Pi Alpha Will Become PiKA Chapter Feb. 25

Group To Be Epsilon Nu Chapter of the Fraternity

The local Pi Alpha Fraternity will become the Epsilon Nu chapter of the national Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity Thursday, February 25.

The initiation ceremonies will take place at the St. Luke Episcopal Church in Atlanta at 6:30 p.m.

The Pi Alpha fraternity was founded at Georgia State in 1956. In 1957-58, in competition with the other organizations on campus, Pi Alpha won the Scholarship Award for having the best overall scholastic average.

Also among Pi Alpha's trophies is the interfraternity award for athletic achievement which has been won or shared by Pi Alpha for as long as the fraternity has been in existence.

Also the fraternity recently won the stereo set in the Marlboro contest.

In several ways Pi Alpha fraternity has been Pi Kappa Alpha since its inception in 1956. The Pi Alpha fraternity pin is the exact replica of the "Pike" pin, omitting only the shield and the "K" on the face of the diamond.

Since the first meeting of Pi Alpha the ultimate goal has been to obtain a charter from the Pi Kappa Alpha national fraternity.

Atlanta is the first city in the United States to have three Pi Kappa Alpha chapters. The other chapters in Atlanta are located at Emory and Georgia Tech.

The Pi Kappa Alpha national fraternity was founded in 1868 at the University of Virginia. Today there are 132 chapters throughout the United States with the national headquarters located in Memphis, Tennessee.

In recognition of the transition from Pi Alpha to Pi Kappa Alpha, a reception will be held Thursday, February 25, from 10:00 a.m. to 11:00 a.m. in the student lounge. Coffee and tea will be served to all fraternities, sororities, and departmental heads of the faculty and the administrators at the college.

At 2:00 p.m. the same day Pi Kappa Alpha will be formally in-

Dean and Mrs. Paul G. Blount will hold a reception at their home at 2022 Briarcliff Road, N.E. on Sunday, February 28, for the members, pledges and their dates.

Dean Blount, faculty advisor of Pi Alpha, will also be initiated as a member of the Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity.

Jon Williams, Pi Alpha President, stated that through the efforts of the Pi Alpha brothers and alumni, combined with the outstanding contributions of Dean Blount, Pi Alpha will become as essential to Pi Kappa Alpha as it already is to Georgia State.

Mardi Gras Will Be Held At College February 26-27

The splendor of old New Orleans will come alive for our students and faculty February 26 and 27.

These are the dates of Georgia State's Mardi Gras. Friday the 26 will be carnival night and Saturday the 27 will be revelry night.

Carnival night will be devoted exclusively to concessions operated by member organizations of the General Council, said Bill Beasley, general chairman of the General Council sponsored event.

Revelry night will feature a costume ball. The King and Queen of Mardi Gras will be crowned and the best dressed individuals and couples will be announced at the ball.

Beasley urged strongly that everyone who comes to the ball wear a costume; face masks will be given out at the door.

"The faculty and their families are invited to the carnival," Beasley continued. "The various types of concessions should be very entertaining for everybody: students, faculty and children."

Jimmy Jones, entertainment chairman, said that he has contracted the Debonaires to provide music at the ball. They have six pieces and a vocalist.

Phil and Nancy Ericson of Wit's End will entertain the students with their well-known pantomime adaptations, Jones said.

Beasley said he strongly urges the night students to attend both the carnival and the ball.

CHANCELLOR — Dr. Harmon W. Caldwell, Chancellor of the Board of Regents, was the guest at the winter quarter luncheon for the Day Student Council. President Linda Brown introduced him to the members of the Council.

GSC Professors Work With Tech, Georgia On Seminar

Georgia State College, the University of Georgia and Georgia Tech have joined forces to present a ten-week small business management seminar for middle Georgia.

The course began Tuesday, February 16, at 7:30 p.m. in the Civic room of the Macon Municipal Auditorium. The course will continue for nine consecutive Tuesdays.

Professors from the three institutions will teach subjects in which they are specialists such as policy making, planning, analyzing economic conditions and training employees.

Faculty members from Georgia State College who will be participating in the seminar are Dr. Frances J. Bridges, department of management; Dr. George J. Malanos, chairman of the department of economics, finance and statistics, and D. E. T. Eggers, associate professor of management.

The seminar is being presented in Macon in cooperation with the Macon Chamber of Commerce and the United States Small Business Administration. The seminar is being administered through the University of Georgia Center for Continuing Education.

J. Eugene Weldon of the Georgia Center for Continuing Education said that the Macon seminar is a new approach in which three sponsoring institutions bring the classroom to the businessman who may be too busy to spend a week or two on a college campus. He added that the sponsoring colleges look forward to the possibility of serving other areas of the state of Georgia in a similar manner.

The course is designed, Weldon said, to benefit owners, managers, and other information students should write the educational director, University of Alabama, Drawer I, University of Alabama.

The deadline for submitting applications is March 4, 1960.

Fellowships Open In Public Service For B.A. Graduates

Students interested in public affairs and public service careers who will receive their B.A. in June have been offered an opportunity to apply for fellowships to study at three different universities. The fellowship grants $1,700 a year plus college fees. Each fellowship approximates $2,200 in total value.

Beginning this June, fellows will serve three months with a public agency such as TVA or a department. In the 1960-61 school session they will take graduate courses at the Universities of Alabama, Kentucky, and Tennessee.

Completion of the twelve-months' training period entitles fellows to a certificate in public administration. They can be awarded a masters degree at either of the three universities attended upon completing a thesis and passing examinations.

For eligibility requirements and other information students should write the educational director, University of Alabama, Drawer I, University of Alabama.

The deadline for submitting applications is March 4, 1960.

The Regents Authorize College To Enter Contract Georgia State Will Assist Association Research

At its last meeting the Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia authorized Georgia State College to enter a two-year contract with the Southern Association of Science and Industries, Inc., an organization of large Southern companies.

The essence of the contract is that Georgia State will take over the administrative and research activities of the association and will help the association expand its program of studying development opportunities in the South.

The Sunday, February 14, edition of the Atlanta Journal-Constitution stated that "It (the contract) is a prize plum for more reasons than one. It is also considered a signal honor for the school since Georgia State was selected by the association after consideration of top colleges and universities in the South."

College personnel in charge of the program for the association will be Dr. George Manners, dean of School of Business Administration, and Dr. Willys Knight, head of the Bureau of Business and Economic Research at Georgia State College.

Georgia State has several important facilities which will aid in administering the program. These facilities are the new computer center, a statistics labora-

Commerce Group Elects John Hall, Dr. George Manners

Dr. George E. Manners, dean of the School of Business Administration has been elected chairman of the Commerce and Industry Committee of the University System of Georgia.

John W. Hall, associate professor of insurance at Georgia State College, was elected secretary to the committee.

Other members of the committee are J. Hubert Greene, Georgia Southwestern College; Dean James E. Gates of the College of Business Administration, University of Georgia; Robert T. Segrest, University of Georgia; Dr. Walter Buckingham and Dr. John L. Fulmer, Georgia Institute of Technology; Spyros J. Dalis, Augusta College; Roy V. Zeagler, Middle Georgia College.

Glen W. Herrin, Columbus College; Newton Oakes, North Georgia College; L. P. Minglehoff, South Georgia College; Joe F. Specht, Georgia State College for Women; Mrs. Birmell D. Rivers, Albany State College; Hayward S. Anderson, Savannah State College; Lamar W. Davis, Armstrong College; Dr. Lloyd Toumey and Parrish Blitch, Georgia Southern College; Miss Lois Pope, Abraham Baldwin Agricultural College; and James B. Dales, Valdosta State College.

tered by the association formerly were handled by Conway Publications here. H. McKinley Conway, Jr., editor and publisher of the Conway Company, said the organization had been seeking for some time to put the program in the hands of a top-flight professional organization on a long-time basis.

The Journal-Constitution then went on to say that the association decided that Georgia State College met these standards.

The association was formed in 1941 as a regional project to promote over-all economic growth in the South according to the Journal-Constitution.

In discussing Georgia State College itself the Journal-Constitution stated that "Chancellor Harmon W. Caldwell recently referred to the downtown college as the institution with 'probably the greatest potential' for serving Georgia's education-hungry young people."

Georgia State Is Chosen To Participate in Survey

After college what? There are many possibilities graduate school, the professions, business, teaching or research.

Answers to the question, After college what?, are being sought from seniors in 30 colleges and universities throughout the South.

By providing information pertaining to their own career plans, today's seniors can help colleges of the South plan better programs more suited to the need of students in years to come.

Georgia State College is one of the schools participating in the study which is sponsored by the Southern Regional Education Board and the Southern College

Personnel Association

Georgia State seniors have received or soon will receive a questionnaire which they are asked to fill in and mail directly to Florida State University, where all the information will be coded and analyzed. No individual will be identified in this study. All the responses will be completely confidential, but the summaries of the answers will be very important to Georgia State College and other colleges and universities.

It is highly important that all questionnaires be completed since the replies of seniors in the sample institutions will provide a basis for estimating trends among all seniors in the Southern region.

More Majors Authorized On February 10

Four new majors have been added to the degree program at Georgia State College.

The Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia authorized programs leading to Bachelor of Arts degrees with majors in economics, philosophy, modern languages and mathematics at the college.

This authorization was made at the February 10 meeting of the Board of Regents.

The Board of Regents also authorized the College to purchase a tract of land on Decatur Street.

Marcelle Cartee Is Crowned Goddess of Greek Week

The Greek Week Dance held Friday, February 5, at the Hellenic Center ended a week of Greek activities at the College. Winners of the Sing Night and Skit Night, and the Greek Goddess and her court were announced at the dance.

Among the sororities' entries, Delta Zeta won first place for Sing Night, Alpha Omicron Pi won second place, and Alpha Phi took the third place trophy.

Sigma Nu accepted the first place trophy for Sing Night among the fraternities. Kappa Sigma was second place winner and Pi Alpha was judged the third place winner.

Sing Night was held Monday, February 1, in the Student Lounge. Winners of the Skit Night activities held in the Student Lounge Wednesday night were for the sororities, Alpha Omicron Pi first place; Delta Zeta, second place; and Alpha Phi, third place.

Title of the A. O. P.'s winning skit was "Beat Greek."

Among the fraternities in Skit Night, Kappa Sigma won first place with their Greek "Summit Meeting." Second place trophy went to Sigma Nu, and third place to Pi Kappa Phi.

Best Actress award went to Susan Watson for her portrayal of Helen of Troy in the Alpha Phi skit. The best actor award was presented to Bobby Dodd of Pi Alpha who played the part of the wolf in "Little Red Riding Hood." Eleanor Fortenberry received a special award for being runner-up as the Best Actress. She sang "I Want to Be Evil" in the Alpha Omicron Pi skit.

Toddie Wade and Margaret Mitchell received special awards for their duo performance representing Kappa Theta during Sing Night.

Alpha Epsilon Pi's Frank Rochelle received an award for his singing at Sing Night festivities.

Marcelle Cartee, a member of Delta Zeta sorority and sweetheart of Kappa Sigma fraternity, was crowned 1960 Greek Goddess. Kitty Stretch, 1959 Greek Goddess, crowned the new goddess.

Runners-up in the Greek Goddess contest were Carol Sligh, Delta Zeta, and Helene Duke, a Kappa Theta, who is sweetheart of Pi Kappa Phi.

Music for the dance was furnished by the Auburn Knights. Judy Kenney, Delta Zeta, and Buddy Dennard, Sigma Phi Epsilon, were co-chairmen of all Greek week activities.

GREEK GODDESS — Marcelle Cartee was crowned Greek Goddess for 1960 at the dance at the Hellenic Center. On the Goddess' court are Carol Sligh and Helene Duke.

FIRST PLACE TROPHIES — Awards for the winning sorority and fraternity songs and skits were presented at the Greek Week dance. Bob Daws holds the Sigma Nu award for fraternity sing. Claire Dempsey received Alpha Omicron Pi trophies for first place skit and second place sing. Delta Zeta keeps the first place trophy for sing and second place skit award held by Poch Richardson. The Kappa Sigmas won first place for their skit and were second in the sing; Harold Riggs poses with those trophies.

SIGNAL EDITORIALS

Four New Majors

The adding of four new majors to the Bachelor of Arts program by the University System of Georgia Board of Regents is another step forward for the college.

The Signal in behalf of the student body at Georgia State College would like to thank the Board of Regents for authorizing the college to offer these four new majors.

Georgia State students are proud of their college and they like to see it advance and not become stagnated.

For this reason they are continuously looking forward to the future of the college and what they hope the future will bring to the institution.

In behalf of the student body at Georgia State College the Signal is asking the Board of Regents to authorize three things for the college.

These three things are: (1) authorize the college to offer an art major (2) authorize Georgia State to offer a journalism major, and (3) change the name of the college from Georgia State College of Business Administration to a name which is more appropriate for the college.

We, the Signal, feel that these requests are not far-fetched requests which should take years to be granted.

We believe that both the art department and the journalism department are qualified to offer majors and we also believe that there are enough students interested in majoring in these two subjects to warrant a major being offered by the college.

And as for the name of the college several editorials have already been printed in the Signal concerning this matter. The name Georgia State College of Business Administration is: (1) too long to have to write out (2) is no longer appropriate because Georgia State offers more degrees than just the Bachelor of Business Administration.

Please, Board of Regents, will you not give our three requests careful consideration at your next meeting?

Greek Week

The Greek Week Activities this year were a big success. Judy Kentey and Buddy Denard deserve recognition for the fine job they did as co-chairman of Greek Week.

The week served to bring the social sororities and fraternities and perhaps the college as a whole closer together.

There was an air of secrecy and stiff competition around the entire college during Greek Week, but it was friendly competition.

To the winners of Sing Night and Skit Night the Signal extends congratulations.

Also in order to be congratulated is Miss Marcelle Cartee, who was crowned the 1960 Greek Goddess at the dance.

Congratulations

On Thursday, February 25, a dream that began with the inception of Pi Alpha, local social fraternity at the college, will become a reality.

It is on this day that Pi Alpha will receive its charter from Pi Kappa Alpha, national social fraternity. Pi Alpha will be installed as the Epsilon Nu chapter of the national fraternity.

The Epsilon Nu chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha will become the seventh national social fraternity at the college.

This day will go down in the history of the college just as the days are now marked when the other six fraternities received their national charters.

The Signal would like to congratulate the officers, members and alumni of the Pi Alpha fraternity upon achieving this goal.

It is the Signal's hope that the fraternity will continue to add its services to the college as it has done in the past.

Future Editors

Sometime during the next quarter editors for the Signal and for the Rampway will be chosen by the Student Publications committee.

Although still several weeks away, it is time to begin to think about who will be the editors of next year's publications.

Any student with at least a 3.0 grade point average is eligible to apply for the position of editor of either publication, if he so desires. It is suggested that any student desiring to apply for either position talk with the current editor of that publication. However, prospective editors should be cautioned about one thing. No one should even think of accepting the job of editor of either the Signal or the Rampway without realizing that the job will require much time and effort.

The Rampway and the Signal play an important part in the life of the college. Both serve the purpose of keeping a record of the college's progress.

There are a great number of students at Georgia State who are capable of editing either one or the other of the publications.

The Signal would like to encourage these students to submit their application for one of the positions to the Dean of Students office promptly when the nominations are announced.

Somewhere in Georgia State College now are next year's editors of the Signal and Rampway. Apply.

Signal Agrees

An article in the Atlanta Journal-Constitution on Sunday, February 14, proclaimed "Regents' Act Opens Frontier For Georgia State Expansion."

This article was referring to two specific acts of the Board of Regents at their recent meeting.

The first act was that of the authorization of ten two year contract with the Southern Association of Science and Industry, Inc. and Georgia State.

The second act referred to was the purchase of additional land on Decatur Street.

The Signal agrees with the Atlanta Journal-Constitution in its statement that both acts by the Board of Regents was good news to everyone connected with Georgia State.

The Signal believes that both Georgia State College and the Southern Association of Science and Industry will gain much by the two-year contract.

The College is truly honored that the Association, after consideration of other top colleges and universities in the South, chose Georgia State for its program.

Governor's Interest in College Is Needed, Appreciated

High on the Governor's proposed list of expenditures, as publicly announced in his address to the Legislature, is an "all purpose building" for Georgia State College.

This building would be a gymnasium-auditorium primarily, with room for other features. Buildings of this type are a prime necessity for the future growth of the college, if we are to meet increasing collegiate standards.

Think what it would be like to walk only a few steps into one of our own buildings for a P. E. class. And how about being able to play host to visiting basketball teams in our own gym. Intramurals could be strengthened and enlarged to include more groups of students.

We could even have a place to hold assemblies for the entire student body not just the 300 or so who can be squeezed into the Student Lounge at present. The Players could have a stage without pillars, and perhaps even dressing rooms. The newly-formed Bridge Club would not have to be deposed each registration period Ad infinitum.

This one building is certainly not the answer to all our space problems, but it would be a giant step in the direction of needed expansion.

Our library should have a reading room of double the existing area. Students have suggested adding conference rooms (where smoking might be permitted); a microfilm room; small cubicles for individual study. Students of our new modern languages major would appreciate a record room with vocabulary-building aids like most colleges have by now.

And with the administrative offices multiplying like rabbits in Australia, additional classrooms will soon be needed. Like Topsy, our "all purpose" building could grow and grow. We'd soon need another building, or perhaps a Student Union. (It's a good thing the college has been buying more and more land; it will soon be needed, and until then, parking, space for everyone!)

We hope to get the allotment for the building. It will be worth ten times the amount to the students who at present must commute to phys ed class, forego athletic events, and study in a crowded library.

While our campus will never be spread over half the town, we applaud the Governor for taking the initiative in letting our needs be known to the Legislature. Though still little more than a 10 o'clock break topic at this writing our new building may soon be on the architect's drafting board.

Poll Reveals Night Students Against Extra Activities

The conclusion of a recent poll taken among night school students revealed that additional outside activities were not particularly desired by these students.

When asked if additional extracurricular activities should be made available to night school students, a majority of those asked replied with an emphatic "no," attesting to the lack of time in their present schedules.

In agreement with this problem was Carol Owens who said, "Unfortunately the night school students' time is generally so limited that there is little chance for his participation in extracurricular activities."

Minton Tinsley said that "night school students were not interested in extracurricular activities due to a lack of school spirit. This might be improved by creating enthusiasm among the students by holding contests between the day students and night students."

Inez Walker replied, "I have little time for extracurricular activities; however, there are many who know very little about the ones available." Ann Fatiz says, "Most of the students in night school either work or go to day school; therefore, what could be added?"

W. C. Gilbert said he also feels that "night school students do not need extracurricular activities because most of them work in the day and do not have time for them."

Another example of this is the reply of R. A. Dana who said, "I prefer no extracurricular activities in connection with my attendance in night school." This was also typical of Betty Childs who replied, "I don't have time for extracurricular activities, with night school and working."

Don Warren explained that "the average night school student does not have time for extracurricular activities, however they could be encouraged to get to know each other. I have known students in night school who couldn't name five friends made at Georgia State in a four year period."

Mary Rogers admits that "The people who go to night school, come just in time to eat supper and go to class. Only those elected to Student Council have anything to do with the available activities."

On the other hand Lavilla Warren, a member of the day student Council said that we always have hoped that night students could and would take a greater interest in extracurricular activities. Any such interest increases not only school spirit but the personality of each individual.

J. C. Gaston as well as Larry Richards both agreed that more extracurricular activities should be added to the students' agenda.

Still another concept was that of J. Winn who said, "If you mean extracurricular and social clubs, I don't feel that night students would be as interested in them as they would be in speakers. I would like very much to see the college support some lecturers or educational speakers."

Eloise Hunt, who says she feels that no additional activities are needed, said, "Night school students do not have time for anything but studying, research and more research."

Laughter Can Alleviate The Greatest of Tensions

There is bound to come into the life of every editor a feeling of complete uselessness. There must surely be moments when most editors begin to wonder if she is doing anything right or if she is satisfying anyone.

My moment for such a feeling came a few weeks ago. I was sitting in the Signal Office wishing the quarter would hurry and come to an end and that the chronic complainers would take a long vacation.

With a feeling that everything in the office was closing in on me, I frantically began to look for something to do which would take my mind off the whole thing. The first thing I found which did not have anything to do with Georgia State was a newspaper from another college.

Turning to the editorial page, I began to read a column which caught my eye.

In this particular editorial the editor was stating in emphatic and almost desperate tones his grievances.

His biggest gripe was people who constantly complained about the newspaper without doing any work on it themselves. He did not write just a couple of hundred words on the subject, he went on for lines and lines and lines and lines. In fact I began to wonder if he were ever going to stop.

As I read the editorial, I thought to myself, "I know exactly how you feel!" He was putting into words in the newspaper some of the very thoughts I had thought many times.

And then I began to laugh and the more I thought about the whole thing the harder and the longer I laughed.

Here I had been sitting in the Signal office feeling lonely and blue and misunderstood. I had been feeling as though I were the only person in the world who had the same kind of problems I have in editing the newspaper. A few minutes before I had felt like giving up the whole thing as hopeless.

And now here I was laughing at the whole thing. And I kept thinking, "I'm not alone in my feelings."

Suddenly the whole thing did not seem so important or serious after all.

And I remembered reading recently a quotation from Mark Twain in his "The Mysterious Stranger."

"Power, money persuasion, supplication, persecution—these can lift a colossal humbug, push it a little, weaken it a little, century by century; but only laughter can blow it to rags and atoms at a blast. Against the assault of laughter nothing can stand."

Yes, laughter is a wonderful gift.

Kappa Sig Loses Horn At LaGrange on Friday

A number of Kappa Sigma actives barely avoided a fist encounter with LaGrange College's male student population last Friday night, after losing a hand-horn.

The fraternity chartered a special bus to LaGrange to see the Georgia State-LaGrange basketball game.

Carrying musical instruments of sorts, the actives and their dates, including members of the Signal staff, cheered the Panthers to a close defeat.

Shortly after the game, when most of the visitors had boarded the bus, three LaGrange students jumped on unsuspecting Charles Davis and seized his hand-horn.

After signaling for help, Davis and three other actives followed the growing number of LaGrange students toward the main campus.

Cornering a segment of the retreating students in a refreshment room similar to our Refectory, the four Kappa Sigs looked for the horn and any threatening movement from the fifteen-or-so LaGrangers in the room.

Finding nothing of either, the four left and walked toward the bus.

Harold Riggs, president of the chapter, met them coming and said impatiently, "Let's go. Everybody's on the bus waiting for y'all."

"Like they've got our horn Tiny and we ain't leaving 'till we get it back," said I, one of the four.

"Who's horn?"

"Davis'."

"They got your horn, Charlie?"

"Yeh, they got it. Three of 'em jumped me coming out of the gym and ran up the hill."

Riggs then said he had seen a group of boys carrying something in a nearby dormitory.

"Suppose we go get it," said I. The actives in the bus were signalled and in a few minutes everyone approached the dorm in question.

A figure reaped with antiquity, wearing a policeman's uniform, stopped the boys from entering the dorm.

Thereupon he was asked to find the horn.

Several LaGrange students were on the porch facing the Kappa Sigs who were on the steps. At the drop of a dime, they would have been at each others' throats.

LaGrangers Retreat

But the wind was cold and biting and the LaGrangers retreated to the warm lobby.

After a supposed search of the building, the dorm daddy returned to say that he couldn't find the horn.

Panther coach Stoney Burgess walked up and persuaded the Kappa Sigs to leave.

After leaving the town Riggs said they would get the horn back.

"When they came up here (Atlanta) to play, we treated them like guests and didn't charge them anything to get in. After charging us 75 cents to get in here and swiping our horn, it just goes to show they aren't grateful or hospitable," Riggs said.

Dozier Fleming, vice president of the chapter, had this to say about the episode, "We get more things stolen from us than any fraternity I know."

People Often Overlook Some Of the Real Jewels in Life

There are gems of wondrous brightness . . . oftentimes lying at our feet, and we pass them, walking thoughtlessly, down the busy, crowded street. If we knew our pace would slacken, we would step more oft with care. Lest our careless feet be treading To the earth some jewel rare. —Bessie Smith.

Such is true of all who walk the path of life. The "gems of wondrous brightness" are those everyday things so often taken for granted. They far exceed the largest sum of money.

One of the most priceless, and yet most inexpensive, is friendship. This is the relationship in which two persons have mutual admiration for each other. The desire to help each other is always present. It must be a two-way proposition; in order to have it, one must give it. Otherwise the term "friendship" is misused.

The "glitter" of the "gem" is not always recognized by the average person who looks depressed. A smile or a "hello" to the despondent passer-by might have been the cheer he needed and thus have been the beginning of a beautiful, life-long friendship. In failing to help someone in need, "careless feet tread to the earth some jewel rare."

There is no limit to the number of such "gems" that can be acquired. If search for them is begun early and just one day is found and collected so that they may be placed with the many other "found jewels" soon there will be a "treasure chest of happiness" overflowing.

A Battle Group Sweetheart will be named from among nine sponsors elected by the various organizations of the Military Department at the Military Ball on 4 March. Representing the Military Fraternities will be: Anne Fattig, Scabbard and Blade; Anne Daubenspeck, Sword and Shield; and Judy Lewis, Pershing Rifles. For the Companies: Diane Burks, Company A; Penny Hill, Company B; Eleanor Brinsfield, Company C; Carol Sligh, Company D; and Linda Brooks, Company E. Connie Loy is the Military Band's sponsor.

The Ball, held at Peachtree Gardens, will be a formal affair to which the entire student body is invited. The Committee in charge reports much progress in preparation, and an outstanding event is anticipated.

S. F. C. J. R. Lee, Rifle Team Coach, has some good news to report. In recent postal matches Georgia State defeated the University of Puerto Rico, the University of Tennessee (Martin Branch) and Virginia State College. Although the squad got a late start this year and was mostly made up of newcomers, they are coming through in splendid style.

Coach Lee has this to say: "The team has shown steady improvement since the season began. Individuals who have devoted considerable time and effort deserve special mention; they are: G. W. Kilgore, H. W. Askew, R. A. Dewees, B. G. Johnson, E. White, C. Van House, H. Partridge and J. F. McGurk. The team will always welcome anyone who would be interested in trying for a place on the team. The team is looking forward with optimism to its coming matches.

Professor Seiber of the Music Department and Director of the Cadet Choir has announced that he is scheduling several concerts at high schools as well as here at Georgia State. The group has increased in size from last quarter so that better balance has been attained; there are presently 14 cadets in the organization. Those participating receive one quarter hour credit from the school and wear a red and white forragere with their uniform.

On the military fraternity scene, Sword and Shield and Pershing Rifles have pledged a number of cadets for the winter quarter. For Sword and Shield Mike Allen, Bob Daws, Billy Johnson, Jeff Lynch and Joe Tolman have taken the pledge. Cadet Allen is pledge-captain and Buddy Vaughan is pledge-master. For Pershing Rifles cadets Larry Flowers, Carl Hampton and John McGurk make up the new pledge class.

Well known for their drill teams, the Pershing Rifles will give a sample of their proficiency at the Military Ball. In the more distant future they are planning a trip to Greenville, South Carolina, where the Regimental Drill for this national society will be held (Georgia State's chapter is designated Company T of the 4th Regiment).

The competitive events at Greenville will include: platoon drill, fancy; platoon drill, 22-5; basic individual, 22-5; advanced individual, 22-5; squad drill, 22-5; and a rifle match for two of the basic cadets.

On Friday, 5 February, President Lynn Daubenspeck of Sword and Shield entertained the brotherhood and new pledges with a stag party at his home. According to a member in attendance the evening not only was quite successful in providing social diversion and fellowship but some interesting and unusual training films were requisitioned for the occasion.

On the basis of his Distinguished Military Student standing, Cadet-Major Joe Bryan has applied for a Regular Army Commission. His application is now being considered by the Department of the Army.

The Senior Cadet's branch assignments are due to come through any day now. Almost every branch will be represented by the Senior Class; it has become customary for Senior Cadets to display the lapel insignia of their chosen branch as the orders come through.

SCALE MODELS. As a part of their training in MGT 430, William Edwards and Harry Ivey solve a case problem, using scale models of heavy industrial machinery.

Production Lab Accentuates Industrial Efficiency Study

Did you realize that Georgia State College has a laboratory and highly competent faculty devoted to teaching students to recognize and eliminate waste and inefficiency in industrial activities?

The College's Ivy Street Building has a large air-conditioned room with valuable equipment intended to help management students of today learn by doing so that they will be the better managers of tomorrow.

THE PRODUCTION LABORATORY was started in 1954 by the installation of various equipment to facilitate the teaching of certain management courses including production control, quality control, plant layout, motion and time study, and advanced time study. The production lab began on a small basis with a $1,200 allocation and has gradually accumulated additional equipment over the years, so that the present estimated value of the Lab equipment is $7,000.

The man who deserves much of the credit for the installation of this facility, which the Georgia State Alumnus has called "one of the best production laboratories in a southeastern college," is Dr. E. T. Eggers, associate professor of management.

"The management department and School of Business Administration are greatly indebted to Dr. Eggers, for it was he who, within the limitations of the Ivy Street Building, designed the production laboratory and recommended the purchase of all the original equipment," stated Dr. James E. Chapman, chairman of the management Department.

Two other men who aided in the development of the lab were George E. Manners, Dean of the School of Business Administration, and the late Dr. George M. Sparks, the master-builder and first president of Georgia State College.

THE OBJECTIVES of the production laboratory are "to allow students to become familiar with various types of equipment used in production courses and especially to acquaint them with practical problems which arise in various production situations such as plant layout and motion and time study," said Dr. Eggers. The students benefit through working out actual problems in the laboratory wherein it is possible to duplicate many common industrial operations.

The equipment used to implement these objectives includes time-study watches and other delicate timing devices, various hand tools and machines and scale models of industrial machinery which can be used for demonstration purposes and the study of actual industrial plant-work situations.

In addition to the equipment mentioned, one of the production lab's most useful items is a Bell & Howell motion picture projector equipped with a frame counter, a device which enables individual slides of a film to be shown in slow motion or stopped together. Complementing this projector is a small film library dealing with various aspects of production courses. An opaque projector is used to show slides.

CONCERNING THE FUTURE, three new plans may develop relative to the production laboratory. One is the big use of the lab for a graduate course, MGT 850 (Production Management), taught by Dr. Francis Bridges, professor of management.

Advanced Chemistry For BBA Students Available in Spring

Chemistry 430, Industrial Chemistry, will be offered at Georgia State for the first time Spring Quarter. George E. Manners, dean of the School of Business Administration, announced.

The course is a study of unit operations which are common to production industries such as heat transfer, fluid flow, evaporation, distillation and others.

With a basic knowledge of these operations it is possible to evaluate the efficiency of a production industry, at least in part, Dean Manners said. This type of evaluation should interest students majoring in such fields as management, investments, banking, economics and insurance, Dean Manners added.

Pre-requisite for the course is Chemistry 122.

Dean Manners stated that he "urges all business juniors and seniors who have completed Chemistry 122 to consider favorably adding this course to their elective program. Science generally, including chemistry, plays an increasingly important role in all business activities — and affects sales personnel, accountants, managers, finance personnel, economists, and many other categories of business leadership."

Dr. H. Pepper Leads Faculty Sponsors For Four Classes Are Named Here

Dr. Henry C. Pepper will serve as the conference leader on the subject of administration for the annual meeting of the membership of the Georgia Association of Nursing Homes and Homes for the Aged.

Dr. Pepper is the director of the hospital administration program at Georgia State College.

The meeting of the association will be held on February 23 at the Center for Continuing Education at the University of Georgia in Athens.

At the meeting of the Day School Student Council on January 18, Linda Brown, president of the Council, named the faculty sponsors for the four classes.

Each class is to have a class project which will be voted on by the Senate.

Bob Roberts, president of the freshman class, reported to the Senate that the Freshman Class would like to have Freshman Orientation next Fall as its class project.

Dick Foote, president of the Sophomore Class, told the Senate of plans of the Sophomore Class to buy something for the school such as a Hi-Fi set or a movie projector.

Bill Beasley, Junior Class president, asked the Senate to approve the handling of the Junior-Senior reception by the Junior class. This request was approved by the Senate.

Jon Williams, senior class President, reported to the Senate that the Senior Class would like to do some service for the school. No definite plans have yet been made by that class.

Professor Publishes Accounting Article

John W. Cook, assistant professor of accounting, has an article in the January issue of The Accounting Review, the publication of the American Accounting Association. The title of the article is "Public Accounting Experience for Private Accountants."

Signal News Editor Position Is Open For Applications

The Georgia State Signal has an opening for news editor, Martha Free, Signal editor announced.

Requirements for the position are willingness to work and the time to work, Miss Free said.

Experience on a high school or college newspaper will be helpful but is not absolutely necessary.

Anyone applying for the job should have at least two or three hours available each day to spend in the Signal office.

The news editor is responsible for assigning news stories and seeing that the stories are turned in on time. He is also responsible for writing a column for each issue of the Signal.

Pay for the position of news editor is twenty dollars per month.

Any student interested in applying for the position should contact Martha Free in the Signal office.

Kappa Sigma's Elect Officers For This Year

Kappa Sigma fraternity has elected new officers to serve until the end of this school year.

Harold Riggs was re-elected Grand Master.

The new officers are Dozier Fleming, Grand Procurator; Chuck Armer, Grand Master of Ceremonies; Philip Latimer, Grand Scribe; Tom Swain, Grand Treasurer, and Bill Beasley, executive committeeman-at-large.

John Lanier and Bill Baker were elected Guards. Norton Newman and Buddy Smith were elected as assistants to the secretary and treasurer, respectively. Monty Montgomery was appointed social chairman.

The installation of new officers took place February 7.

Mardi Gras King, Queen Will Be Elected

Students will have the opportunity to elect their favorite couple the King and Queen of Mardi Gras. Linda Beeler, King and Queen chairman, said that all General Council organizations had the opportunity to nominate a couple for the honor.

Eight couples qualified to compete for the title. They are Joan Bennet and Jim Hodges, Alpha Kappa Psi; Joyce Coppedge and Jimmy Morris, Alpha Phi; Brenda and Clint Buckner, Delta Sigma Pi; Penny Hill and Ron Shutley, Delta Zeta and Sigma Nu.

Linda Brown and Dozier Fleming, Kappa Sigma; Helene Duke and Charles Murphy, Pi Kappa Phi and Kappa Theta; Margaret Mitchell and Jerry Bailey, Night School student council, and Patty Wynne and Buddy Dennard, Sigma Phi Epsilon.

There will be three times for the students to vote, Beeler said. Day students will vote February 23 between 9:00 a.m. and 1:00 p.m. Monday-Wednesday-Friday students will vote February 22 between 5:00 and 7:00 p.m. Tuesday-Thursday students will vote February 23 between 5:00 and 7:00 p.m.

Voting will take place in the Student Lounge. Pictures of the candidates will be displayed in the lounge, according to Monty Montgomery, publicity chairman.

The couple having the most votes will be crowned King and Queen of Mardi Gras at the Saturday night dance.

Kurtz Is Speaker In History Class Here February 8

Mr. Wilbur Kurtz, Sr. was the guest speaker for Dr. Henry Malones class on Civil War and Reconstruction on Monday, Feb. 8.

Mr. Kurtz, who Dr. Malone described as being one of the greatest authorities on the Battle of Atlanta, has made three trips to Hollywood; one as consultant for "Gone With the Wind", and other two as consultant for Walt Disney's "The Great Locomotive Chase".

He also prepared a booklet on the Battle of Atlanta which is sold at the Cyclorama.

Mr. Kurtz settled in Atlanta about 1913 and married the daughter of Captain Fuller, who had been the conductor who had refused to let the Yankee raiders steal his locomotive in 1862.

During his visit to the class, Mr. Kurtz discussed Sherman's campaign to Atlanta in the spring of 1864, the battles around Atlanta in the summer of 1863, the siege of Atlanta, and the surrender of Atlanta on September 1, 1864.

One of the students in the history class, Dave Blair, commented that Mr. Kurtz's speech was "interesting and certainly very enlightening" and that Mr. Kurtz brought out many points which are usually omitted in a discussion of this type.

"Many of the battle sights", he said, "were pointed out with present day constructions, which was quite helpful in locating the various battle grounds."

Niblack Speaks To Delta Sigma Pi At Dinner Meeting

Mr. I. M. Niblack, head of the Land, Legal and Insurance Department of Plantation Pipeline Company, spoke at the Delta Sigma Pi national business fraternity's monthly professional meeting January 27. The meeting was held at the Seven Steers Restaurant.

In his speech Mr. Niblack explained the financing, organization, and operations of his company. He also discussed certain economic considerations peculiar to the pipeline business.

Professional meetings of this type are held monthly by Delta Sigma Pi. These professional meetings and guided tours of Atlanta's leading industries are the distinguishing factors of a business fraternity.

During this quarter the members of Delta Sigma Pi plan to tour Carling Brewery and the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary.

Kappa Sigma Pledges Six

Kappa Sigma fraternity has pledged five new students and has re-pinned a former pledge.

The new pledges are Roger Chatham, Jim Donovan, Tom Pierce, Fred King, and Bob Hardwick, newly elected freshman Senator.

Mike Bolen, member of the Players and author of Kappa Sig's Greek Week skit, is the re-pledged student.

Alumni Secretary Attends Council Meeting at Tulane

Mrs. Anne Smethers, Executive Secretary of the Georgia State Alumni Association, represented Georgia State at the District Conference of the American Alumni Council at Tulane University on Jan. 19-22. 250 representatives from colleges and universities throughout the southeast attended this conference for the purpose of discussion of the varied phases of alumni work and educational fund raising.

The Alumni Association currently has 1050 Active members and plans to bring in many more members during a three-week membership campaign drive in March.

Judicial Board Names Clerk

Linda Beeler has been elected clerk of the Day Student Council's Judicial Board, it was announced last week.

Miss Beeler, a junior, is one of six Associate Justices on the Board.

Monty Montgomery, Chief Justice, said that her term will be specified in the rules of procedure that the Board is presently drawing up.

Dean Trotter Speaks To Georgia Sorority

Mrs. Nell H. Trotter, dean of women at Georgia State College, addressed the Delta Epsilon chapter of Kappa Kappa Gamma at the University of Georgia, Saturday, February 13.

The occasion was an initiation banquet held at the Georgian Hotel in Athens.

Dean Trotter, a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma herself, spoke to the sorority on the "Kappa's Role of Leadership."

STEP IN IT- STEP OUT IN IT

Get the quiet proof of Chevrolet's superior performance on the road—No other car in the low-priced three can match the borne-on-the-wind sensation you get from a ride in the 1960 Chevrolet. But that's not surprising when you consider to what lengths Chevy has gone to provide for your comfort at no extra cost to you. As you drive, count the ways Chevrolet has been thoughtful:

Supple Full Coil suspension—Coil springs at all four wheels melt bumps as no other suspension can. Taking the punch out of rough roads is their only function—they don't have to anchor the rear axle.

Butyl rubber body mounts—Thicker, newly designed body mounts further insulate you from the road.

Body by Fisher—Only Chevy in its field offers the polish and craftsmanship of Body by Fisher.

Foam cushioned seats—Chevy offers foam cushioned seats in both front and rear in all series but one.

Safety-Girder frame—X-built and not merely X-braced, the Safety-Girder frame affords greater rigidity to minimize twisting and squeaks.

Hydraulic valve lifters—Oil hushed hydraulic valve lifters reduce engine noise to a whisper.

Cushioned steering shaft—A universal joint and cushioned coupling keep those annoying road tremors from the steering wheel.

Precision balanced wheels and tires—Here again Chevy has shown concern for your comfort by eliminating vibration in this vital area—tire life is longer, too.

Easy steering ratio—Chevy's high ratio Ball Race steering takes the work out of steering for you.

Superior weight distribution—Chevy rides better, handles better and stops better because the car's weight is more equally divided between the front and rear wheels.

Wide choice of power teams—Choose from 24 different power combinations to satisfy the itchiest driving foot—more than any other car.

Now—fast delivery, favorable deals! See your local authorized Chevrolet dealer!

Professor's Study Receives Wide Recognition in Field

The increasing need for corporations to "get along" with their "small" stockholders is pointed up in a recent publication by an accounting professor.

The professor, Dr. Leland C. Whetten, has received wide recognition for his publication of a pamphlet entitled "Recent Proxy Contests: A Study in Management-Stockholder Relations."

The publication points out that because of the increasing number of proxy contests, corporation managers are realizing more and more that much is to be gained by a corporation's having favorable relations with all of its stockholders, not just the "majority" stockholders; or else small groups opposing present corporation policies may arise and perhaps gain enough backing to gain majority stock control of the corporation.

A digest of Dr. Whetten's study was published in a recent issue of The Executive, published monthly as "a guide to reading for top management" by the Baker Library of the Harvard University Graduate School of Business Administration.

Mr. William R. Satterfield, head of the department of stock listings for the New York Stock Exchange, wrote this about the proxy study:

"I want to say how much enjoyed it. I have never seen more comprehensive, better organized or better documented presentation on this subject. It should be required reading for students on the corporate scene and a part of the library of corporate secretaries everywhere."

Dr. Whetten's proxy voting study currently is required reading in the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration.

Another related study by Dr. Whetten, entitled "Cumulative Voting for Directors: Its Origin and Significance," also was abstracted for the June issue of The Executive last year. Also, George son & Co., oldest and largest proxy soliciting and stockholder relations firm in the country, devoted all of the August-September issue, 1959, to a favorable review of that study.

GREK WEEK SING — Sororities filled the Student Lounge with music as each group sang their songs before an overflowing crowd of Greeks and other interested students, faculty members and families. Alpha Omicron Pi sang three songs, for the entertainment of the audience.

A Free Meal

It was 12:00 in the afternoon and the conference room was decked out for a luncheon. This was not to be just an ordinary luncheon for the basketball team and a few other cast offs, it was a free meal and the person picking up the tab was no other than President Noah Langdale.

Due to the fact that the president doesn't get to as many ball games as he would like to, he informed the team that he nevertheless was mindful of the fact that Georgia State did have a basketball team and he also had been keeping up with how things were proceeding as the year went on. He stated his reasons for not attending and said during the course of the meal that he would answer any questions concerning the school as a noted representative of the hardwood, or any other thing the team and its members wished to ask.

The solid grey-headed president had reason for not attending home games.

Dr. Langdale comes from a family of deeply engrained custom. Back in December the president's mother died and the custom of his family as well as many other southern families is to go into mourning after an immediate death in the family and see no one on a social visit, or on any other social occasion for that matter. In addition to the ritual of the mourning period a black band is supposed to be worn by members of the family so as to convey the grief being suffered by that family.

Now as a president of any college can tell you a black arm band plus a period during which being a hermit is in order would be entirely "foolish" as the modern world sees it. Nevertheless, Dr. Langdale did to a certain extent abide by the custom as much as possible.

CURTAILED ACTIVITIES

As he said at the luncheon that his activities were curtailed as much as possible, but for a college president to slow down his activities at any time is hard to do, especially since the president of a college gets invitations to attend everything from a livestock show to a governor's dinner.

Dr. Langdale told how far Georgia State has advanced and believe me when you hear it straight from the man who knows, you can see exactly how far we have come since 1956-57.

When Dr. Langdale arrived 40 per cent of the faculty were part time. Now the figure is somewhat around ten per cent. Georgia State, at the time of the arrival of Dr. Langdale offered one degree and that was in business administration. Now Georgia State offers more degrees in business administration than the average person can remember plus a master's in business administration. The school had no Arts and Sciences degrees being offered and since then they have several degrees from English to Physics in this school.

AN EXPLANATION

Georgia State, Dr. Langdale explained, is a young school and the facilities for sports are sparse to say the least. However, with a young school you have to expect slow progress. Dr. Langdale stated that the Board of Regents have given Georgia State many scholastic privileges (such as degree in the Arts and Sciences field) and a gym-auditorium would be erected in approximately five years. The purpose of the gym would be for the benefit of the physical education majors, a degree Dr. Langdale would like to see the college give in the near future.

Since this college has no athletic association as such, there consequently are no donors of money such as there are at Georgia Tech and other schools. And since there are no donors the only way a gym could be built is by the school with the help and approval of the Regents.

A TRAVEL LOG

The president has traveled all over the nation and several opinions have been heard on the question of why the president was all over the South. Well, Dr. Langdale was on a traveling mission to carry the so-called word. Georgia State, said the president, has been heard of from Canada to Miami and from the northern most state to the Northwest section of the country. People are hearing about Georgia State and Dr. Langdale is our chief publicity agent.

A humble man with a driving ambition and a continuous travel log of places to go and people to see, Dr. Noah Langdale is keeping Georgia State on everybody's mind.

Kappa Sigma retained their seat atop the IFC standings this past week with a 58-26 shelling of Pi Kappa Phi. In other Interfraternity Council action Sigma Phi Epsilon turned back Pi Alpha 60-51.

Bill Baker, Jimmy Bowden and Chuck Armer led the K-Sigs. Baker pumped in eight field goals and two for two at the free throw line for an 18 point total. Bowden added 13 counters on six field goals and one free throw and Armer rounded out the men in double figures by contributing 10. Dexter Gatehouse with 10 was high for Pi Kappa Phi.

In the other game SPE placed three men in double figures. The Sig Eps, after starting off to a slow start, fought Pi Alpha off like a wounded bear. Jimmy Williams, Gerry Chatham and Jimmy (Vitalis) Adams managed 12, 11, and 10 point efforts.

High man for Pi Alpha was Walter Fountain who had seven fielders and two free throws for a total of 16 points. Pi Alpha was hurt at the free throw lane. The Pi Alpha's hit on only six of 18 charity tosses while SPE was tossing in 14 of 28 chances.

The last games of the season will be played on Thursday night at the new East Atlanta High School Gym. Should Kappa Sigma beat Pi Alpha the K-Sigs will have the IFC crown sewn up. However, if Pi Alpha beats the K-Sigs it would force SPE and Kappa Sigma into a playoff. SPE's record is 3-1 while Kappa Sigma is 3-0 with one more game left to play. CASH

PANTHERS PLAY LAGRANGE — Georgia State played the LaGrange College basketball team at LaGrange February 12. A chartered-bus-board of Georgia State students and their dates joined the cheerleaders in support of the Panthers, but Georgia State lost the closely-matched game, 62-74.

Snakes Take and Return K-Sigs Billy Goat, Herman

Herman, the Kappa Sigma goat, is back in his proper home after a brief encounter with the Sigma Nu Snakes.

The goat, although claimed by the Kappa Sigs, belongs to fraternity brother Dozier Fleming and his younger brother, Sidney.

Herman was taken from his pen at Fleming's house, hidden in a Snake's garage, and finally returned home.

The episode began Thursday night, Jan. 28. That night Kappa Sig played the Sig Eps in basketball and the goat was present as the fraternity's mascot.

A few Sigma Nus saw the cigarette-chewing Herman and realized that a wonderful opportunity was at hand to strike at their traditional rivals.

In a special interview with the Signal, Jerry Day, Sigma Nu pledge, recounted how he maneuvered Herman away from his pen.

After the IFC basketball games ar, he led the billy goat out of his pen, alongside Fleming's house, and into a waiting car.

For the next several days, the Snakes kept Herman in Jimmy Miller's garage in East Atlanta.

It did not take long for Kappa Sigs to find who had the goat.

Carl Woods, a next door neighbor of Day, asked Jim Lawhon, affiliate of Kappa Sigma, if he was a member of a fraternity at Georgia State that had a goat stolen.

This was the day after the theft and Lawhon, Lambda Chi Alpha at University of Tennessee, didn't know the Kappa Sigs were missing Herman. He told Woods no.

The next Tuesday, Feb. 2, Law-that night, Day and a few other Snakes drove to Fleming's house.

Day worked his way through the woods behind Fleming's house until he found Herman's pen. The white goat was standing in front of his little house.

Just as Day was about to open the gate, a police squad car drove into Fleming's driveway.

Day jumped into the shadows, ready to get into the goat house if necessary.

Instead of scouring the premises for trespassers, the police talked with Mrs. Fleming, got something, and left.

Day later found out that the police came to pick up charity money that Mrs. Fleming had helped to collect.

The Snake went back to work. Taking a tacit Herman by the coll-

Delta Sigma Pi and Alpha Kappa Psi To Meet in Game

On Thursday March 8 at 8:00 p.m. the basketeers of Delta Sigma Pi and Alpha Kappa Psi will meet on the hardwood for their first annual basketball contest.

This year the winner of the battle will be awarded a keg of ice cream by the loser. However, next year and in the future the game is to be a charity benefit with the proceeds going to some worthy cause, Ted Kennedy, Delta Sigma Pi reporter said.

This will be the second athletic contest between the two business fraternities this school year. Last fall the Delta Sigs reclaimed the annual football trophy by topping Alpha Kappa Psi 18-6 in touch football.

Even though the activities of these business fraternities are different from the activities of the social fraternities, the competition between them is always ferocious, Kennedy said.

hon heard the goat was missing and told Fleming the information he had.

Later that day, Fleming visited Bob Roberts Kappa Sigma pledge, who lives across the street from both Day and Woods.

As he was leaving Roberts' house, Fleming saw Day go into Woods' house.

Fleming and Roberts followed Day into the house and found it full of neighborhood kids.

When Fleming told Mrs. Woods he wanted to ask about a missing goat all the kids got excited and looked at Day.

Day denied everything at the time.

From a newspaper story, the Snakes found that the goat belonged partly to Sidney and that the 12-year-old boy was worrying about his goat.

In order to avoid unnecessary sorrow, the Snakes asked Kappa Sig John Lanier in their room for a parley late that Tuesday afternoon. They also talked with Fleming.

The two brothers refused to go after Herman and insisted that the Sigma Nus return him themselves.

Fifteen minutes before midnight that same night, four Snake-occupied cars drove by Fleming's house and a couple of boys escorted the goat to his pen.

Probable expecting trouble, the Snakes had several members stationed around the property. None came, and they departed.

Harold Riggs, president of the Kappa Sig chapter, said their next mascot would be a mongoose.

As for Herman, all he had to say about the Sigma Nus was, "Bah."
