year Georgia State team.

Georgia State won two singles and one double match to account for its scoring. Coach Francis Bridges said that he was "pleased with the showing our boys made against this strong Mercer team, and feel that the boys are just beginning to show their real potential."

THE FOLLOWING day the team journeyed over to Emory University for the first of two scheduled matches. Emory rolled over the Panthers 7-2 in this one.

Darlington, Davidson To GS—Road Traveled By Crosland

By Howard Burnham
Sports Writer

Dr. Francis Bridges, coach of Georgia State's tennis team, is pleased with the College's first tennis team in many years.

One of the major reasons for his pleasure is a 6 ft. 3 in. young man named Bob Crosland, who is currently the number two man on the squad.

Crosland is 25 years old and has been playing tennis since he was 11 years old. He credits his interest in tennis to his father who was a good player in his day.

Bob's first team experience was with Darlington Prep School where he played on the varsity team. He later played at Davison College where he was a member of the freshman and varsity teams.

He gained considerable experience playing against members of the North Carolina and Duke freshman teams. Bob was to be promoted to the varsity team in his freshman year, but had to drop out of school before the spring quarter began.

CROSLAND attributes his tennis success to his lightning fast serve. He spent many long hours developing it, and he uses it with amazing accuracy. His forehand and backhand strokes are also good, and Bob hopes to improve them during this season.

Spring quarter will be Crosland's last and he will graduate with a major in management. He is married and plans to seek a career in selling this summer.

Crosland is not only a fine tennis player, but he is quite at home on any golf course. As a high school and college student, Bob won several tournaments in his home town of Charlotte, North Carolina, and participated in several in the state of Georgia.

Tennis, however, is his first love and for the present is his primary athletic interest. He was disappointed with his first two matches against Erskine and Furman, but he feels that he has not completely rounded into shape.

Coach Bridges, on the other hand, was not disheartened by Crosland's showing in South Carolina. Rather, he feels that Bob and the entire squad made a showing that brought a great deal of credit to Georgia State, and to the individual players.

Dr. Bridges is looking for a great deal of improvement and success from Crosland.

Ertel's 77 Paces Squad To Victory

Georgia State's linksters broke three game losing streak last week with a 17½-3½ match victory over neighboring Oglethorpe. Ivan Ertel, a letter winner with the 1956 golf team, was low medalist for the Panthers with a six-over-par 77 over the Meadowbrook country club layout.

Ertel blanked his opponent, Oglethorpe's Bob Oliver, 3-0 after missing the first three holes on a pair of bogeys and a par. Starting with hole number three, Ertel rolled six out of the remaining seven holes on the front side and five of the holes on the back side. His card also showed one birdie, a duce on the 3-par, 17th hole. "I was very happy to see him lay a good round," reported Panther Coach John Clayton. "He has always been hitting the ball well but wasn't able to score."

HARLEY CHAMBERS and Willie Meares also picked up three points for Georgia State by blanking Jack Hawkins and Jack Lane, respectively. Ellwood Hunt defeated Bruce Hauck, 2½-½ in the Panther victory.

Ed Marks accounted for Oglethorpe's only win of the afternoon by defeating Georgia State's number one man, Dave Thomas, 1-1. Thomas turned in scores of 75 and 78 in previous matches, but was unable to get going against Marks. On the 11th hole alone, he sent three balls into the lake.

In four-ball competition, the team of Ertel and Hunt downed the team of Hauck and Oliver, 1-1, while Chambers and Thomas teamed to defeat Hawkins and Marks, 3-0.

Oliver was low medalist for the afternoon for the visiting Petrels with an 81.

Prior to this match, the Panthers had suffered defeats in the hands of Mercer, Georgia and Chattanooga. Georgia State will meet Oglethorpe again tomorrow morning at Adams Park in an attempt to annex victory number two.

Leroy Thompson Named to All-Star Basketball Team

Leroy Thompson, two-year letterman with Georgia State's Panthers, was named to the all-star basketball squad last month following the Georgia Open Invitational Tournament at Sports Arena.

Playing with Spain Builders, Thompson was one of 10 players chosen to the squad. He scored 219 points and averaged 16.8 points a game in 13 games with Georgia State during the 1956-57 season.
